... Johnson Is Sworn In

JOHN FITZGERALD KENNEDY ... 35th President of the U.S.

Pro-Castro Marxist Charged In Slayings

Dallas (UPI)—Lee Harvey Oswald, 24, a pro-Castro Marxist who defected to Russia in 1959, was charged Friday with the assassination of President Kennedy, who was ambushed with a high-powered rifle.

Oswald made no confession and insisted he knew nothing about the assassination of the President or the serious wounding of Texas Gov. John Connally.

Manacled, his face battered in a fight with the police who subdued him in a movie theater less than four miles from the assassination scene, Oswald was taken before Justice of the Peace David Johnson for arraignment.

Next Week

Police Chief Jesse Curry said he would be brought before a grand jury next week.

Police made paraffin tests on Oswald several hours before he was charged formally.

Police also charged the 24-year-old Marine reject with the murder of a Dallas police officer shortly after the President was slain by a sniper firing a military rifle from the window of a building in downtown Dallas.

No Account

Oswald would not account for his whereabouts at the time of the assassination, but Police Captain Will Fritz of the homicide department said it had been established Oswald was in the building then.

Oswald was seized by police in a theater in the Oak Cliff district of Dallas less than four miles from the scene of the assassination.

A policeman, J. D. Tippitt, 38, was shot down in the street about five blocks from the Texas theater. The theater cashier, Mrs. Julie Postal, had reported to police that a suspicious man had entered the theater. Four policemen went after him.

Misfired

After shooting Tippitt, according to police, Oswald tried to shoot patrolman M. N. MacDonald but his snub-nosed .38-caliber revolver misfired. The police pounced on him. He fought wildly. They dragged him to a car.

Police said FBI agents questioned both Oswald and his brother, Robert Oswald of Denton.

Oswald's Russian wife, who does not speak English, was brought to police headquarters and was questioned through interpreters.

Oswald's wife lives in suburban Irving. Last Oct. 14 he rented a box-like room for $8 per week from Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Johnson in Dallas.

Mrs. R. C. Roberts, who works for the Johnsons, said that at about 12:45 p.m. Friday she had just learned that Kennedy was shot.

In rushed Oswald "on the dead run," she said.

"He ran to his room, came running back with a gray zipper jacket and out the door."

"I said 'you sure are in a hurry' but he didn't even answer."

Police found a leather pistol holster and some books on Communism and political magazines in his 8-by-15-foot room.

Three Shots

Witnesses heard three shots. Two hit the President, one in the head and one in the neck.

The third shot wounded Gov. John B. Connally of Texas in the side, but his condition was reported not critical.

The motorcade slowed and then sped forward at breakneck speed to Parkland Hospital near the Trade Mart.

Onlookers, terrified at the sight and sound of the assassination, dived face forward for protection onto a grassy park at the entrance of the underpass, fearing more shots. Police swarmed into the scene.

At the hospital emergency entrance, AP reporter Jack Bell saw the President stretched out face down at full length, motionless on the backseat of the car. His suit still looked neat—but there was blood on the floor.

Secret Service men helped Mrs. Kennedy away from the car. Hospital attendants aided Connally and his wife.

In Washington, Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Tex., said he saw Mrs. Kennedy, her clothing stained with the President's blood, kiss her husband's lifeless lips, and place her ring on his finger before his body, sealed in a bronze casket, was wheeled aboard his plane for the trip to Washington.

It seemed that the assassination was carefully planned. In the Texas School Book Depository Building, overlooking the overpass, officers found the rifle. They described it as a bolt-action, 6.5 mm weapon, apparently of Italian make, with a telescopic sight.

Along with the rifle, partly hidden behind books on the fifth floor of the six-story building, were spent cartridges and scraps of fried chicken. The bullets had come from a 45-degree angle as the presidential car passed the building, which has a clear view of the underpass.

The shots were fired at 12:30 p.m. (CST) and the president died at 1 p.m. He was 46 and the youngest man ever elected President.

Bob Jackson, a Dallas Times Herald photographer, said he looked around as he heard the shots and saw the rifle barrel disappearing into the fifth floor window. He did not see the gunman.

Just Ahead

Jacqueline Kennedy, who was touring the Lone Star State with her husband, sat just ahead of him in the big auto when a rifle slug ripped a gaping wound in the back of his head and sent him sprawling forward.

Crying, "Oh, no," Mrs. Kennedy tried to cradle the dying President's blood-smeared head in her arms as Kennedy's Secret Service driver sped out of rifle range and toward the nearest hospital.

When the President was carried into the emergency room, Mrs. Kennedy walked behind—parts of her clothing drenched with blood.

Composed

The First Lady remained composed but, inside the emergency room, grasped hands with the new president, Johnson, and his wife, Lady Bird, in a reflex display of deep anguish.

Shortly after Kennedy's death—"We never had any hope of saving his life," said one doctor—"Johnson was driven to Dallas' Love Field."

AN EDITORIAL:

Understanding Is Strained

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

"It was a simple matter of a bullet through the temple."

With those words, spoken in a faltering voice, the news commentator betrayed his own disbelief, almost, of the fact that President Kennedy was dead. Throughout the nation, the people of the United States were stunned with the reality of this tragic calamity.

The young man who had given great inspiration to an entire world, who had fought off death as it hung over him in war, was suddenly lifeless. It was a simple matter in that regard but not in any other.

It is not simple in terms of human understanding, as there can never be any reason or explanation for it. There can be no real soothing of the grief held by every American for the family of the President. There will never be a putting aside of the reminder this family will always be of the assassin's tragic act.

It is not simple, either, in terms of its consequences. There is left now only the hope that the nation will rally behind former Vice President Lyndon Johnson who has now been sworn in as President.

There is great uncertainty, though, and great human misery. Who killed President Kennedy is one thing but how it really came about is quite another.

Now we shall have a look at ourselves. Now we shall examine our social structure to see those things in it that contribute to the twisting of a mind to such a degree that it can take such dreadful action.

We shall see if there is not within many of us a part of the cause of this national

Johnson Pledges To 'Do His Best'

Washington (AP) — President

Lyndon B. Johnson took over the controls of government from the dead hand of John F. Kennedy Friday night with a pledge to do his best and a plea for the help of God and the American people.

Wan and solemn, Johnson broadcast a brief message to a shocked nation minutes after he flew in from Dallas, Tex. where an assassin's bullet killed Kennedy a little more than six hours before.

"I will do my best," Johnson said.

son said. "That is all I can do. I ask for your help, and God's."

Then, at the White House, the former vice president hurried into a series of conferences with military men, congressional leaders of both parties, and Kennedy administration experts on foreign policy.

Assurances

A senator said Johnson asked and received assurances of support from men of both political faiths.

Friday night Johnson talked on the telephone with FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover about the great manhunt for Kennedy's assassin. He talked also, the White House said, with Connally's physician and learned that the governor's condition is good.

At 9:24, Johnson left the White House to motor to his residence in the fashionable Spring Valley section of Northwest Washington.

Manages Wave

Johnson, although drawn and tired looking, managed a wave to waiting newsmen and neighbors as his black limousine, lights flashing, pulled into the long driveway and through the ornamental gates to his home.

Already he had swung quickly into the White House pattern. The new president set up a conference for 9:30 Saturday morning with secretary of State Dean Rusk. Rusk and four other cabinet members swung their plane around in mid-Pacific, en route to conferences in Japan, and hurried back toward Washington.

At 11:30 Saturday morning Johnson will confer with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower in a further extension of his bid for unity in a tragic hour for the nation.

catastrophe. How much of the guilt belongs to those who have never known the meaning of toleration? How much of the guilt belongs to those who have lived on selfishness and prejudice?

Not just racial prejudice. That might make finding the answer a little too easy. The kind of prejudice, selfishness and intolerance of which we speak covers the waterfront of human life.

It covers all men in each and every act of their existence—in their family life, business, community, church and all that they do. Did the assassin have before him an example of dedication to humanity and the dignity of mankind or was he constantly exposed to a philosophy of human exploitation of one kind or another?

Did the assassin kill because he came to believe that even the life of another human being should not stand in the way of his own convictions? Did he plot his traitorous way while blinded by the exaggerated righteousness of his own cause?

These are some of the questions that will haunt us in the days and weeks ahead. We will grope in our remorse and anxiety for some clue as to what kind of world we have fashioned, what kind of times we have created, to bring about this awful thing.

Both domestically and internationally, an awesome burden now falls upon the shoulders of President Johnson. In our hearts and in our prayers, we will carry a deepening sorrow for John F. Kennedy's death and a hope in Lyndon B. Johnson. We are today a nation stunned by heavy blows and humbly seeking sustenance in an hour of great need.

John F. Kennedy Bore Torch Of Leadership

By United Press International
On a bitterly cold and snowy day in January, 1961, when he was inaugurated 35th President of the United States, John Fitzgerald Kennedy sounded a call to action that in many ways summed up his own remarkable career.

"Let the word go forth from this time and place, to friend and foe alike," he said, "that the torch has been passed to a new generation of Americans—born in this century, tempered by war, disciplined by a cold and bitter peace."

Kennedy was all these, and he bore the torch of world leadership in a society where the old order was changing fast. On that January day, no man had ever flown in space. On that day Negroes in southern cities such as Jackson and Birmingham were not yet demonstrating. On that day the world had not come consciously close to nuclear destruction as it did in the great Cuban crisis of 1962.

Confident From Start
"Sure it's a big job," Kennedy once said. "But I don't know anybody who can do it any better than I can. I'm going to be in it for four years. It isn't going to be so bad. You've got time to think—and besides, the pay is good."

He later found out—and conceded—that it was a bigger job than he originally believed. But it is most unlikely that he ever once wavered in the belief that no one could handle it as well as he could. To think otherwise would have been a negation of his whole life.

The presidency of John Fitzgerald Kennedy was born in the fierce pride of an Irish immigrant family. It was carefully nurtured in the training stages by a multi-millionaire father, and brought to fruition by the man himself through a distinguished career in the House and Senate and on the tricky campaign trails of America.

In a manner typical of his family, Kennedy started at the top in many things. Pulitzer Prize Winner

By NANCY RAY
Star Staff Writer

"They say the President is dead." The young woman's face mirrored no grief or anger or disbelief. Her voice was as emotionless and flat as a voice could be.

She made her statement to no one and to everyone as she stood on Lincoln's main street, her coat open in the biting grey November wind.

She turned and leaned on ungloved hand against the department store window, bowed her head and wept. No one comforted her. No one could.

The newly-hung Christmas decorations along O Street gave off tinkling sounds in the stillness which hours before had been a riot of noise and singing and chanting as university students voiced their spirits over Saturday's football game amidst a surging crowd of early Christmas shoppers.

Now Christmas was dead and football forgotten. Now the silence of grief spread over the nation and the world, turning the important into dust, silencing even the shouts of children.

"Oh God!" groaned a balding realtor as he put his head in his hands. A client who had told him the news moments before stood silently by. What more could he say?

In the appliance department of a large store shoppers and clerks stood transfixed before the tiers of television receivers watching as the commentators repeated over and over the tragic news. The huddled crowds avoided words and glances from their neighbors.

Outside, the traffic lights changed from red to green to red and back again but a cluster of pedestrians remained at the curb intent on watching a wind-whipped American flag slowly dip to half-staff. The little group did not move until the blue-shirted custodian had secured the ropes, walked to the roof-edge and looked down and slowly turned, hands in pockets, back to the stairway.

Painfully slowed motion and eerie silence, which made a honking horn sound like a screaming curse, was Lincoln's form of mourning for the dead President.

And the grey, angry sky, the frantic flight of dead leaves on the icy wind gave a proper setting for the silent grief.

He was a product of Choate, Harvard, and the London School of Economics. He produced his first book, "Why England Slept," in 1940 at the age of 23. On his second literary try in 1956, he won a Pulitzer Prize for his widely acclaimed "Profiles in Courage."

He also strted at the top in politics. There was nothing up-from-the-precincts in his career. He started after the war by winning a seat in the U.S. House of Representatives from his native state of Massachusetts. After six years in the House he ran for the Senate. That year — 1952 — was a bad year for Democrats because of the Eisenhower landslide. But Kennedy defeated Henry Cabot Lodge, a scion of an old New England family whose Brahmin roots were so vastly different from those of the Kennedys.

Kennedy's World War II record became a national conversation piece. The saga of PT109, how Kennedy commanded a PT boat in the Solomons that was rammed by a Japanese destroyer, was celebrated in books, a motion picture and countless retellings by magazines, newspapers and television.

Kennedy coupled this illustrious background with a headlong drive for the presidency that has been seldom matched for vigor, tenacity and expense. But despite this, he barely made it to 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.

Slim Victory

With the largest voter turnout in history, he defeated vice President Richard M. Nixon in 1960 by scarcely 100,000 ballots. Kennedy's 34,227,096 popular votes gave him an electoral college edge of 330 to 219 over Nixon, who got 34,108,546 popular votes.

Not many hours before Kennedy took office, the family patriarch, Joseph P. Kennedy, voiced deep satisfaction that one of his four sons had made it to the American pinnacle. But the elder Kennedy, one of the wealthiest men of his time, knew his older son faced problems as no other president has confronted.

"He's got to be good from the very start," said Joe Kennedy to a friend, "not only because of his youth, but because the world has reached a point where the American president can make damn few mistakes and get away with it. This means Jack must make a go of it right from the beginning — and it means he'll need all the support he can possibly get."

Kennedy entered office on a surge of towering personal popularity. The new president, his strikingly attractive wife Jacqueline, and their children made one of the most appealing and photogenic families ever to occupy the White House.

Sweep Nation

Their styles, their tastes, their preferences in sports, from touch football to water-skiing, swept the nation in a Jack-and-Jackie fad. Motion picture fan magazines dropped cinema sirens for months and emblazoned their covers with alluring pictures of the First Lady in bathing suits, riding costumes and T-shirts.

Newspaper and feature writers, night club and television comedians, recording stars and composers combined to spread the doings of the Kennedys. A great cult of personality swept the nation. Not since the early days of Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal did a president and those around him become such an object of interest to the entire nation.

Undisputed personal popularity did not protect Kennedy, however, from the lash of severe criticism that accompanied some of the efforts of his administration. Nor did it rub off on Congress to the extent that the lawmakers fell over themselves to get his programs passed.

Proposals Embattled

In fact, his New Frontier legislative proposals were often embattled. His defeats in this area sometimes were impressive. His victories frequently narrow.

His great problems at the start were foreign policy and the domestic economy. In many ways both were later to be overshadowed by the Negro "revolution" of 1963 which confronted the nation with one of its gravest domestic crises since the Civil War.

Overseas, there was the ever-present threat posed by the Soviet Union, the troubles in Southeast Asia, and—over and over again—Cuba. The Kennedys had barely unpacked their bags in 1961 when the image of the bright young American president was tarnished by the ill-fated JUNE, 1961 . . . President Kennedy met with Soviet Premier Khrushchev in Vienna.

Bay of Pigs invasion. The plan to land exiles in Cuba in an attempt to overthrow Fidel Castro was conceived in the Eisenhower administration, and executed by the Kennedy men.

The disaster — for which Kennedy accepted full responsibility — lay like a pall on the administration for months. But if April, 1961, was a fiasco, October, 1962, was an unprecedented triumph.

Greatest Triumph

The Cuban missile crisis was a test of all the skill and courage that Kennedy could command. By ordering a blockade but not sinking any ships, by talking softly but carrying the big stick of nuclear retaliation, he forced the Soviet Union to withdraw the missiles it had placed in Cuba and thereby scored one of the greatest Western triumphs of the cold war. Just as the Bay of Pigs was the low-water mark of the first years, the Cuban crisis was the high tide.

The man at the troubled

U.S. helm through this vast sea of difficulty was born at his family's Brookline, Mass., home outside Boston, May 29, 1917. He had an older brother, Joseph P. Kennedy Jr., who was killed in World War II. After John's birth, four girls, Rosemary, Kathleen, Eunice and Patricia, followed before the third son, Robert F. Kennedy, was born in 1925. He became attorney general in his brother's administration. After Robert, there was another girl, Jean, and then Edward F., the last of nine children, born in 1932.

The youngest of the family continued the tradition of successful politics by being elected U.S. senator from Massachusetts in 1962 at the age of 30.

The family grew up in an atmosphere of politics, fired by two grandfathers whose scramble as Irish immigrants from the east Boston shanties of potato famine refugees to lace certain respectability underscored the American dream. They were Patrick J.

Kennedy and John F. Fitzgerald. Kennedy, Patrick's son, courted Rose Fitzgerald for seven years and married her in 1914. A large family on the way, Joe Kennedy set out to be a millionaire before he was 35 — a goal which he met handily.

While the elder Kennedy rammed his way to the top, he demanded the same performance from his sons. Being unable to make the presidency, himself, there was no doubt in the minds of many contemporaries that Joe Kennedy wanted Joe Jr. to become president.

Had Joe Jr. survived the war, the elder Kennedy might have made his mark at the White House with his first-born. As it was, Jack was relatively in Joe's vigorous shadow as he followed him through school and college. Quieter, more introspective than his brother, John leaned toward a career in writing or teaching. Perhaps this would have been his life if his older brother had lived for the political career he intended—and which his father intended for him.

After the war, Kennedy dabbled in newspaper work, then decided to try for a Boston congressional seat being vacated by the incumbent. Only 29, he campaigned hard, talked pocketbook issues and won the nomination over a field of nine other Democrats. Running in a normally Democratic district, he easily defeated his Republican opponent.

In Congress, Kennedy kept the home political fences in good repair. He was identified with the liberals but was viewed more as an independent than a doctrinaire Democrat. He generally supported President Harry S. Truman's domestic policies and the Greek-Turkish aid bill and the Marshall Plan as well.

In 1952, the entire Kennedy family of brothers and sisters and in-laws moved in to help with "coffee hours" and other political innovations as John defeated Henry Cabot Lodge for the U.S. Senate.

Kennedy was married Sept. 12, 1953, to Jacqueline Bouvier, then 23, at a fashionable wedding at Newport. R. 1. Like Kennedy she came from a wealthy New England Catholic family.

No Federal Count For Assassins

Dallas (UPI) — Justice of the Peace David Johnson said Friday it was doubtful if the assassin who shot and killed President Kennedy would be tried on any federal charges. "It is a case of one man murdering another," he said. "There is no such federal charge as assassination."

Johnson said he and other jurists in the area had searched books to determine how the assassin should be charged. The law books, he said, contain nothing about the murder of a president.

The only record of an assassin being tried on a federal charge was when a military tribunal convicted the slayer of President James Garfield.

The apparent basis for that trial was that Garfield, as President, was commander in chief of the military and thus his killer could be tried under military law.

Kennedy's Ask That No Floral Tributes Be Sent

Washington (AP) — John F. Kennedy's family asked Friday night that no floral tributes be sent for his services.

The White House issued this following announcement: "The Kennedy family has expressed the desire that no flowers be sent to the White House or to the funeral."

"They asked that anyone wishing to do so donate an equivalent amount to charity."

where he boarded the presidential jet transport, Air Force One.

Before flying off to Washington to take up the reins of government, Johnson stood aboard the plane, his left hand on a Bible, and swore to faithfully execute the duties of president and defend the Constitution.

First Woman

The oath was administered by U.S. District Judge Sarah T. Hughes, who became the first woman to swear in a chief executive. She was named to her post by Kennedy in October, 1961.

Placed aboard the big silver, blue and white jet which Kennedy rode so often in life was the body of the assassinated chief executive.

Kennedy's body was to be taken home to the White House he occupied for thirty-four months to lie in state Saturday.

Last Rites

Before he died, Kennedy was given the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church. He was the first Catholic president in American history.

Scores of dignitaries, police and news reporters who had a place with Kennedy in the motorcade that became a rendezvous with death were stunned as they grappled with the reality that a president had been shot down for the first time in sixty-three years.

The last presidential victim of an assassin was William McKinley, who was felled at close range in 1901 at Buffalo, N.Y., by a crazed gunman who approached him in the guise of a friend who wanted to shake hands.

Not So Bold

Kennedy's assassin was not so bold. He fired from a secret hiding place. And, though police and Secret Service agents quickly drew pistols and automatic weapons, they found no target at which to shoot.

More than a dozen Secret Service agents were within close range of Kennedy when he was shot, just as his limousine left the downtown business section and headed toward the expressway that led toward the ball where he planned to make a luncheon address.

All the carefully-trained agents and police could offer no effective protection, however, against the sniper who, with murder in his heart, laid his plans so cleverly and diabolically.

Until tragedy struck at Kennedy, there had been no successful assassination of an American president since the Secret Service was made the special protector of chief executives following McKinley's death.

Hall An Hour

Kennedy lived barely half an hour after the bullet struck his head. The dying chief executive never regained consciousness as some eight to 10 doctors waged a frantic but futile campaign to save his life.

Blood transfusions and draughts of oxygen were administered. Then came an anesthetic that preceded an emergency tracheotomy—a procedure in which a surgeon cut a hole in the President's windpipe with the hope of easing labored breathing.

Within a few minutes, however, all hope was gone.

Kennedy's heart action failed and, in the words of Dr. Malcolm Perry, "there was no palpable pulse beat."

Executives Of LBJ's Church Send Prayers

Indianapolis (AP) — A group of executives of President Lyndon B. Johnson's church, Disciples of Christ, telegraphed him their best wishes and prayers Friday.

Executives of the International Convention of Christian Churches, who were in session here when he was sworn into office, sent "their expressions of confidence and assurances that you are in their prayers."

The church executives also sent a telegram of sympathy to Mrs. Kennedy.

Nebraska No Stranger To Kennedy

Nebraska was no stranger to President Kennedy. The President traveled often into the Cornhusker State in the years which led to his election.

Kennedy, then a U.S. senator, visited both Lincoln and Omaha in 1957 and 1958.

The first year, he addressed a University of Nebraska student convocation in Lincoln, and a Democratic Party gathering in Omaha.

In 1958, Kennedy and his wife celebrated their fifth wedding anniversary together in Omaha where they attended a party gathering. The next day, Kennedy spoke in behalf of Nebraska's Democratic senatorial nominee, Frank Morrison, at a breakfast in Lincoln.

In 1959, the President visited 10 Nebraska communities as he paved the way for entry into the 1960 presidential preferential primary here.

Primary Campaign

Kennedy traveled to Omaha and Lincoln in 1960 prior to the May primary vote.

Unchallenged in the primary, except by write-in votes, the Massachusetts senator compiled a heavy majority, enough votes to riddle every Democratic record in Nebraska since Franklin D.

Roosevelt's 1940 primary total.

Kennedy went on to win 11 of Nebraska's 16 votes at the Democratic national convention. In the November general election, the state went heavily to Richard Nixon.

Kennedy's last visit to the state was a tour of Strategic Air Command headquarters at Offutt Air Force Base last winter.

Also contributing to Kennedy's familiarity with Nebraska were two of his closest associates, both of whom are natives.

Theodore Sorensen was his special counsel and Mrs. Evelyn Lincoln served as his private secretary.

Morrison To Fly To Washington

Gov. Frank Morrison will fly to Washington early Saturday to join members of Congress and other governors in viewing the body of President Kennedy as it lies in repose at the White House.

The Nebraska chief executive will fly to Des Moines and join Iowa Gov. Harold Hughes for a 4:15 flight to the national capital.

The two governors will view the President's body between 2:30 and 5 p.m. EST Saturday, and return Sunday.

Morrison will be accompanied by Maj. Gen. Lyle A. Welch, adjutant general of Nebraska, Iowa Adj. Gen. Junior F. Miller will go with Hughes.

John F. Kennedy Bore Torch Of Leadership

By United Press International
On a bitterly cold and snowy day in January, 1961, when he was inaugurated 35th President of the United States, John Fitzgerald Kennedy sounded a call to action that in many ways summed up his own remarkable career.

"Let the word go forth from this time and place, to friend and foe alike," he said, "that the torch has been passed to a new generation of Americans—born in this century, tempered by war, disciplined by a cold and bitter peace."

Kennedy was all these, and he bore the torch of world leadership in a society where the old order was changing fast. On that January day, no man had ever flown in space. On that day Negroes in southern cities such as Jackson and Birmingham were not yet demonstrating. On that day the world had not come consciously close to nuclear destruction as it did in the great Cuban crisis of 1962.

Confident From Start
"Sure it's a big job," Kennedy once said. "But I don't know anybody who can do it any better than I can. I'm going to be in it for four years. It isn't going to be so bad. You've got time to think—and besides, the pay is good."

He later found out—and conceded—that it was a bigger job than he originally believed. But it is most unlikely that he ever once wavered in the belief that no one could handle it as well as he could. To think otherwise would have been a negation of his whole life.

The presidency of John Fitzgerald Kennedy was born in the fierce pride of an Irish immigrant family. It was carefully nurtured in the training stages by a multi-millionaire father, and brought to fruition by the man himself through a distinguished career in the House and Senate and on the tricky campaign trails of America.

In a manner typical of his family, Kennedy started at the top in many things.

Pulitzer Prize Winner
He was a product of Choate, Harvard, and the London School of Economics. He produced his first book, "Why England Slept," in 1940 at the age of 23. On his second literary try in 1956, he won a Pulitzer Prize for his widely acclaimed "Profiles in Courage."

Silence Of Grief Spreads Across City And Nation

Star Staff Writer

"They say the President is dead." The young woman's face mirrored no grief or anger or disbelief. Her voice was as emotionless and flat as a voice could be.

She made her statement to no one and to everyone as she stood on Lincoln's main street, her coat open in the biting grey November wind.

She turned and leaned on ungloved hand against the department store window, bowed her head and wept. No one comforted her. No one could.

The newly-hung Christmas decorations along O Street gave off tinkling sounds in the stillness which hours before had been a riot of noise and singing and chanting as university students voiced their spirits over Saturday's football game amidst a surging crowd of early Christmas shoppers.

Now Christmas was dead and football forgotten. Now the silence of grief spread over the nation and the world, turning the important into dust, silencing even the shouts of children.

"Oh God!" groaned a balding realtor as he put his head in his hands. A client who had told him the news moments before stood silently by. What more could he say?

In the appliance department of a large store shoppers and clerks stood transfixed before the tiers of television receivers watching as the commentators repeated over and over the tragic news. The huddled crowds avoided words and glances from their neighbors.

Outside, the traffic lights changed from red to green to red and back again but a cluster of pedestrians remained at the curb intent on watching a wind-whipped American flag slowly dip to half-staff. The little group did not move until the blue-shirted custodian had secured the ropes, walked to the roof-edge and looked down and slowly turned, hands in pockets, back to the stairway.

Painfully slowed motion and eerie silence, which made a honking horn sound like a screaming curse, was Lincoln's form of mourning for the dead President.

And the grey, angry sky, the frantic flight of dead leaves on the icy wind gave a proper setting for the silent grief.

Unchallenged in the primary, except by write-in votes, the Massachusetts senator compiled a heavy majority, enough votes to riddle every Democratic record in Nebraska since Franklin D.

Roosevelt's 1940 primary total.

Kennedy went on to win 11 of Nebraska's 16 votes at the Democratic national convention. In the November general election, the state went heavily to Richard Nixon.

Kennedy's last visit to the state was a tour of Strategic Air Command headquarters at Offutt Air Force Base last winter.

Also contributing to Kennedy's familiarity with Nebraska were two of his closest associates, both of whom are natives.

Theodore Sorensen was his special counsel and Mrs. Evelyn Lincoln served as his private secretary.

Dallas (UPI)—Justice of the Peace David Johnson said Friday it was doubtful if the assassin who shot and killed President Kennedy would be tried on any federal charges.

"It is a case of one man murdering another," he said. "There is no such federal charge as assassination."

Johnson said he and other jurists in the area had searched books to determine how the assassin should be charged. The law books, he said, contain nothing about the murder of a president.

The only record of an assassin being tried on a federal charge was when a military tribunal convicted the slayer of President James Garfield.

The apparent basis for that trial was that Garfield, as President, was commander in chief of the military and thus his killer could be tried under military law.

Kennedy's Ask That No Floral Tributes Be Sent

Washington (AP)—John F. Kennedy's family asked Friday night that no floral tributes be sent for his services.

The White House issued this following announcement:

"The Kennedy family has expressed the desire that no flowers be sent to the White House or to the funeral.

"They asked that anyone wishing to do so donate an equivalent amount to charity."

Morrison To Fly To Washington

Gov. Frank Morrison will fly to Washington early Saturday to join members of Congress and other governors in viewing the body of President Kennedy as it lies in repose at the White House.

The Nebraska chief executive will fly to Des Moines and join Iowa Gov. Harold Hughes for a 4:15 flight to the national capital.

The two governors will view the President's body between 2:30 and 5 p.m. EST Saturday, and return Sunday.

Morrison will be accompanied by Maj. Gen. Lyle A. Welch, adjutant general of Nebraska, Iowa Adj. Gen. Junior F. Miller will go with Hughes.

Johnson Backed Kennedy Policies

Washington (AP)—Lyndon B. Johnson, coming into the presidency on the assassination of John F. Kennedy Friday, enjoyed Kennedy's high esteem and confidence. From old political foe—within the Democratic Party—they became a close working team.

Johnson tried in 1960 for the presidential nomination. When Kennedy won, Johnson accepted second place on the Democratic ticket.

Very Active

Accepting too the Kennedy leadership, he became extraordinarily active in behalf of the Kennedy policies. This activity included work for the civil rights program Kennedy laid down—something that lessened Johnson's popularity in the south—and there was some talk this year that Johnson might be dumped from the ticket next year.

But on Oct. 31, Kennedy was asked whether, if he ran next year, he would again want Johnson as the vice presidential nominee, and whether he expected Johnson to be on the ticket. He replied: "Yes, to both of those questions. That is correct."

Johnson is a former Democratic senator from Texas, best known for the vigorous, aggressive way he handled the job of Democratic leader of the Senate before he quit to become vice president.

What direction may the Johnson administration take? Broad View

In one of the numerous speeches he made in recent years—this one in Washington April 26—Johnson offered a broad view of what he thought the Democrats should attempt in next year's presidential campaign and thereafter.

He said the Democrats must demonstrate that they are a part of action offering solutions for the new kinds of problems brought about by population increases and concentration, and by the lengthening of life expectancy.

"We have new capacities," he said. "We have new potentials. We stand at the edge of a new era of human progress in our own country and in the world."

Decisive
"At this decisive moment of opportunity, the party of the opposition offers only the slogan 'America cannot do it—America cannot afford the programs that we need.'"

He called for a full and enthusiastic support of Democrats everywhere for Kennedy's foreign and domestic programs.

"The American majority is constructive—and our party today is serving that constructiveness," he said.

Back Strong
Johnson, 55 years old, suffered a severe heart attack in 1955 but came back strong and is one of the most vigorous politicians ever on the Washington scene.

As Senate majority leader, he was all over the political scene, but some thought he would have to slow down when he became vice president—ordinarily just a ceremonial job.

But he took on so many chores he needed three offices from which to operate—in the Capitol, in the new Senate Office Building and in the White House. He kept 17 staffers hopping.

At 6 feet 3, weighing close to 200 pounds, Johnson has always been supercharged with energy.

Considerate

He has been called self-centered and considerate; a humanitarian and power-hungry; a shrewd opportunist and a political genius; tough and yet vulnerable; vain, friendly, sensitive, flamboyant.

Friends and others who watched him on his rise over the decades agreed that he was just flexible enough, or human enough, to have been all of those things at one time or another.

Johnson once said of himself:

"I am a free man, an American, a United States Senator, and a Democrat, in that order."

"I am also a liberal, a conservative, a Texan, a taxpayer, a rancher, a business man, a consumer, a parent, a voter, and not as young as I used to be nor as old as I expect to be—and I am all those things in no fixed order."

Arthur Edson, Associated Press writer who has specialized on politics and personalities, once commented that a person's opinion of Johnson would be swayed by where that person met him. He wrote, on the basis of personal knowledge of Johnson in all his phases:

"There's Johnson in the Senate, buttonholing a colleague, talking, cajoling, arguing, persuading . . . he usually knows who's for and who's against him on almost every issue, and he quickly moves in and tries to convince those who are not on his side . . ."

No Great Speaker

"Johnson isn't the world's greatest speaker. He is at his best when speaking casually and humorously. He's at his worst when he is reading a carefully prepared text."

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon was once asked about Johnson. He replied, "You should never count Lyndon out . . . he is one of the ablest political craftsmen of our time."

Stark Gray Ambulance Returns Kennedy's Body To Washington

Washington (UPI)—A stark gray Navy ambulance driving through dark November streets bore the body of the slain President back to Washington for the last time Friday night.

Closed in grief behind drawn curtains rode John F. Kennedy's widow, along with a group of his closest friends and associates.

The route travelled from Andrews Air Force Base in nearby Maryland to Bethesda Naval Hospital where the body will be held overnight. Speaker John W. McCormack announced that the dead President be taken to the White House Saturday and then will lie in state in the Capitol for public mourning all day Sunday.

Last Hours Recounted

Dallas, Tex. (AP)—Here is a chronology of President Kennedy's final hours Friday:

—8:45 a.m. The President walked bareheaded and without a coat through a misty rain into a parking lot across the street from Fort Worth's Hotel Texas.

He spoke there to a cheering throng of Democrats who could not get tickets to see him at a breakfast appearance and apologized because Mrs. Kennedy was not with him—that she was "organizing herself—it takes longer."

—9 a.m. The President and Mrs. Kennedy attended the breakfast in the Hotel Texas, sponsored by the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce. Mrs. Kennedy walked in some minutes late and her entrance brought tremendous applause from the 2,500 guests.

Both were presented Texas boots and the President got a Texas hat. He declined to put it on in public, joking that he would wear it at the White House next Monday.

—10:35 a.m. The President and Mrs. Kennedy left the Texas Hotel by auto for Carswell Air Force Base near Fort Worth and their short flight to Dallas.

—11:37 a.m. The presidential plane landed at Dallas' Love Field. Mrs. Kennedy emerged from the plane smiling and shaking hands with airport greeters. She carried a bouquet of red roses. Young men in the crowd shouted "hey, Jackie" and squeezed forward for a closer look.

Several young girls were screaming over Kennedy as he made his way through the crowd. There was no sign of anti-Kennedy sentiment. They left in a motorcade that was to take them over an 11-mile route, including downtown Dallas.

—12:30 p.m. The motorcade approached a triple underpass which feeds into Stemmons Expressway, the 5-lane route to the Dallas Trade Mart where Kennedy was to make a luncheon speech. A series of rifle shots rang out. The President fell face down on the back seat of his car, a bullet in his head. Gov. John Connally slumped at his side, wounded in the back.

Mrs. Kennedy grasped her husband's head. She gasped, "Oh, no!" The motorcade raced to Parkland Hospital near the Trade Mart and Kennedy was taken to the emergency ward, where he received a blood transfusion and then Extreme Unction from Catholic priests.

—1 p.m. The President died.

On arrival at Andrews, the bronze-colored casket of the assassinated chief executive was placed on a lift truck at a plane door by four of Kennedy's aides. Flashes of bright light glittered with painful intensity from floodlights at the mournful scene.

In final salute, an Air Force honor guard snapped to rigid attention and six sailors moved in to carry the coffin to the ambulance.

There was a hush as the casket was brought to the lift truck by Lawrence F. O'Brien, special assistant for legislative affairs; Kenneth O'Donnell, Kennedy's appointment secretary; Dave Powers, the White House receptionist and longtime presidential crony, and Brig. Gen. Godfrey, McHugh, the president's Air Force aide.

Strained

Mrs. Kennedy, strained with grief, was escorted by Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and her husband's naval aide, Capt. Tazewell Shepard. Joining the mourners in the ambulance was Mrs. Evelyn Lincoln, Kennedy's secretary over the years.

The President's body arrived at the Bethesda hospital shortly after 6 p.m. CST.

Before driving to the rear, the hearse paused at the front entrance to the building, where several hundred people were gathered. The crowd stood back in silence.

Details of Marine Corps security troops were posted at the main entrances to the hospital.

Post Mortem
Hospital authorities said they as yet had no orders, but understood a post mortem was to be conducted.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara arrived at the hospital at 8:45 p.m. and joined Mrs. Kennedy and the President's brother in a secluded room of the hospital.

The crowd lingered in the hospital grounds long after the body had been carried into the building.

The hearse moved slowly into the large hospital grounds, at 5:53 p.m. But 20 minutes was consumed in the stop at the front entrance and the drive around the building. Even as the coffin was brought forth in mute evidence, watchers still intoned to each other:

"I still can't believe it."

Texas Governor Is 'Satisfactory'

Dallas, Tex. (AP)—Gov. John Connally of Texas, wounded by the sniper who assassinated President Kennedy, was in stable and satisfactory condition Friday night. He apparently had not learned of the President's death, doctors said.

Dr. Robert W. Shaw, said Connally, who underwent surgery for more than an hour, was "in better spirits." He said he did not anticipate Connally getting any worse, and no further surgery was planned.

Shaw, the attending physician, said the governor was apparently struck by just one bullet that traveled through his chest, hit his wrist and lodged in his thigh.

Connally rode in the same car with Kennedy.

How's Nellie?

"How's Nellie?" Connally asked after coming out of surgery, speaking of his wife. "How are the kids?"

Connally, former secretary of Navy under Kennedy, has been governor of Texas since January, 1962. He resigned as Navy secretary to make the race.

Three doctors were attending Connally Friday night. Earlier, Shaw gave this report:

"The bullet emerged from his chest and struck his wrist and thigh. The thigh wound is trivial."

Chest Damage
"In making a wound in the chest, the fragments from the rib caused considerable tissue damage. It was found there was a tear in a part of the lung and a small hole in the lower lobe."

Shaw said, "From what we know about his condition at the present time, he will completely recover without a disability of any sort."

He estimated that Connally would be in the hospital from "10 to 14 days."

Jacqueline To Remain At Hospital

Washington (AP)—Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy was under her doctor's care Friday night at Bethesda Naval Hospital in suburban Maryland, where she accompanied her husband's body.

Dr. John W. Walsh, Mrs. Kennedy's personal physician, was at Andrews Air Force Base in nearby Maryland to be on hand when the Presidential jet plane landed. He remained at the hospital with Mrs. Kennedy Friday night.

White House spokesmen said Mrs. Kennedy would stay at the hospital overnight but would return to the White House when the President's body is brought there to lie in repose in the East Room.

There was no report on Mrs. Kennedy's condition.

Walsh is the Washington gynecologist who performed the caesarean operation to deliver Mrs. Kennedy's two sons, John Jr., and Patrick Bouvier Kennedy, who was born last Aug. 7, but lived less than two days.

Walsh saw Mrs. Kennedy through the trying days of her infant son's death.

At 10:20 p.m., a White House limousine arrived at Bethesda Naval Hospital and the chauffeur entered and rode an elevator to the 17th floor. He was carrying an overnight bag bearing the initials "JBK" and a makeup case with the name "Mrs. John F. Kennedy."

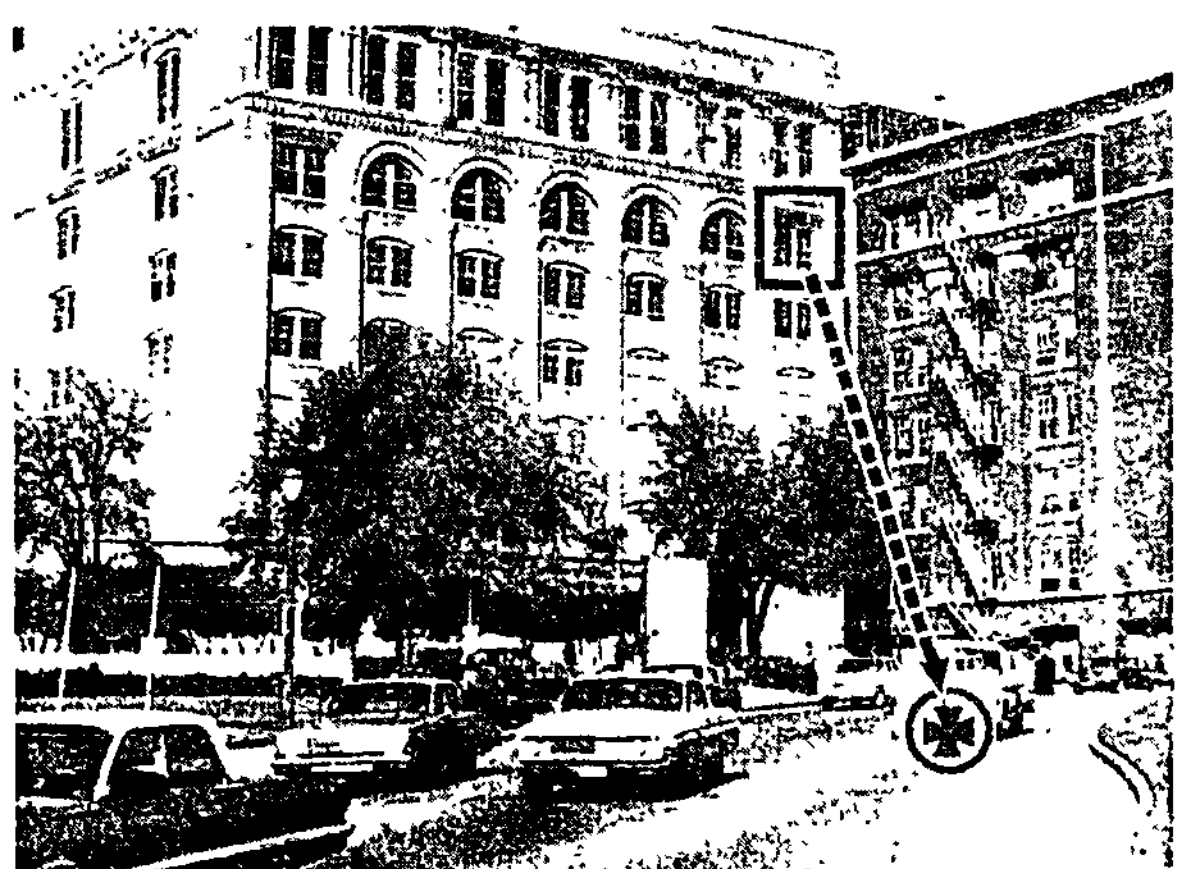

Her two young children, John Jr. and Caroline, who are observing their 3rd and 6th birthdays respectively next week, still were not aware of their father's death Friday night, Kennedy's Assistant Press Secretary Andrew Hatcher said.

The children were taken from the White House about a half hour before the presidential jet plane arrived at Andrews carrying their father's body home to Washington.

"I'm not at liberty to say where they are," Hatcher told reporters.

Mrs. Kennedy, holding tightly to the hand of the President's brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, had accompanied her husband's body from the Maryland airport to Bethesda Naval Hospital.

She was still wearing the bloodstained pink suit that she had on when an assassin's bullet struck her husband mortally as he rode smiling next to her in a Dallas motorcade.

ASSASSINATION SCENE . . . markings show where gunman fired.

Heard Three Shots

(UPI)—This is an eyewitness account of the assassination of the President by a Dallas Times Herald photographer riding in a car close behind the presidential car.)

By Bob Jackson

Dallas (AP)—There were five of us in the car. When we heard the first shot, the President had already turned the corner. We had not made the corner yet. Then we heard two more shots.

As far as I know, three shots were all I heard. I just instinctively looked that way. First, somebody joked about it being a firecracker.

Then, since I was facing the building where the shots were coming from, I just glanced up and saw two colored men in a window straining to look at a window up above them.

As I looked up to the window above, I saw a rifle being pulled back in the window. It might have been resting on the window sill. I didn't even see if it had a scope on it.

It was the second floor down from the top of the building and it was the end window facing Elm Street, the corner window. The President's car was about halfway between Houston Street and the underpass. We were beginning to turn the corner. He (the gunman) had about a 45-degree angle from the building to the President's car.

I looked to my left and I could see both cars speeding off, the President's car and the car behind him carrying the vice president. They disappeared under the underpass.

Then I could see a colored family covering up their child on the grass. A policeman was down on his knee. I couldn't tell if her were hit. I thought the child was dead or something. Then the Negro parents picked up the boy and ran.

As soon as I saw the rifle, I knew someone was trying to kill them, but it never entered my mind that he could be dead. I just couldn't believe it at first.

It's going to give Dallas an awful bad name I think. The general reaction of all the guys around me was that they just couldn't believe a thing like that could happen here.

Funeral Will Be Held Monday

Washington (UPI)—Last rites for President John F. Kennedy will be performed in Washington Monday at a Pontifical Requiem Mass which will be celebrated by Richard Cardinal Cushing, archbishop of Boston.

This was announced by the White House Friday night in a statement which also said that former presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman would arrive in Washington this weekend to join mourning dignitaries.

The slain President's body will lie in repose in the East Room of the White House from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. (EST) Saturday, it was announced. Only the immediate Kennedy family will be present for the first hour.

Dignitaries To Attend

President Lyndon B. Johnson will head a high-ranking group which will view the body in repose between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. Eisenhower will be present at that time, the White House said, as will speaker John W. McCormack and Chief Justice Earl Warren.

The body of Kennedy will lie in state in the rotunda of the Capitol on Sunday and Monday, the White House said. Truman plans to arrive in Washington Sunday.

Former President Herbert Hoover has expressed his regrets that he will be unable to attend, it was announced by the White House. The former Republican president has been ailing.

Cortege To Capitol

Kennedy's body will be moved at that time to St. Matthew's Cathedral, in downtown Washington, for a Pontifical Requiem Mass at noon (EST) which will be celebrated by Cardinal Cushing, Archbishop of Boston.

The public will be permitted to file past the bier in the Rotunda shortly after its arrival and until 9 p.m. on Sunday, the announcement said, and from 9 to 10 a.m. on Monday.

Ceremonies placing the late President's body in state mourning will be attended by members of his family, cabinet and government leaders, members of the Supreme Court, members of Congress and members of the foreign diplomatic corps.

Walsh saw Mrs. Kennedy through the trying days of her infant son's death.

At 10:20 p.m., a White House limousine arrived at Bethesda Naval Hospital and the chauffeur entered and rode an elevator to the 17th floor. He was carrying an overnight bag bearing the initials "JBK" and a makeup case with the name "Mrs. John F. Kennedy."

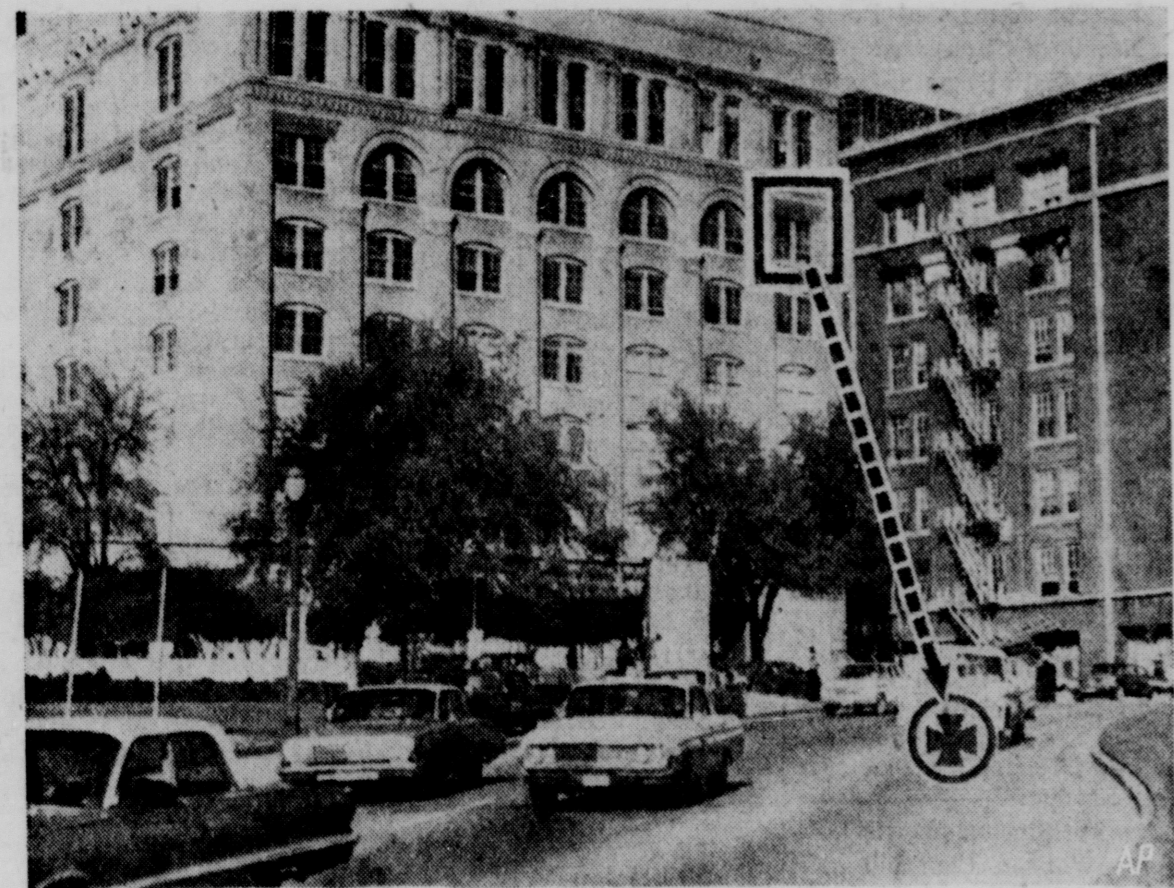

Her two young children, John Jr. and Caroline, who are observing their 3rd and 6th birthdays respectively next week, still were not aware of their father's death Friday night, Kennedy's Assistant Press Secretary Andrew Hatcher said.

The children were taken from the White House about a half hour before the presidential jet plane arrived at Andrews carrying their father's body home to Washington.

"I'm not at liberty to say where they are," Hatcher told reporters.

Mrs. Kennedy, holding tightly to the hand of the President's brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, had accompanied her husband's body from the Maryland airport to Bethesda Naval Hospital.

She was still wearing the bloodstained pink suit that she had on when an assassin's bullet struck her husband mortally as he rode smiling next to her in a Dallas motorcade.

ASSASSINATION SCENE . . . markings show where gunman fired.

Heard Three Shots

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is an eyewitness account of the assassination of the President by a Dallas Times Herald photographer riding in a car close behind the presidential car.)

By Bob Jackson

Dallas (AP)—There were five of us in the car. When we heard the first shot, the President had already turned the corner. We had not made the corner yet. Then we heard two more shots.

As far as I know, three shots were all I heard. I just instinctively looked that way. First, somebody joked about it being a firecracker.

Then, since I was facing the building where the shots were coming from, I just glanced up and saw two colored men in a window straining to look at a window up above them.

As I looked up to the window above, I saw a rifle being pulled back in the window. It might have been resting on the window sill. I didn't even see if it had a scope on it.

It was the second floor down from the top of the building and it was the end window facing Elm Street, the corner window. The President's car was about halfway between Houston Street and the underpass. We were beginning to turn the corner. He (the gunman) had about a 45-degree angle from the building to the President's car.

I looked to my left and I could see both cars speeding off, the President's car and the car behind him carrying the vice president. They disappeared under the underpass.

Then I could see a colored family covering up their child on the grass. A policeman was down on his knee. I couldn't tell if he were hit. I thought the child was dead or something. Then the Negro parents picked up the boy and ran.

As soon as I saw the rifle, I knew someone was trying to kill them, but it never entered my mind that he could be dead. I just couldn't believe it at first.

It's going to give Dallas an awful bad name I think. The general reaction of all the guys around me was that they just couldn't believe a thing like that could happen here.

Funeral Will Be Held Monday

Washington (UPI)—Last rites for President John F. Kennedy will be performed in Washington Monday at a Pontifical Requiem Mass which will be celebrated by Richard Cardinal Cushing, archbishop of Boston.

This was announced by the White House Friday night in a statement which also said that former presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman would arrive in Washington this weekend to join mourning dignitaries.

The slain President's body

will lie in repose in the East Room of the White House from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. (EST) Saturday, it was announced. Only the immediate Kennedy family will be present for the first hour.

Dignitaries To Attend

President Lyndon B. Johnson will head a high-ranking group which will view the body in repose between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. Eisenhower will be present at that time.

The White House said, as will speaker John W. McCormack and Chief Justice Earl Warren.

The body of Kennedy will lie in state in the rotunda of the Capitol on Sunday and Monday, the White House said. Truman plans to arrive in Washington Sunday.

Former President Herbert Hoover has expressed his regrets that he will be unable to attend, it was announced by the White House. The former Republican president has been ailing.

Cortege To Capitol

Kennedy's body will be moved at that time to St. Matthew's Cathedral, in downtown Washington, for a Pontifical Requiem Mass at noon

(EST) which will be celebrated by Cardinal Cushing, Archbishop of Boston.

The public will be permitted to file past the bier in the Rotunda shortly after its arrival and until 9 p.m. on Sunday, the announcement said, and from 9 to 10 a.m. on Monday.

Ceremonies placing the late President's body in state mourning will be attended by members of his family, cabinet and government leaders, members of the Supreme Court, members of Congress and members of the foreign diplomatic corps.

Modern-Day Witchcraft

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

The British government has given left-handed approval to the practice of witchcraft, should there be any in the kingdom who want to practice the art. And apparently there are some who want to so practice as the basis for discussion of the subject is reports that the ancient art has shown up. Actually, what the British government said was that "witchcraft ceased to be a criminal offense in 1735." It is not the government's mind, it was reported, 228 years later, to bring in fresh legislation on the subject.

Some might say that this could bring about a return to witchcraft in some parts of England. The technical error here is whether a people can "go back" to something they have never left.

The fact is that the real essence of witchcraft, or at least a large part of it, has never disappeared from the scene, even the American scene. Witchcraft is largely remembered as the practice by people of certain actions and the use of certain products in such a way as to bring about a desired end. It is a sort of mysterious manner of making things happen that could not otherwise come about.

History is full of tales of thousands of people put to death for the practice of witchcraft and of the many evils of which they were accused. It was believed that witchcraft could do such things as make land barren, cause people to strangle, invoke the wrath of elements and a host of other dreadful happenings.

Witches themselves were credited with great personal powers such as the power to become invisible, to fly, to be in many places at one time, to be born again, to be immune from pain, to be all-knowing, etc. Many early-day religions were heavy with the influence of witchcraft and witches.

It is said, quite correctly, that we do not today believe in witches and witchcraft. There are isolated pockets of the world where civilization is still unknown in which witchcraft is still prominent but it is no longer part of the modern world. And yet, much of what witchcraft really was still is a part of the world. What has never been done away with is the real basis of witchcraft, human fear. This is largely what the witches and others of their kind and of their day lived on. There were good things that could sometimes be done by the witches but they were not done unless certain requirements were met. The requirements were met because the people feared the wrath of the witches if they exerted their independence.

Fear as a human emotion probably will never be eliminated and will go on through generation after generation producing its share of influence upon the world. In Omaha this week we have seen a meeting of governors of Midwest states in which fear has been expressed of the federal government. The attitude has not been confined to Republican governors, either, and nothing has been reported of any Democratic defense of our federal system, despite the fact that it is a Democratic administration in the White House. But will this fear be enough to accomplish an end to its own foundations? Will the growing influence of the federal government be halted as a result of states assuming more responsibilities?

Once again, just as in witchcraft of old, fear alone is a destructive influence and one that can lead to disaster. It is not enough that we have a concern over the role of the federal government. If we intend to do something about this concern, we must pick up where we want the federal government to leave off.

If we are against federal aid to education, we must provide sufficient educational opportunities ourselves but to date we have largely refused to do this. Only when we are placed with our backs against the wall do we open our pocketbooks and put our money on the line for education and even then we do as little as we possibly can.

We constantly express skepticism of government activity in the many welfare areas of our society but what states act in this area? What states would on their own take care of their unemployed, their old, their impoverished and the many others of their citizens who are unable to provide for themselves? We wonder how many states would adopt the reclamation and conservation practices that are in use today without the help of the federal government? Not very many. Most of them would use up their resources and leave nothing but a barren land to future generations.

One leading farm organization in this state has even gone on record as opposed to further reclamation. Imagine that, opposed to the intelligent conservation of our natural resources! No, we have never gotten rid of the basis of witchcraft even though we may have eliminated the art itself. What this basis of fear produced centuries ago is often producing nothing better yet today.

DREW PEARSON

Expecting More TFX Disclosures

Editor's note: While Drew Pearson is in Texas, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is written by his associate, Jack Anderson.

WASHINGTON — It will be interesting to see whether Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., really tries to find out how much Bobby Baker knows about the TFX controversy. The stern Senate investigations chairman has promised to look into published reports that Baker threatened to expose some TFX skulduggery if his own get-rich-quick activities are scrutinized too closely.

Long before the TFX contract was awarded to General Dynamics, the lobbyists and contractors had begun pulling and tugging on every possible political string to land this biggest military contract of the Kennedy administration — $5,600,000,000.

General Dynamics' board chairman, Henry Crown, slipped around Washington buttonholing politicians he knew. One was Lyndon Johnson. Crown, who contributed money to Eisenhower and Nixon in 1952 and 1956 when they were certain to win, hedged his political bets in 1960 by putting money on both sides. He also took pains to put $1,000 behind LBJ's campaign for the Democratic nomination.

The vice president had friends at General Dynamics' Ft. Worth plant and was anxious to have the contract go to Texas.

Meanwhile, Jack Rettallata, vice president of Grumman aircraft, a co-contractor with GD, was also slapping backs and buying drinks for men of influence. Some of the parties took place at Bobby's Quorum Club and Rettallata picked up the tab for at least one private drinking party at the Q Club on Sept. 26, 1962. This was two months before the TFX contract was signed.

It was a joint proposal from General Dynamics and Grumman agreeing to work together on the TFX fighter plane that finally won the contract. In awarding it, the Pentagon's civilian chiefs overruled the military review boards which had unanimously recommended Boeing.

A group of priests at Catholic University, all faculty members with a deep interest in current events, tried for weeks to get Attorney General Robert Kennedy to speak to them. They offered him six suggested dates, all of which he turned down.

In his place, they invited his nemesis, Teamster Boss Jimmy Hoffa, who accepted the invitation and spent much of the time happily castigating Kennedy.

Something To Think About

After a hard and trying week, the breakfast coffee may taste a little flat this morning and the immediate future likewise.

But things do happen in late November and this is the anniversary of several historical events. It is the birth anniversary of George Eliot (real name Mary Ann Evans) who wrote Silas Marner. Like Thalopsis and Ilwatha, Silas Marner was required reading for school children in earlier times. It was about a fellow who went to sea and stayed away too long. When he got back he found out his wife innocently had married someone else. He weighed the situation and decided that his desire for his wife and children had to give way to the stronger case for not breaking up a happy home. Therefore, he just walked away and disappeared somewhere over the horizon. Time marches on. The story is no longer useful. Nowadays the children would go on ADC and Silas would show up in California wearing a flowered shirt, making a pile in real estate.

On this date in 1935 our first China Clipper became airborne and flew mail to Manila, P.I. — a distance of 8,000 miles in 7 days. President F. D. Roosevelt commented, "I thrill at the wonder of it all."

Also in 1863 the Civil War Battle of Lookout Mountain and Missionary Ridge was going on hot and heavy. It was the last day for a large number of young men.

In 1876 Columbia, Princeton and Harvard held a meeting and decided it would be a cozy idea to form a football league. They thought it would improve interest in the game. They thought right.

On the distaff side it is a memorable day because in 1869 women from 21 states got together, heard a stirring talk by Julia Ward Howe (Battle Hymn of the Republic), and decided to go all out for women's suffrage. They won.

Who Is Class B?

Senators Clifford Case, R., N.J., and Maurice Neuberger, D., Ore., recently cosponsored a bill which would require senators to disclose their outside financial interests much in the same way the Senate requires cabinet level appointees but without the demand to dispose of such as might attract a conflict of interest.

This aroused Sen. Everett Dirksen, R., Ill., who vowed he is not about to reduce himself to a Class B citizen.

He added that the dignity and self respect of the senate demand rejection of the measure by a substantial vote. He said further that members of Congress are screened by the electorate and that should be an added test of their fitness.

That is too elementary. The electorate does not investigate. It trusts. There have been instances where that trust has been injured.

As to Class B citizenship, Sen. Dirksen should be requested to explain why the Senate requires both disclosure and divestiture of cabinet nominees. Are they Class B citizens?

The members of Congress have always enjoyed official privileges, and properly. But those privileges were designed to protect the legislative institution so that law making should proceed in fullest nobility, so that each law maker might speak and act from the depths of his mind and conscience without fear of reprisal. They were in nowise designed to serve self interest. Their aim is to preserve the public interest.

Nation's Leaders Mourn

By The Associated Press

The assassination of President Kennedy Friday brought forth an outpouring of grief from men in high office across the land. Lament crossed party lines and differences. Stunned almost into disbelief, they called for prayer.

In the words of Colorado Gov. John Love, a Republican, the President's death does "not call for words, but for sorrow."

Former President Harry S. Truman in Independence, Mo., the unharmed target of an assassination attempt 13 years ago, was too stunned for immediate comment.

In New York, two former presidents, Dwight D. Eisenhower and Herbert Hoover, issued statements of sorrow.

"Shock, Dismay!" "I share the sense of shock and dismay that all Americans feel at the despicable act that resulted in the death of our nation's President," Eisenhower said.

Hoover commented: "He loved America and has given his life for his country. I join our bereaved nation in heartfelt sympathy to Mrs. Kennedy and their two children."

Flags were lowered to half-staff across the nation and business came to a standstill as Americans tried to express their grief.

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who lost the presidency to Kennedy, said: "The assassination of the President is a terrible tragedy for the nation. Mrs. Nixon and I have sent a personal message expressing our deepest sympathy to the members of the family in this hour of sorrow."

"Tragedy For World"

New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, candidate for the Republican nomination for president, described the death of the man he had hoped to oppose as "a shocking and terrible tragedy for the nation and the world."

Rockefeller cancelled a campaign trip to New Hampshire and said, "May God grant strength and guidance to Lyndon Johnson as he assumes his grave responsibilities under these tragic circumstances. The prayers of all of us will be with him."

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., a personal friend of Kennedy despite their divergent political views, said: "It is both shocking and dreadful that a thing like this could happen in a free country. The President's death is a profound loss to the nation and the free world."

Southerners Comment

From two southern governors who bitterly opposed the President on civil rights came expressions of shock and dismay.

Alabama Gov. George Wallace said the assassin "must be filled with universal malice toward all."

He added: "It is hard to believe that anyone would shoot at the President of the United States. It is the same as if they had shot at you and me."

Gov. Ross Barnett of Mississippi sent a telegram to Mrs. Kennedy:

"I am profoundly shocked and deeply distressed at the cowardly act which resulted in the death of President Kennedy. I extend my deepest and most sincere sympathy to you and your children. May God comfort and sustain you in your great loss."

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown sobbed as he said: "One of the great American presidents has died. His death is the furthest sacrifice this man has made to peace and understanding in the world."

In Rome, Francis Cardinal Spellman of the New York described himself as "deeply grieved and shocked" by the death of America's first Roman Catholic president. "My prayers are now for President Kennedy," he said. The Vatican said Pope Paul VI prayed for the President's soul.

News Brings Temporary Standstill

... THEN OFFICIALS REACT TO NEEDS

Washington (AP) — The news of President Kennedy's assassination struck Washington like a bombshell.

Virtually every agency of the federal government came to a temporary standstill as officials and employees high and low reacted in shocked disbelief.

Quickly then the thread was taken up and the things that had to be done were done.

Word flashed out to an airplane over the Pacific recalling six members of the President's Cabinet who were en route from Honolulu to a trade conference in Tokyo.

Acting Secretary of State George W. Ball, whose chief was among those aboard the plane, summoned an emergency meeting of top State Department officials to determine what steps needed to be taken before Secretary Dean Rusk arrived back in Washington.

McCormack Guarded

The Secret Service set up a guard in the office of Speaker of the House John W. McCormack, who is next in the line of presidential succession after the new president, Lyndon B. Johnson.

The 71-year-old McCormack, who like Kennedy is a Massachusetts Democrat and a Roman Catholic, was at lunch in the House restaurant when newsmen told him the President had been shot.

"My God, my God!" he exclaimed. "What are we coming to?"

Almost inaudibly he added: "This is terrible. All I can say is that it is a terrible thing, and all Americans, of all religious faiths, are praying for the President and Gov. Connally."

Later in his office, McCormack composed a statement saying "This is a tragic event... the nation has sustained a staggering loss, the significance of which is stupendous."

Legislators Weep

Some legislators, like Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., broke down and wept.

Others reacted in shocked anger, mixed with grief. "News of this dastardly crime has stunned and shocked the American people and the friends of freedom throughout the world," said Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga. Russell, who as leader of the southern Democrats opposed many of Kennedy's legislative proposals, added:

"The assassin's bullet has stricken a brilliant and dedicated statesman at the very height of his powers."

Senate Democratic leader

Nike Mansfield of Montana said it was "a tragedy for the entire nation," and Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said only an insane mind filled with hate and passion could have cut down "a great leader of the greatest nation on the face of the earth."

House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana termed the assassination "an unspeakable crime against all the people of this country."

"Unimaginable Effect"

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., said "this will have an unimaginable effect upon this country and the world. Much of our thinking will have to be redone."

The Senate adjourned until Monday. By ironic coincidence, the late President's younger brother, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., was in the presiding officer's chair when he received the news.

Another brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, had gone home to McLean, Va. for lunch. He remained there.

World Reaction Shock, Dismay

By The Associated Press

News of President Kennedy's death by an assassin's bullet swept around the world like a shock wave.

In Europe, Africa, Latin America and the Far East, government chiefs and the man in the street expressed dismay.

Europe reacted with momentary disbelief when radio and TV stations broke into programs to announce the President's death. Britons first heard the news when announcers said in somber tones:

"It is with deep regret that we announce the death of President Kennedy."

Sir Winston Mourns

Sir Winston Churchill said the assassination of President Kennedy is a monstrous act which has "taken from us a great statesman and a wise and valiant man."

"The loss to the United States and to the world is incalculable," Sir Winston declared. "Those who come after Mr. Kennedy must strive the more to achieve the ideals of world peace and human happiness and dignity to which his presidency was dedicated."

France's President Charles de Gaulle issued a brief tribute:

"President Kennedy died like a soldier, under fire, for his duty and in the service of his country. In the name of the French people, a friend always of the American people, I salute this great example and this great memory."

In the Soviet Union, Moscow radio broke into a broadcast to announce that the President had been shot. It then began playing funeral music.

Stevenson Comments

Adlai E. Stevenson, chief U.S. delegate at the United Nations said that the tragedy was "beyond comprehension."

"All of us who knew him will bear the grief of his death to the day of ours," said Stevenson. "And all men everywhere who love peace and justice and freedom will bow their heads."

In Moscow, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko telephoned U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler at midnight to express his "shock and greatest sympathy to the American people."

"Official condolences will be conveyed later at the highest level," Gromyko said, obviously meaning Premier Khrushchev.

Ex-Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain said:

"When the news came the whole world was stunned. It seemed impossible, incredible. 'Jack Kennedy was a great president. But he was more than that. He was a great world inspiration.'"

In Paris, the usually gay night clubs and cafes were plunged in gloom. "It is incredible," one waiter said. "I don't want to believe it. It is a joke in bad taste."

News of the death came over the radio in English pubs filled with Friday evening crowds. It left most persons with no thirst for beer.

"Everyone just stopped drinking when it was announced," said Mrs. Breda Harris of the White Swan in London.

INTEGRATION LEADERS FEEL PARTICULAR LOSS

New York (AP) — To those working for a better deal for American Negroes, the death of President Kennedy brought a particular blow.

They saw him as a staunch ally in the cause. Some compared his loss to the assassination in 1865 of Abraham Lincoln, the "Great Emancipator" who brought an end to slavery.

Recalling that historic slaying, A. Philip Randolph, Negro president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters and a leader in the civil rights struggle, called Kennedy, next to Lincoln, the nation's greatest president.

"The second emancipator of black people from the serfdom of racial segregation, has been struck down by an assassin's bullet," he said.

"Face Challenge"

"Negroes face a challenge to rededicate their lives to the complete the unfinished business of American democracy for which two Presidents have died."

Roy Wilkins, president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) said, "We have no doubt that the assassin was motivated by hatred of the President's ideals."

His "consistent commitment and espousal of basic human rights for all earned the undying enmity of fanatics and loathsome bigots," Wilkins said.

James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality—CORE—said, "We believe that this assassination was the result of the President's efforts to bring about a more democratic America."

"We hope that this nation will rededicate itself to those ideals of his. Our prayers go out to Lyndon Johnson in the difficult days ahead."

Expecting More TFX Disclosures

Editor's note: While Drew Pearson is in Texas, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is written by his associate, Jack Anderson.

WASHINGTON — It will be interesting to see whether Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., really tries to find out how much Bobby Baker knows about the TFX controversy. The stern Senate investigations chairman has promised to look into published reports that Baker threatened to expose some TFX skulduggery if his own get-rich-quick activities are scrutinized too closely.

Long before the TFX contract was awarded to General Dynamics, the lobbyists and contractors had begun pulling and tugging on every possible political string to land this biggest military contract of the Kennedy administration — $5,600,000,000.

General Dynamics' board chairman, Henry Crown, slipped around Washington buttonholing politicians he knew. One was Lyndon Johnson. Crown, who contributed money to Eisenhower and Nixon in 1952 and 1956 when they were certain to win, hedged his political bets in 1960 by putting money on both sides. He also took pains to put $1,000 behind LBJ's campaign for the Democratic nomination.

The vice president had friends at General Dynamics' Ft. Worth plant and was anxious to have the contract go to Texas.

Meanwhile, Jack Rettaliata, vice president of Grumman aircraft, a co-contractor with GD, was also slapping backs and buying drinks for men of influence. Some of the parties took place at Bobby's Quorum Club and Rettaliata picked up the tab for at least one private drinking party at the Q Club on Sept. 26, 1962. This was two months before the TFX contract was signed.

It was a joint proposal from General Dynamics and Grumman agreeing to work together on the TFX fighter plane that finally won the contract. In awarding it, the Pentagon's civilian chiefs overruled the military review boards which had unanimously recommended Boeing.

A group of priests at Catholic University, all faculty members with a deep interest in current events, tried for weeks to get Attorney General Robert Kennedy to speak to them. They offered him six suggested dates, all of which he turned down.

In his place, they invited his nemesis, Teamster Boss Jimmy Hoffa, who accepted the invitation and spent much of the time happily castigating Kennedy.

Goldwater No Aid To GOP In Hawaii

HONOLULU — The crowd psychology operating in favor of Sen. Barry Goldwater for president on the mainland does not obtain in this masterpiece of a pluralistic society. Objective opinion is that he could not carry Hawaii and would probably imperil the chances for reelection of the state's senior senator, Republican Hiram Fong.

There is nothing personal in this view. The senator from Arizona, with his states rights views, his inclination to right to work laws and other deeply conservative, nationalist attitudes, does not fit the situation here.

Democrats naturally would be pleased with a Goldwater candidacy but are not really scared of any Republican in sight. Only a recount put the new state in the Kennedy column last time, but he is now believed to be widely popular.

Senator Fong himself has not voiced any apprehensions he may have about his party's choice for the top of the ticket. A Republican leader in Washington has, however, confided to reporters that his Chinese-descended colleague is praying nightly to his ancestors "to let the Goldwater cup pass from his lips."

Prosperity is one reason for the optimism about Democratic chances. Hawaii is enjoying a boom. Not all the old-timers are happy about the tall buildings on Waikiki and the population explosion, but the people are at work.

That is, those not involved in a rough Teamsters strike. One hears less these days about the union here and their tough leadership which so long was offered as an excuse for withholding state-

Hawaii takes itself seriously as an American bastion on the rim of the vast Pacific where so many millions live, including the Red Chinese. Any campaign here must take that into account.

Nation's Leaders Mourn

By The Associated Press

The assassination of President Kennedy Friday brought forth an outpouring of grief from men in high office across the land. Lament crossed party lines and differences.

Stunned almost into disbelief, they called for prayer.

In the words of Colorado Gov. John Love, a Republican, the President's death does "not call for words, but for sorrow."

Former President Harry S. Truman in Independence, Mo., the unharmed target of an assassination attempt 13 years ago, was too stunned for immediate comment.

In New York, two former presidents, Dwight D. Eisenhower and Herbert Hoover, issued statements of sorrow.

"Shock, Dismay!"

"I share the sense of shock and dismay that all Americans feel at the despicable act that resulted in the death of our nation's President," Eisenhower said.

Hoover commented: "He loved America and has given his life for his country. I join our bereaved nation in heartfelt sympathy to Mrs. Kennedy and their two children."

Flags were lowered to half-staff across the nation and business came to a standstill as Americans tried to express their grief.

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who lost the presidency to Kennedy, said: "The assassination of the President is a terrible tragedy for the nation. Mrs. Nixon and I have sent a personal message expressing our deepest sympathy to the members of the family in this hour of sorrow."

"Tragedy For World"

New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, candidate for the Republican nomination for president, described the death of the man he had hoped to oppose as "a shocking and terrible tragedy for the nation and the world."

Rockefeller cancelled a campaign trip to New Hampshire and said, "May God grant strength and guidance to Lyndon Johnson as he assumes his grave responsibilities under these tragic circumstances. The prayers of all of us will be with him."

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., a personal friend of Kennedy despite their divergent political views, said:

"It is both shocking and dreadful that a thing like this could happen in a free country. The President's death is a profound loss to the nation and the free world."

Southerners Comment

From two southern governors who bitterly opposed the President on civil rights came expressions of shock and dismay.

Alabama Gov. George Wallace said the assassin "must be filled with universal malice toward all."

He added: "It is hard to believe that anyone would shoot at the President of the United States. It is the same as if they had shot at you and me."

Gov. Ross Barnett of Mississippi sent a telegram to Mrs. Kennedy:

"I am profoundly shocked and deeply distressed at the cowardly act which resulted in the death of President Kennedy. I extend my deepest and most sincere sympathy to you and your children. May God comfort and sustain you in your great loss."

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown sobbed as he said: "One of the great American presidents has died. His death is the furthestest sacrifice this man has made to peace and understanding in the world."

In Rome, Francis Cardinal Spellman of the New York described himself as "deeply grieved and shocked" by the death of America's first Roman Catholic president. "My prayers are now for President Kennedy," he said. The Vatican said Pope Paul VI prayed for the President's soul.

News Brings Temporary Standstill

... THEN OFFICIALS REACT TO NEEDS

Washington (AP) — The news of President Kennedy's assassination struck Washington like a bombshell.

Virtually every agency of the federal government came to a temporary standstill as officials and employees high and low reacted in shocked disbelief.

Quickly then the thread was taken up and the things that had to be done were done.

Word flashed out to an airplane over the Pacific recalling six members of the President's Cabinet who were en route from Honolulu to a trade conference in Tokyo.

Acting Secretary of State George W. Ball, whose chief was among those aboard the plane, summoned an emergency meeting of top State Department officials to determine what steps needed to be taken before Secretary Dean Rusk arrived back in Washington.

McCormack Guarded

The Secret Service set up a guard in the office of Speaker of the House John W. McCormack, who is next in the line of presidential succession after the new president, Lyndon B. Johnson.

The 71-year-old McCormack, who like Kennedy is a Massachusetts Democrat and a Roman Catholic, was at lunch in the House restaurant when newsmen told him the President had been shot.

"My God, my God!" he exclaimed. "What are we coming to?"

Almost inaudibly he added: "This is terrible. All I can say is that it is a terrible thing, and all Americans, of all religious faiths, are praying for the President and Gov. Connally."

Later in his office, McCormack composed a statement saying "This is a tragic event... the nation has sustained a staggering loss, the significance of which is stupendous."

Legislators Weep

Some legislators, like Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., broke down and wept.

Others reacted in shocked anger, mixed with grief. "News of this dastardly crime has stunned and shocked the American people and the friends of freedom throughout the world," said Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga. Russell, who as leader of the southern Democrats opposed many of Kennedy's legislative proposals, added:

"The assassin's bullet has stricken a brilliant and dedicated statesman at the very height of his powers."

Senate Democratic leader

Mike Mansfield of Montana said it was "a tragedy for the entire nation," and Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said only an insane mind filled with hate and passion could have cut down "a great leader of the greatest nation on the face of the earth."

House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana termed the assassination "an unspeakable crime against all the people of this country."

'Unimaginable Effect'

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., said "this will have an unimaginable effect upon this country and the world. Much of our thinking will have to be redone."

The Senate adjourned until Monday. By ironic coincidence, the late President's younger brother, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., was in the presiding officer's chair when he received the news.

Another brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, had gone home to McLean, Va. for lunch. He remained there.

World Reaction Shock, Dismay

By The Associated Press

News of President Kennedy's death by an assassin's bullet swept around the world like a shock wave.

In Europe, Africa, Latin America and the Far East, government chiefs and the man in the street expressed dismay.

Europe reacted with momentary disbelief when radio and TV stations broke into programs to announce the President's death. Britons first heard the news when announcers said in somber tones:

"It is with deep regret that we announce the death of President Kennedy."

Sir Winston Mourns

Sir Winston Churchill said the assassination of President Kennedy is a monstrous act which has "taken from us a great statesman and a wise and valiant man."

"The loss to the United States and to the world is incalculable," Sir Winston declared. "Those who come after Mr. Kennedy must strive the more to achieve the ideals of world peace and human happiness and dignity to which his presidency was dedicated."

France's President Charles de Gaulle issued a brief tribute:

"President Kennedy died like a soldier, under fire, for his duty and in the service of his country. In the name of the French people, a friend always of the American people, I salute this great example and this great memory."

In the Soviet Union, Moscow radio broke into a broadcast to announce that the President had been shot. It then began playing funeral music.

Stevenson Comments

Adlai E. Stevenson, chief U.S. delegate at the United Nations said that the tragedy was "beyond comprehension."

"All of us who knew him will bear the grief of his death to the day of ours," said Stevenson. "And all men everywhere who love peace and justice and freedom will bow their heads."

In Moscow, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko telephoned U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler at midnight to express his "shock and greatest sympathy to the American people."

"Official condolences will be conveyed later at the highest level," Gromyko said, obviously meaning Premier Khrushchev.

Integration Leaders

New York (AP) — To those working for a better deal for American Negroes, the death of President Kennedy brought a particular blow.

They saw him as a staunch ally in the cause. Some compared his loss to the assassination in 1865 of Abraham Lincoln, the "Great Emancipator" who brought an end to slavery.

Recalling that historic slaying, A. Philip Randolph, Negro president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters and a leader in the civil rights struggle, called Kennedy, next to Lincoln, the nation's greatest president.

"The second emancipator of black people from the serfdom of racial segregation, has been struck down by an assassin's bullet," he said.

'Face Challenge'

"Negroes face a challenge to rededicate their lives to complete the unfinished business of American democracy for which two Presidents have died."

Roy Wilkins, president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) said, "we have no doubt that the assassin was motivated by hatred of the President's ideals."

His "consistent commitment and espousal of basic human rights for all earned the undying enmity of fanatics and loathsome bigots," Wilkins said.

James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality—CORE—said, "We believe that this assassination was the result of the President's efforts to bring about a more democratic America."

"We hope that this nation will rededicate itself to those ideals of his. Our prayers go out to Lyndon Johnson in the difficult days ahead."

Be Ye Thankful

The human is at his best when he prays . . . when he reaches up to the Divine. That's when time becomes part of eternity. As when the pilgrims were struggling to make a go of it and even more so, we need to pause, take stock and thank God. Gratitude is a high virtue. Our cause to praise God is great. Our fathers bequeathed us rich land, good example and sustaining ideals. We must not inherit one without the other. The generous harvest of every year is ours and His. And His is the larger part for God has always been at work. What have we done to merit such blessing? We should join the call to worship this Thanksgiving Day, in the church of our choice . . . Consider why we should prosper as no other people on earth, fall on our knees and speak loud our thanks to the God of all. Your own soul will be aglow and your Thanksgiving dinner will have more taste if you will first remember Him, and if you will feed and clothe some other person, in His Name. This stimulating fellowship with God and our fellows could make this our greatest Thanksgiving Day. Then, "Come, ye Thankful people, come, and raise the song of Thanksgiving."

Lyndon Johnson 1st 'Rebel' Since Andrew Johnson

By The Associated Press

Lyndon B. Johnson was the first southerner to become president of the United States since Andrew Johnson succeeded to the office on April 15, 1865—after the assassination of Abraham Lincoln.

Andrew Johnson, who was a native of North Carolina and a Democrat, was 56 when Lincoln fell victim of a bullet fired by John Wilkes Booth.

Lyndon Johnson, a Democrat from Texas, is 55.

Kiwanis World Head Issues Call For Personal Service

Kiwanis International President Charles A. Swain issued a call for personal service to Kiwanis Club members in the Lincoln area Friday.

"We Kiwanians," Swain said at the special banquet honoring the Kiwanis International head, "have a common heritage to acknowledge and support and, at the same time, we face a real challenge to expand this heritage by precept and example."

Personal service must be given to God, the world, the individual, youth and to each citizen, he said.

"We need manpower," said the Cape May, N.J. businessman, "and secondly we need to give more of ourselves through personal service to Kiwanis."

The truly great reason for Kiwanis is to give "of our time and service, and ourselves, to help the cause of human happiness and peace, progress and understanding,"
he said.

A graduate of Carnegie
Tech and active in business, civic and church affairs in Cape May for many years,
Swain has been a Kiwanis member for 36 years.

Legislature Ends Longest Special Session

Interest Bill, Budget OK'd

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature early Saturday passed its last two bills, then adjourned the longest special session in the history of the Unicameral.

Adjournment came in the early morning hours on the 24th legislative day.

Final approval was given LB11, the new three-tiered interest structure, and LB7, the omnibus budget bill.

First, however, senators stood in a moment of silent respect for President Kennedy.

"Tonight as a nation, we sorrow," Sen. T. C. Reeves of Central City declared, in offering the opening prayer. "Take our hand, O God."

LB7 was approved on a 41-0 count.

LB11 cleared its final test on a 37-4 vote, with opposition only from Sens. Cecil Craft of North Platte, M. M. Forrester of Anselmo, F. O. Gottschalk of Columbus and George Syas of Omaha.

Three Rates

LB11, which is scheduled to take effect on Dec. 16, enacts three interest rates: the 9% usury limit, a new 12% maximum for time-sales and installment loans, and a pure small loan act with a limitation of $1,500 and rates up to 30%.

LB17 corrected a number of oversights associated with the 1963-65 appropriations act passed by the regular session.

Principal among the provisions:

Administrative funds have been provided to assure early implementation of the Kerr-Mills medical care program.

(In correlation with another measure, LB20, future funding of Kerr-Mills has been provided through establishment of a Medical Care for the Aged Fund to be financed through a $2 increase in the head tax.)

Driver Ed Provided

Passage of LB7 also has assured that a program of driver education can be instituted in Nebraska's public schools at the beginning of the new year.

Also provided were funds to pay for completion of three murals adorning the North Vestibule of the Capitol; an increase in funds for Services for the Visually Impaired to expand its vending station and home manufacturing programs, and an additional appropriation was made to the Department of Motor Vehicles to take over some fee collection services formerly under the Department of Agriculture.

Through related bills, the Legislature has appropriated some $34,000 to complete payments to the University of Nebraska for a vegetable research project; appropriated $25,000 to pay expenses of the special session, and $3,500 to pay for bill drafting services for the session.

STATEHOUSE MOURNS... Morrison addresses special meeting of State Legislature.

Gov. Morrison Eulogizes JFK

Officers and employees of state government gathered quietly in the West Senate Chamber at 4 p.m. Friday to hear a eulogy of the late President John F. Kennedy delivered by Gov. Frank B. Morrison.

The governor had sent word from Omaha, where he was attending the Midwest Governors' Conference, that he wanted the Legislature to assemble informally at that hour—and hundreds of Statehouse employees joined the lawmakers in a hushed atmosphere to hear his words.

Gov. Morrison recalled that it was nearly 100 years ago that another President, Abraham Lincoln, "gave his life because of his dedication to the great principle on which our nation was founded—that all men are created equal."

"Dedicated to Principle"

"Today... another great President has given his life because he was dedicated to that same principle—that all men are created equal.

"It behooves all of us on this tragic day to reorient ourselves to the principles on which this government was founded," Morrison continued.

Noting that President Kennedy "all but gave his life in service of his country during a time of war," the governor said, "today he gave his last full measure of devotion."

Morrison referred to the approaching Christmas season and called upon his audience "to focus on the principles of the Architect of the Faith to which many of us cling."

Decries Hatred

The governor decried the "hatred of fanaticism," and denounced "excessive partisanship" with the plea, "I hope that never will be said of this body."

An invocation was delivered by Msgr. John Flynn of St. Mary's Cathedral.

"O God," the monsignor said, "there is unspeakable, silent, indescribable grief occasioned throughout this great land by the sad death of our beloved President, John F. Kennedy."

"We know of his wonderful career, his keen, well-balanced mind, his leadership as President, his loyalty to the principles of democracy, justice and truth, his sterling manhood, his noble qualities, his self-sacrificing and devoted efforts for peace and good will among all peoples.

Eternal Sleep

"Not many hours ago, health and vigor were mitered on the brow of President Kennedy. His intellect was bright and full of beaming hope. The fullness of life actuated his whole personality... and at this moment he has been lulled as a victim of assassination into the eternal sleep of death."

"While our thoughts go out in tender sympathetic emotion to his family and all our fellow citizens from end to end of this land, we pray that God will guide the ship of state, that He will inspire and strengthen our great leaders and especially our new President Johnson to lead us with undaunted faith, renewed hope and never-failing loyalty to the traditions and principles of our democracy."

Foundation Set

Ceneva (A) — Austrian philanthropist Hans Deutsch has established a European foundation offering an annual award of $11,587 to writers, painters or philosophers who best express the idea of a European cultural and political community.

Nebraskans of both parties Friday joined hands and hearts in tribute to their fallen President.

"The great good of this man will not be interred," Democratic National Committeeman Bernard Boyle of Omaha said.

"His love for equal justice for all mankind, which brought him death, will breathe the soul of unswerving purpose into this nation's tomorrow that will permit no retreat from President Kennedy's goals."

"The fanatics who whipped the flames of passion into an assassin's bullet are subject to a stern accounting and will have no place in the respect of men."

Belongs to the Ages

"President Kennedy belongs to Americans of the ages who have loved their country and who have bled for it. Every citizen should pray for the President. Every citizen must pray for the nation."

Democratic National Committeewoman Maurine Biegert of Shickley found words "inadequate to describe the emotion which the entire nation is experiencing... Our hearts go out to Mrs. Kennedy and her children and the entire Kennedy family in this time of trial and sorrow."

Mrs. Biegert added, "No man could have given more of himself to the service of his country."

Vigorous Spirit

"Nebraskans and Americans everywhere must not let the President's sacrifice be in vain. We will long remember his vigorous spirit in furthering the cause of justice and freedom and peace in our time."

Fred Seaton of Hastings, former cabinet officer in the Eisenhower administration, declared that "the U.S. and the world have lost one of our greatest leaders."

Regardless of party politics, Seaton said, "It is incumbent on every American to swing into support of President Johnson, particularly in view of the gravity of the world situation."

"Halt Partisanship"

"If I had the power, I would call a halt to partisan politics in this transition period."

Seaton said he was "terribly shocked by this tragedy."

Val Peterson of Hastings, a former U.S. ambassador to Denmark during the Eisenhower years, said the assassination is "unbelievably tragic."

"It can be nothing but the work of a madman," Peterson said. "It is hard to believe that things like this can happen in a country in which we pride ourselves upon being advanced."

Greatest Tragedy

Republican State Chairman Robert Denney of Fairbury described the President's murder as "the greatest tragedy which has ever happened to the American people."

Denney said he was "just sick" at the news.

"A man dedicates his life to public service, and then is cut down by a madman. It is a terrible blot on American democracy."

Shame

"The President and his family lived their lives in a glass bowl for the sake of this country. We should all bow our heads in shame."

Lt. Gov. Dwight Burney, also a Republican, said he was "deeply shocked" by the tragic news.

Democratic State Chairman Russell Hanson of Newcastle was in Arlington, Va., and could not be reached for comment.

Council Bluffs Crash Claims 29-Year-Old

Council Bluffs (A) — John Frederick White, 29, of Council Bluffs was killed Friday night and his mother seriously injured in a two-car collision here.

The mother, Mrs. Juanita White, 60, was listed in fairly good condition at a hospital.

The driver of the other car, Jess Tubbs, 40, of Council Bluffs was treated for minor injuries and released.

Authorities said Tubbs tried to pass the White car and struck the left rear fender, causing the White car to veer off and strike a utility pole. The Tubbs car overturned and skidded 300 feet on its top, then caught fire.

Police said Tubbs was booked on an open charge pending investigation of the accident.

Ruhter Selected

Minden — Glenn Ruhter is the new president of the Minden Chamber of Commerce, succeeding A. C. Hove Jr. Bob Madsen was named vice president and Jack Craig, treasurer.

Hauser Named Platte Supervisor

Columbus (A) — The Platte County Board of Supervisors has appointed Raymond M. Hauser as county assessor succeeding LeRoy Schumacher, who has resigned effective Jan. 1 to enter private business.

Hauser is a native of Platte County and for the last 26 years has been zone manager of the International Harvester Company. Prior to that he was a special examiner for the state banking department.

Schumacher has just concluded a term as president of the Nebraska County Assessors' Association.

Missouri Begins Seasonal Drop

Omaha (A) — The Missouri River began its seasonal drop below Gavins Point Dam on Friday as scheduled, the Army Engineers announced.

Current navigable levels will be reduced to winter depths over a week's time starting at Yankton, S.D., where the stage will be lowered about 3½ feet.

Other reductions and their dates are: Sioux City, Nov. 23, 6 feet; Omaha, Nov. 25, 4½ feet; Nebraska City, Nov. 25, 5 feet; and Kansas City, Nov. 28, 3 feet.

Housing Grants OK'd For Fairbury, Neligh

Washington (A) — The Public Housing Administration announced grants to Fairbury and Neligh in Nebraska.

Fairbury was given $12,000 for planning 60 low-rent homes and Neligh was given $8,000 for planning 40 such homes.

"Today... another great President has given his life because he was dedicated to that same principle—that all men are created equal.

"It behooves all of us on this tragic day to reorient ourselves to the principles on which this government was founded," Morrison continued.

Noting that President Kennedy "all but gave his life in service of his country during a time of war," the governor said, "today he gave his last full measure of devotion."

Morrison referred to the approaching Christmas season and called upon his audience "to focus on the principles of the Architect of the Faith to which many of us cling."

Decries Hatred

The governor decried the "hatred of fanaticism," and denounced "excessive partisanship" with the plea, "I hope that never will be said of this body."

An invocation was delivered by Msgr. John Flynn of St. Mary's Cathedral.

"O God," the monsignor said, "there is unspeakable, silent, indescribable grief occasioned throughout this great land by the sad death of our beloved President, John F. Kennedy."

"We know of his wonderful career, his keen, well-balanced mind, his leadership as President, his loyalty to the principles of democracy, justice and truth, his sterling manhood, his noble qualities, his self-sacrificing and devoted efforts for peace and good will among all peoples.

Eternal Sleep

"Not many hours ago, health and vigor were mitered on the brow of President Kennedy. His intellect was bright and full of beaming hope. The fullness of life actuated his whole personality... and at this moment he has been lulled as a victim of assassination into the eternal sleep of death."

"While our thoughts go out in tender sympathetic emotion to his family and all our fellow citizens from end to end of this land, we pray that God will guide the ship of state, that He will inspire and strengthen our great leaders and especially our new President Johnson to lead us with undaunted faith, renewed hope and never-failing loyalty to the traditions and principles of our democracy."

Council Bluffs Crash Claims 29-Year-Old

Council Bluffs (P) — John Frederick White, 29, of Council Bluffs was killed Friday night and his mother seriously injured in a two-car collision here.

The mother, Mrs. Juanita White, 60, was listed in fairly good condition at a hospital.

The driver of the other car, Jess Tubbs, 40, of Council Bluffs was treated for minor injuries and released.

Authorities said Tubbs tried to pass the White car and struck the left rear fender, causing the White car to veer off and strike a utility pole. The Tubbs car overturned and skidded 300 feet on its top, then caught fire.

Police said Tubbs was booked on an open charge pending investigation of the accident.

Hearts, Hands Joined In Tribute

Nebraskans of both parties Friday joined hands and hearts in tribute to their fallen President.

"The great good of this man will not be interred," Democratic National Committeeman Bernard Boyle of Omaha said.

"His love for equal justice for all mankind, which brought him death, will breathe the soul of unswerving purpose into this nation's tomorrow that will permit no retreat from President Kennedy's goals."

"The fanatics who whipped the flames of passion into an assassin's bullet are subject to a stern accounting and will have no place in the respect of men."

Belongs to the Ages

"President Kennedy belongs to Americans of the ages who have loved their country and who have bled for it. Every citizen should pray for the President. Every citizen must pray for the nation."

Democratic National Committeewoman Maurine Biegert of Shickley found words "inadequate to describe the emotion which the entire nation is experiencing... Our hearts go out to Mrs. Kennedy and her children and the entire Kennedy family in this time of trial and sorrow."

Mrs. Biegert added, "No man could have given more of himself to the service of his country."

Vigorous Spirit

"Nebraskans and Americans everywhere must not let the President's sacrifice be in vain. We will long remember his vigorous spirit in furthering the cause of justice and freedom and peace in our time."

Regardless of party politics, Seaton said, "it is incumbent on every American to swing into support of President Johnson, particularly in view of the gravity of the world situation."

Return Indictment Against Gitschel In Extortion Case

Omaha (P) — A federal grand jury returned an indictment Friday against 21-year-old Werner Gitschel of Scottsbluff who is charged with attempting to extort money from state Sen. Terry Carpenter.

U.S. District Atty. Theodore Richling said Gitschel also attempted to extort money from Stanley Smith and Henry Schmode, Scottsbluff businessmen.

The four-count indictment charged that Gitschel sent Carpenter a letter on Aug. 21 demanding $2,500 under threat of death. Gitschel also was charged with sending Smith two letters demanding $1,500 under threat of injury to Smith and Mrs. Smith and one letter to Schmode demanding the same amount with the same threat attached.

In the letter to Carpenter, the senator was told to leave the money at the gravesite of a Scottsbluff pioneer near railroad tracks. He was to bury the money and mark the site.

Carpenter promptly notified federal authorities who told Carpenter to appear to carry out the instructions by taking an empty box to the gravesite. Gitschel was arrested when he appeared.

to Denmark during the Eisenhower years, said the assassination is "unbelievably tragic."

It "can be nothing but the work of a madman," Peterson said. "It is hard to believe that things like this can happen in a country in which we pride ourselves upon being advanced."

Greatest Tragedy

Republican State Chairman Robert Denney of Fairbury described the President's murder as "the greatest tragedy which has ever happened to the American people."

Denney said he was "just sick" at the news.

Shame

"The President and his family lived their lives in a glass bowl for the sake of this country. We should all bow our heads in shame."

Lt. Gov. Dwight Burney, also a Republican, said he was "deeply shocked" by the tragic news.

Democratic State Chairman Russell Hanson of Newcastle was in Arlington, Va., and could not be reached for comment.

Retirees Provide Sympathetic Ears For Elders' Problems

By ROBERT PETERSON

Older people love to talk. They also need to talk, particularly when they live alone and have no one to share their problems and frustrations.

But to whom can they talk? Their children live elsewhere. Their neighbors aren't interested. Their acquaintances have their own problems. Their doctor is too busy. Their minister hasn't the time. And they can't afford and don't need a psychiatrist.

The need of folks along in years to talk with someone sympathetic and trustworthy is universal. Yet the solution to the problem of finding suitable listeners with plenty of time remains generally unsolved.

About the only person in the nation who is doing something practical about meeting the need is the Rev. Canon Herbert Lazenby of Trinity Episcopal Church here.

"We're using retired people as counselors," said Canon Lazenby, a blue-eyed, vigorous young cleric. "The need became apparent to me two years ago. I found that neither my associate nor I could spend as much time as we might have liked with the parish members, particularly the older ones who would come in and want to talk."

"One very busy day an old gentleman popped into my office and wanted to tell me about his grandchildren and discuss the pros and cons of staying in his home or moving to a residence for elders."

"In the outer office I noted an ex-teacher waiting to see me. She was a faithful parishioner with a splendid mind and certainly the background and ability to do routine counseling."

"So I excused myself and asked if she'd mind taking an office down the hall and 'just talk' with my caller. She was delighted, and so was the old gentleman when I explained that she was one of my 'assistants' and would be able to talk with him at length."

"Today I have six such assistants on my staff—all retired parishioners whom I know to be capable and trustworthy," continued Canon Lazenby who is also a social worker and who trains and supervises each assistant. "Although I had thought we would serve only parish members, we now have older people coming in from all over town. Even doctors refer patients to us who have no organic or psychiatric problems but simply a need to talk."

"I see each new person who comes in, and if his problem seems routine—as 95% of them do—I assign him to an assistant. If special counseling needs are indicated we refer him to the appropriate community agency."

"We get some criticism from certain professionals who contend all counseling should be done by people who hold appropriate degrees and who charge for their services."

But I'm adamant in feeling that a mature, well-adjusted person with common sense and natural gifts as a listener can deal effectively with the average person."

It seems to me that Canon Lazenby has launched a significant development in geriatrics. Let's hope ministers everywhere begin utilizing talents of competent retirees in their flocks by bringing them in as lay assistants and making them available to those who want and need to talk.

If you would like a booklet "Starting a Retiree Club for Older People" write to this column c/o The Lincoln Star enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope and 10 cents to cover handling costs.

Thieves Get Furs

London (AP)—Thieves cut a hole through the ceiling of a fur shop during the night and escaped with mink, sable and other coats valued by the store at 40,000 pounds ($12,000). The raiders operated from vacant premises on the floor above the shop.

Parker Case Court Transcript Is Filed With Supreme Court

Convicted wife-slayer Darrell Parker Friday filed a transcript of the Lancaster County District Court proceedings early this fall which resulted in a denial of his petition for retrial with the Nebraska Supreme Court.

On Oct. 24 Parker, 31, appealed the district court ruling to the Supreme Court. District Court Judge John Pook on Sept. 27 dismissed Parker's bid for a new trial.

Parker was found guilty in 1956 of slaying his pretty wife, Nancy, in their park cottage here. The former city forester signed, but later repudiated a confession to the murder. He was sentenced to life in the State Penitentiary.

Parker listed 22 allegations of error as reason why he should be granted a new trial.

Among the 22 is one that the district court erred in excluding alleged evidence that would have proven Mrs. Parker was actually slain by Wesley Peery, a former Lincoln resident now serving a 30 to 75 years sentence in the Ohio Penitentiary.

Mrs. Parker was killed on Dec. 13, 1955. Her husband admitted the murder several days after her funeral. But he later claimed the confession was forced out of him by John Reid of Chicago, Ill., a lie detector expert.

Dedication Asked At Service Here

Protestants Hold Joint Service; Catholics Have Special Rites

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Americans must again "dedicate themselves to the unfinished task remaining," Protestants from all Lincoln denominations were told Friday night at a community memorial service for President Kennedy.

Mourning the death of a leader and loved one, hundreds—primarily young people—crowded into the St. Paul Methodist Church sanctuary.

Governor Frank Morrison referred to Abraham Lincoln's famed "Gettysburg Address," saying:

"Tonight, almost 100 years later, we gather in this place of worship to again dedicate ourselves to the unfinished task remaining before us that others thus far have so nobly advanced."

'No Unkind Word'

The governor, grief-stricken, noted that the late President "at no time regardless of pressure or vicious abuse heaped upon him, did he ever say one unkind word about any man or woman anywhere."

Emphasizing that every citizen must rid themselves of hatred and prejudices against fellow-man, Gov. Morrison said:

"It doesn't make much difference who pulled the trigger, but all of us who have held hatred or prejudice against our fellow man helped pull that trigger."

Dr. Kenneth W. Copeland, bishop of the Nebraska Council of Methodist Churches, again challenged Americans with words from the late President's inaugural address, "Not what the nation can do for me, but what I can do for the nation."

"We know what we can do," the bishop said, "We can rid our lives of prejudices, hatreds and greed.

"Reform doesn't begin in Washington—it begins in my street, in my home and in my heart," Bishop Copeland said.

Forgiveness Asked

He asked that God forgive America "for allowing situations to exist which have caused Negroes to be killed in churches, law enforcement officers to be shot down and our President to be assassinated."

Americans, stunned by the death of the youngest president in nation's history, he said, ask as Jesus Christ asked on the cross, "My God, My God, Why?"

"This tragedy is not God's will. John Fitzgerald Kennedy did not die because God designed it; God does design his will in tragedy, and it is up to us to find that will."

Pray For Johnson

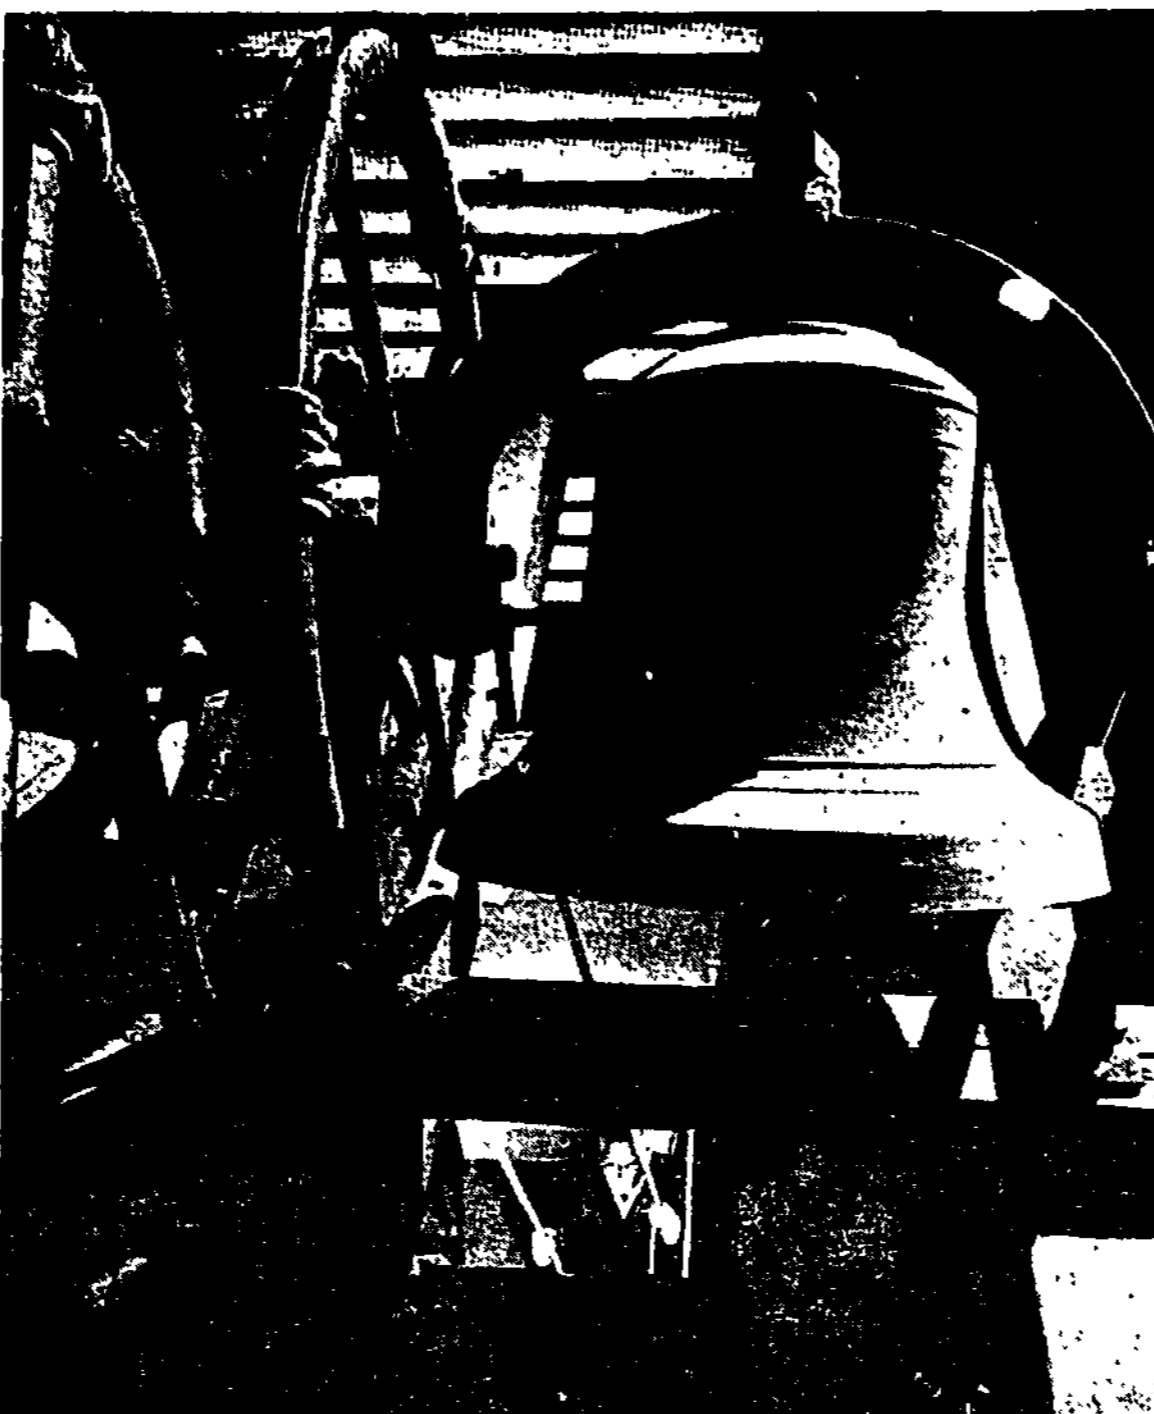

Prayers went out for the new president—Lyndon Johnson—asking that "God's holy spirit guide him and give him the strength he needs in the responsibility so tragically thrust upon him."

All Catholic churches in Lincoln held rosaries for the President Friday night, and a Requiem Mass will be said Monday noon at St. Mary's Cathedral.

Masses will also be said in all churches Monday and Tuesday, and special prayers for the late President will be said in regular Sunday morning masses.

University of Nebraska Catholic students paid tribute to the late president at a special memorial mass Friday afternoon at St. Thomas Chapel on the campus.

Bishop Copeland issued a plea to all Methodist churches in the state to conduct special prayers Sunday "for the bereaved family of President Kennedy, the new Chief Executive Lyndon B. Johnson, and the spiritual solidarity of the American people."

Bells Ring For President

Lincoln churchbells rang throughout the city Friday in memory of assassinated President John F. Kennedy.

The bells of all churches pealed in unison at 6 p.m. at the request of Mayor Dean Petersen.

Downtown Lincoln was flooded with the music of the McKinley Memorial Bells at St. Paul Methodist Church, 12th and M.

The bells, named for assassinated President William McKinley, were purchased in 1902 by schoolchildren. Earlier Friday, shortly after the announcement of the death of President Kennedy, the bells tolled 46 times, once for each year of his life.

The Lincoln Council of Churches also held a Memorial Service open to the public at St. Paul Church at 8 p.m. Friday.

Mayor Expresses City's Sympathy

Mayor Dean H. Petersen said, "I am indeed sorry to hear of the evil, premeditated attack on President John F. Kennedy and to learn of his death."

"The sympathy and prayers of the people of Lincoln are with his family and with him."

"We sincerely hope his attackers will be brought to justice."

Court Adjourns

Municipal Court Judge Richard O. Johnson after hearing of the death of the President announced no cases would be tried Friday afternoon and said "I refuse to impose penalties during a time of national sorrow."

640 Mead Acres To Go To State

A total of 640 acres of land at the old Mead Ordnance Plant site is scheduled to be turned over to the state of Nebraska for use by the Department of Public Institutions, it was learned Friday.

Institutions Director George Morris said the land will be used as an agricultural education center in vegetable farm training.

Participants in the program will be patients or inmates from any of the institutions who have an interest in such training and the ability to do it, Morris said.

The program will consist of vocational classes accredited by the Department of Education, and the food produced from the farming will be used in the institutions which will make the program self-supporting, the director explained.

In addition to its rehabilitation qualities for institution inmates, the program will provide an employment pool for a predicted vegetable growing agricultural industry in Nebraska's future.

The land includes two buildings which Morris said will fill the structural needs for the program.

One is a dormitory area capable of housing 60 persons. The other, which formerly housed generators, will be used for equipment storage. The director said he hopes to get the production of vegetables started in the 1964 growing season, even if only on a limited scale.

Dedication Asked At Service Here

Protestants Hold Joint Service; Catholics Have Special Rites

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Americans must again "dedicate themselves to the unfinished task remaining." Protestants from all Lincoln denominations were told Friday night at a community memorial service for President Kennedy.

Mourning the death of a leader and loved one, hundreds—primarily young people—crowded into the St. Paul Methodist Church sanctuary.

Governor Frank Morrison referred to Abraham Lincoln's famed "Gettysburg Address," saying:

"Tonight, almost 100 years later, we gather in this place of worship to again dedicate ourselves to the unfinished task remaining before us that others thus far have so nobly advanced."

'No Unkind Word'

The governor, grief-stricken, noted that the late President "at no time regardless of pressure or vicious abuse heaped upon him, did he ever say one unkind word about any man or woman anywhere."

Emphasizing that every citizen must rid themselves of hatred and prejudices against fellow-man, Gov. Morrison said:

"It doesn't make much difference who pulled the trigger, but all of us who have held hatred or prejudice against our fellow man helped pull that trigger."

Dr. Kenneth W. Copeland, bishop of the Nebraska Council of Methodist Churches, again challenged Americans with words from the late President's inaugural address, "Not what the nation can do for me, but what I can do for the nation."

"We know what we can do," the bishop said. "We can rid our lives of prejudices, hatreds and greed.

"Reform doesn't begin in Washington—it begins in my street, in my home and in my heart," Bishop Copeland said.

Forgiveness Asked

He asked that God forgive America "for allowing situations to exist which have caused Negroes to be killed in churches, law enforcement officers to be shot down and our President to be assassinated."

Americans, stunned by the death of the youngest president in nation's history, he said, ask as Jesus Christ asked on the cross, "My God, My God, Why?"

"This tragedy is not God's will. John Fitzgerald Kennedy did not die because God designed it; God does design his will in tragedy, and it is up to us to find that will."

Pray For Johnson

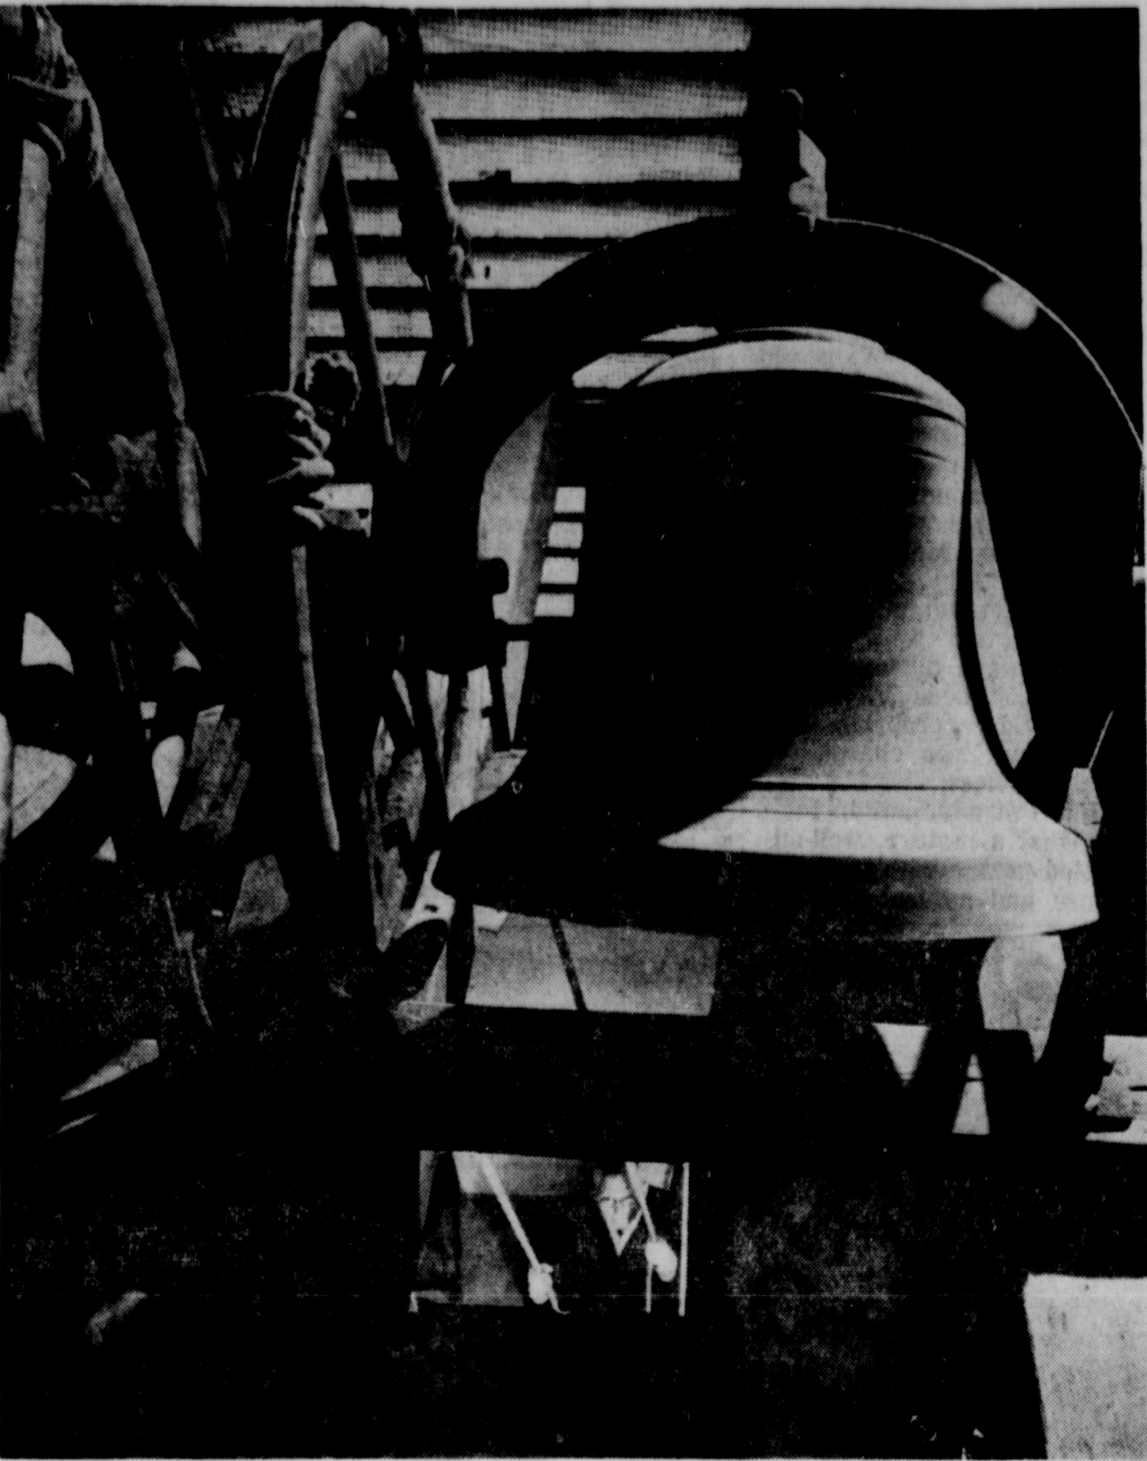

Prayers went out for the new president—Lyndon Johnson—asking that "God's holy spirit guide him and give him the strength he needs in the responsibility so tragically thrust upon him."

All Catholic churches in Lincoln held rosaries for the President Friday night, and a Requiem Mass will be said Monday noon at St. Mary's Cathedral.

Masses will also be said in all churches Monday and Tuesday, and special prayers for the late President will be said in regular Sunday morning masses.

University of Nebraska Catholic students paid tribute to the late president at a special memorial mass Friday afternoon at St. Thomas Chapel on the campus.

Bishop Copeland issued a plea to all Methodist churches in the state to conduct special prayers Sunday "for the bereaved family of President Kennedy, the new Chief Executive Lyndon B. Johnson, and the spiritual solidarity of the American people."

Lincoln churchbells rang throughout the city Friday in memory of assassinated President John F. Kennedy.

Mayor Expresses City's Sympathy

Mayor Dean H. Petersen said, "I am indeed sorry to hear of the evil, premeditated attack on President John F. Kennedy and to learn of his death."

"The sympathy and prayers of the people of Lincoln are with his family and with him. We sincerely hope his attackers will be brought to justice."

Saturday, Nov. 23, 1963 The Lincoln Star 11

OPEN SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 8:30 TO 5:30 PHONE 432-8511

Miller & Paine

Miller's Beautifully re-decorated House of Dolls is open, newer and nicer than ever... do come see all of the lovely dolls... on Miller's Fourth Floor.

The assassination of President John F. Kennedy and the elevation to the highest office in the land of Vice President Lyndon Johnson, has brought Speaker of the House of Representatives John McCormack next in line to succeed to the presidency.

The office of vice president is now vacant until a new officer is elected in 1964 and takes office in 1965.

The Constitution of the United States provides that Congress may by law establish the line of succession to the presidency if either the president or vice president is unable to fulfill the duties of the office.

Under Article 3, Section 19 of U.S. Code Annotated, as last amended June 25, 1948, it provides:

"If, by reason of death, resignation, removal from office, inability, or failure to qualify, there is neither a president nor vice president to discharge the powers and duties of the office of president, then the speaker of the House of Representatives shall, upon his resignation as speaker, act as president."

If there should be no speaker, or he fails to qualify as acting president, then the president pro tempore of the senate shall, upon his resignation as president pro tempore, serve as acting president.

Either would serve to the expiration of the then current Presidential term, except in cases involving other than death, he would serve only until the president or vice president was again qualified to serve.

The line of succession following these national legislative officers then devolves upon the president's cabinet, none of whom would be eligible unless his appointment as a cabinet officer had been approved with the advice and consent of the Senate.

Their line of succession: secretary of state, secretary of the treasury, secretary of defense, attorney general, postmaster general, secretary of interior, secretary of agriculture, secretary of commerce, and secretary of labor.

Any of these officers would serve the remainder of the presidential term, unless a "prior-entitled individual" were able to fulfill the office.

In the case of all successors, each would only be able to serve as acting president if he was eligible to the office of president under the Constitution.

Johnson Healthy Despite Heart Attack In '55

New York (UPI) — Heart specialists predicted Friday that President Lyndon B. Johnson would be a vigorously healthy executive despite the heart attack he suffered eight years ago.

They based their estimate upon the vigorous life Johnson has led since his monthslong recuperation in 1955. He has been through "the political war," including the 1960 election campaign as President Kennedy's running mate, and "has even faced a mob," one specialist recalled.

"You could have no better proof of his complete recovery," continued this professor of medicine who for reasons of medical ethics spoke anonymously. He and other specialists deferred to Johnson's own physician, Dr. J. Willis Hurst of Emory University, Atlanta, who was en route from New York to Washington.

They could speak only of what medical science knows in general about recoveries from heart attacks. Each week, each month and each year the victim survives his personal disaster, his heart muscle is healing itself and ridding itself of scar tissue.

Some scar tissue always remains as a residue but it need not interfere with healthy heart function, they said. In the unanimous opinion of three specialists, a man who has had a complete recovery of years-long duration can face up to the most exacting tasks, including that of being president.

NEW FIRST LADY 'AWED'

Washington (AP) — The new First Lady of the land is a 50-year-old petite brunette who once said of the prospects of her husband becoming president of the United States: "I regard the job with awe."

For 30 years Lady Bird Johnson has been at her husband's side in Washington, packing his bags for campaign trips, standing with him on social receiving lines, taking notes for him in the shorthand she learned in college.

Friday she was with Lyndon Johnson on the campaign trail in Dallas when an assassin's bullet killed President Kennedy and made her husband the 36th president.

Mrs. Johnson was born Claudia Alta Taylor Dec. 22, 1912, but no one has called her that since she was 2, when a nursemaid dubbed her "Lady Bird." As such her initials conform to those of the rest of the family. Their daughters are Lynda Bird, 19, and Lucy Baines, 16; there is Lyndon B. of course, and the family's ranch at Johnson City, Tex., is the "LBJ" Ranch.

As the wife of a Vice president, Mrs. Johnson's role expanded far beyond the confines of Texas and Washington. She has toured the world, entertained a Russian astronaut and occasionally pinch-hit for Jacqueline Kennedy.

Most people describe Mrs. Johnson as calm and unruffled. Yet often there is a hint of tension about her.

With her husband's government role so heavy, Mrs. Johnson has had at times to serve as father and mother to their daughters. Lynda is a sophomore at the University of Texas and Lucy attends the National Cathedral School for Girls in Washington.

Assassination Elevates House Speaker To Next In Line

The assassination of President John F. Kennedy and the elevation to the highest office in the land of Vice President Lyndon Johnson, has brought Speaker of the House of Representatives John McCormack next in line to succeed to the presidency.

The office of vice president is now vacant until a new officer is elected in 1964 and takes office in 1965.

The Constitution of the United States provides that Congress may by law establish the line of succession to the presidency if either the president or vice president is unable to fulfill the duties of the office.

Under Article 3, Section 19 of U.S. Code Annotated, as last amended June 25, 1948, it provides:

"If, by reason of death, resignation, removal from office, inability, or failure to qualify, there is neither a president nor vice president to discharge the powers and duties of the office of president, then the speaker of the House of Representatives shall, upon his resignation as speaker, act as president."

If there should be no speaker, or he fails to qualify as acting president, then the president pro tempore of the senate shall, upon his resignation as president pro tempore, serve as acting president.

Either would serve to the expiration of the then current Presidential term, except in cases involving other than death, he would serve only until the president or vice president was again qualified to serve.

The line of succession following these national legislative officers then devolves upon the president's cabinet, none of whom would be eligible unless his appointment as a cabinet officer had been approved with the advice and consent of the Senate.

Their line of succession: secretary of state, secretary of the treasury, secretary of defense, attorney general, postmaster general, secretary of interior, secretary of agriculture, secretary of commerce, and secretary of labor.

Any of these officers would serve the remainder of the presidential term, unless a "prior-entitled individual" were able to fulfill the office.

In the case of all successors, each would only be able to serve as acting president if he was eligible to the office of president under the Constitution.

Johnson Healthy Despite Heart Attack In '55

New York (UPI) — Heart specialists predicted Friday that President Lyndon B. Johnson would be a vigorously healthy executive despite the heart attack he suffered eight years ago.

They based their estimate upon the vigorous life Johnson has led since his months-long recuperation in 1955. He has been through "the political war," including the 1960 election campaign as President Kennedy's running mate, and "has even faced a mob," one specialist recalled.

"You could have no better proof of his complete recovery," continued this professor of medicine who for reasons of medical ethics spoke anonymously. He and other specialists deferred to Johnson's own physician, Dr. J. Willis Hurst of Emory University, Atlanta, who was en route from New York to Washington.

They could speak only of what medical science knows in general about recoveries from heart attacks. Each week, each month and each year the victim survives his personal disaster, his heart muscle is healing itself and ridding itself of scar tissue.

Some scar tissue always remains as a residue but it need not interfere with healthy heart function, they said. In the unanimous opinion of three specialists, a man who has had a complete recovery of years-long duration can face up to the most exacting tasks, including that of being president.

NEW FIRST LADY 'AWED'

Washington (P) — The new First Lady of the land is a 50-year-old petite brunette who once said of the prospects of her husband becoming president of the United States: "I regard the job with awe."

For 30 years Lady Bird Johnson has been at her husband's side in Washington, packing his bags for campaign trips, standing with him on social receiving lines, taking notes for him in the shorthand she learned in college.

Friday she was with Lyndon Johnson on the campaign trail in Dallas when an assassin's bullet killed President Kennedy and made her husband the 36th president.

Mrs. Johnson was born Claudia Alta Taylor Dec. 22, 1912, but no one has called her that since she was 2, when a nursemaid dubbed her "Lady Bird." As such her initials conform to those of the rest of the family. Their daughters are Lynda Bird, 19, and Lucy Baines, 16; there is Lyndon B. of course, and the family's ranch at Johnson City, Tex., is the "LBJ" Ranch.

As the wife of a Vice president, Mrs. Johnson's role expanded far beyond the confines of Texas and Washington. She has toured the world, entertained a Russian astronaut and occasionally pinch-hit for Jacqueline Kennedy.

Downtown Lincoln moved in a slow, stunned silence Friday afternoon with the word of President Kennedy's assassination.

Somehow, spontaneously, everyone knew.

A woman shopper sat in a department store waiting chair. "It's just like a member of your own family," she said. "I feel weak."

"But we have to carry on. There mustn't be a letdown. We must keep on and do what is best for the country."

Outside the store, Salvation Army Maj. Charles R. Dusk of 1800 Euclid Ave. was helping workers erect a large Christmas tree.

'Real Tragic'

"It's a real tragic experience to have to live through," he said.

A pick-up truck's tires squealed when the driver almost ran through a red light at 13th and O. The driver was bent close to the steering wheel, his hand on the radio knob.

Harvey Bourdeau, long-time newsman at the busy corner of the city named after the Civil War president who died at the hands of an assassin, said, "People are buying papers, but they ain't saying anything. They just shake their heads."

A motorcycle policeman, Officer William Fitt, said, "It's barbaric for a president to be shot in his own country."

Four men sitting at a lunch counter in a small downtown cafe didn't look around when asked what they felt.

"It speaks for itself," one finally spoke. "There's nothing to be said."

Fingernail-Chewing

girls stood waiting for a bus, both chewing on their fingernails, one reading the newspaper headlines.

Mrs. Elsie Mahler of 1742 So. 14th sat in her information booth in a department store. "The store has gotten real quiet," she said.

Mrs. Opal Meyer of 1625 So. 13th stood behind the counter of a news stand in an office building. "It's very, very quiet. There's not too many people around now."

"Everyone just wonders what our world will be now. Some have said we've lived through it before, so I guess we'll live through it again."

An office boy got off an elevator, bought a newspaper and hurried back upstairs.

Shocked Silence

A bartender said, "People in here were just shocked. Just sat in silence."

In another bar, two men tried to explain it. "It's hard to say how you did feel," one said. "I lived this long and I never thought I'd see it happen, never."

"I read about it in history books over there in Lincoln High School, but I never thought I'd live to see it."

The other: "I'm a Republican. I never was for Kennedy. But I am now. When they can do that! You just can't shoot a man down for no reason at all — and the President!"

'They Meant It'

John Skold, University of Nebraska law student, waited for a light to change on a downtown corner. "I didn't believe it," he said. "I thought I was being kidded until I saw from their faces that they meant it."

"You have to stop and realize that for all the wealth, power and prestige the Kennedys have had, that they've had the tragedy in proportion to that, if not more so."

Three Nebraska Wesleyan University students said everyone at their cafeteria just stopped eating when the news came.

"We were just talking in our political science class last week about the fact that a president is lost by assassination or death about every 20 years," said Don Moore of Tryon.

A bus driver and his passengers were told the news when they came into the city about two hours after the tragedy.

Ashamed

"I'm kind of ashamed to be an American," the driver said.

Another driver told him that one of the passengers had made a caustic remark on hearing of the President's death.

"If I'd heard him I'd have busted his mouth," the first said. "It's a disgrace to the whole country! It's inhuman. We yell at Castro and the others for what they do, and then turn around and do the same thing."

"I don't care if you liked him or not, he was a smart man. And running the country how he thought best, all the way."

Classrooms Become Places Of Mourning

Classrooms in Lincoln's schools and universities became places of mourning Friday afternoon as students were informed of the assassination of President Kennedy.

Study was set aside for special observances and for radio and television coverage of the shocking event. Few classes were dismissed at the announcement, school officials said, because of the fear that some students might tend to become hysterical unless they remained under supervision.

Some of the events which followed the tragic announcement included:

University of Nebraska: Some classes were dismissed Friday afternoon as the news spread unofficially across campus. The wild Orange Bowl fever was temporarily quenched, and Bob Weaver of the Student Rally Committee announced that the Friday night football rally was cancelled.

Lincoln Public Schools: Held brief observances Friday afternoon, after each school was officially informed of the President's death by the superintendent of schools' office. Supt. Steven Watkins said that each school was allowed to inform its students in any way they deemed appropriate. Some called convocations, gave silent prayers, and the Pledge of Allegiance as flags were lowered to half staff. Television sets were used in some classrooms, and school intercoms were used to keep the students informed of the tragedy.

Pius X High School: Students were informed of the assassination and allowed to listen to the radio broadcasts of the event during afternoon classes, via schoolwide intercom systems. Later the students, described as "completely grief-stricken" by Father Paul Sheehy, school principal, said Rosaries for the deceased president.

Wesleyan University: Some Friday afternoon classes were dismissed at the Methodist university and arrangements for a campus-wide observance were being planned.

Union College: No classes were held Friday afternoon at the Seventh-day Adventist institution. Special services were included in the Friday evening young people's meeting at the campus.

A bill proposing a constitutional amendment authorizing the Legislature to establish classifications of lenders and interest rates squeaked through on final passage Friday with just the required 26 votes necessary to put it on the ballot.

Since a gubernatorial veto of a constitutional amendment is prohibited, the issue now is assured of being placed on the November, 1964 general election ballot for approval or rejection by Nebraska voters.

The vote on the measure, LB9—introduced by Sens. K. L. Bowen of Red Cloud, Michael Russillo of Omaha, and F. O. Gottschak of Columbus, was 26-6 with 11 members absent or not voting.

During the morning session, Sen. Eugene Mahoney of Omaha rose to a point of personal privilege to note the crowded conditions of the Beatrice State Home, and stated that in the past two months four of his constituents have been unable to have their children admitted to the institution.

Mahoney said he understands the institution is completely filled, and has a waiting list of 80 persons. "Either Beatrice must be expanded or we need to start a new facility to give Nebraskans full service," he said.

Primary Problem

The Omaha senator warned that the 1965 Legislature will be faced with the need to do something about Beatrice because it will be the primary problem facing the state.

Lt. Gov. Dwight Burney interjected, "This is an emergency if we ever had an emergency in Nebraska."

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff declared that the 1964 Budget Committee failed to provide the Legislature with sufficient information about the Beatrice institution to enable the lawmakers to take effective action about the problem.

Budget Chairman Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings declared this was not true, and noted the committee had not only made a special trip to Beatrice, but also had given the institution special hearings before the committee.

Marvel said the committee had provided top building priority to the institution's needs as requested, and also had provided for additional personnel to care for its patients.

Centennial Commission

In other action, the Legislature authorized the Nebraska Centennial Commission to rent quarters outside the State Capitol at a rate not to exceed $50 a month.

The commission now is using space in the Nebraska Historical Society Museum, but has been informed the space is needed for society purposes. There also is no space available for the commission within the Capitol.

Vote on the authorization was 25-1 with Sen. Carpenter the lone dissenter.

As the morning session was concluding, the Legislature accorded an extraordinary honor to veteran lobbyist Charles Hoyer of Omaha, representative of the Nebraska Brewers Assn. for the past 47 years, who is retiring after the special session.

Hoyer, who was given a standing ovation by the lawmakers, was escorted to the rostrum. In a voice choked with emotion, Hoyer told the members his "only regret" upon retiring "will be the loss of the friendships after 50 many years."

All Nebraskans Join In Mourning Their Fallen President

By The Associated Press

Young and old, rich and poor, Republican and Democrat, Nebraskans joined Friday in mourning for their President, shot down by an assassin in Dallas, Tex.

In Beatrice, classes were immediately dismissed at St. Joseph's Catholic School and the children fled into the church to recite the Rosary for the dead President.

The public high school in Beatrice used its public address system to relay bulletins on the assassination to students remaining in their classrooms.

Mayor W. W. Cook Sr. ordered all flags on public buildings immediately lowered to half-staff in mourning.

Special Prayers

The Omaha Archdiocesan Council of the Catholic Church said special prayers would be offered in churches Sunday for President Kennedy, his family, President Johnson and the nation.

At Omaha's normally busy Eppley Airfield terminal, the long concourse suddenly became silent save for the flight announcements carried over the public address system.

In the main lobby a knot of people clustered about a television set, listening intently and wordlessly to reports from Dallas.

Upstairs in the VIP room where dignitaries are interviewed by news media, Stewart L. Pittman, assistant secretary of defense for civil defense, was holding such a conference when his aide broke in to tell him the President had been shot. At first he refused to believe it and made his aide repeat the message several times.

Then he went ahead with his brief news conference, but the shadow of the tragic news hung over it.

"Incredible!"

As he hurried out to catch a plane for Washington, he said, "It's incredible. I just can't take it in. It's a most dreadful catastrophe that this man is not going to be available to provide at this time."

Flags at Omaha schools came down to half-staff, but there was no general directive for special activities, although radios in school buildings were turned on for the news bulletins.

The office of Dr. Paul Miller, superintendent of schools, said, "We've taken the position as we did when President Franklin Roosevelt died, that he would want us to carry on, and we are doing so." The school officials added that when school resumes Monday, there will be special assembly programs and the history of President Kennedy and other presidents who have lost their lives in office will be recalled.

Public meetings in Omaha came to a halt.

The Midwest Governor's Conference adjourned abruptly with a pledge of support to President Lyndon Johnson in assuming the tasks of the presidency.

The Associated Industries of Nebraska and the Nebraska State Chamber of Commerce halted their conventions midway and cancelled scheduled addresses.

Governors End Meeting In Grief

Omaha (AP) — Governors attending the Midwestern Governors Conference, several of whom knew President Kennedy personally, expressed their grief before leaving for home Friday.

"I am stunned," said North Dakota Gov. William G. Millard, conference chairman. "That this can happen in the United States in 1963 is almost unbelievable. President Kennedy was a man whose contribution to peace and progress in the world was only beginning to be felt."

The comment of other governors included:

Gov. George Romney, Michigan: "The assassination of the President is a horrible shock and tragedy. It is imperative that the assassin or assassins and any influence behind them or associated with them be identified. On behalf of all Michigan citizens I extend our heartfelt grief and sympathy to the Kennedy family. Let us unite behind our new President."

Gov. Matthew E. Welsh, Indiana: "It is a great tragedy for all Americans. All of us are stunned. The first impulse of the two associations joined in a statement saying: "We are saddened by the untimely and tragic death of our President and extend to his family our sincere condolences."

At Papillion a new Post Office dedication about to start was abruptly called off and state American Legion Commander Jerome Henn of Peetersburg expressed sympathy to the Kennedy family in behalf of the Nebraska Department.

"We deplore and condemn this dastardly attack on our President, which by its nature is also an attack on those American principles in the defense of which we served and so many of our comrades laid down their lives," he said.

Sen. Roman Hruska, Nebraska Republican, called the slaying "a national calamity."

"It will deeply grieve every citizen of the United States, and I feel very, very shocked to think that a man with whom I served seven years in the Senate would be so cruelly dealt with. The nation's loss is incalculable."

Hruska said he was canceling all appointments in Nebraska for this weekend, planning to return to Washington. "It is a national emergency, so they want us there."

School Dismissed

In Hastings the public and parochial schools dismissed classes in mid-afternoon and students — even down to the toddling first graders — trooped into churches for prayers.

Special services were to be held Friday night in several churches.

Hastings publisher Fred A. Seaton, who was a member of the last Republican administration under President Eisenhower, called President Kennedy's death "a great loss not only for America but for the world." He called on every American to support President Lyndon Johnson and said "this is no time for partisan politics."

Tony Mangiamelli, who seeks the Democratic nomination for governor, declared that in the midst of the nation's sorrow, "Our new President, Lyndon Johnson, must give the people a feeling of security in carrying out the unfinished policies started by our late President."

help of every citizen. I have high confidence in him. He is a dedicated public servant."

Gov. Karl Rolvaag, Minnesota: "I am sure there will be completely unanimous support expressed by the midwest governors to the new President."

South Dakota Gov. Archie Gubbrud: "We're all very shocked. We certainly express our sympathy to the Kennedy family. It takes a while to really realize that this has happened in our country."

Gov. Otto Kerner, Illinois: "It is terrible to think that anyone would want to kill the President, whatever their feeling may be."

Gov. John Anderson Jr., Kansas: "It is a tragic thing."

PENNEY'S BASEMENT

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington (AP) — The Kennedy administration foreign policy seems certain to be continued without change by the new President in the weeks immediately ahead. But eventually some modification appears inevitable.

Kennedy's assassination seems certain also to shake foreign confidence temporarily in U.S. leadership of the free world alliance, since even a peaceful and legal change of presidents always has the effect of rendering the future uncertain for the allies.

How quickly a firm lead is restored will depend on the speed and decision with which the new chief executive makes clear his major policy line.

Kennedy Supporter

As vice president, Lyndon B. Johnson has been a down-the-line supporter of President Kennedy's policies and the specific programs developed to carry them out.

Johnson has been a member of administration policy-making groups on various occasions, particularly the National Security Council which has responsibility for handling all major questions involving the cold war and U.S. security. He has thus been in position to be thoroughly informed about the state of world affairs, U.S.-Soviet relations, and Kennedy's plans for dealing with those matters.

Authorities here consider it unlikely that Johnson will make any quick change in any of the top people dealing with such problems. The position of Secretary of State Dean Rusk, the President's chief foreign-policy advisor and the director of diplomatic operations, appears as secure with Johnson as it was with Kennedy.

If Johnson does effect any gradual change in policy only he will be able to define its direction, but speculatively it could be toward a more conservative diplomacy in dealing with Soviet Premier Khrushchev and the whole range of U.S.-Soviet relations.

Kennedy Flexible

On two controversial issues this year Kennedy has insisted on a flexible and outgoing approach to Russia.

Thus he made repeated attempts to get an agreement on a nuclear test-ban treaty and finally succeeded in mid-summer in arriving at an accord with Khrushchev. The Moscow negotiations were handled by Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman.

Subsequently Kennedy decided that the United States as well as other countries could sell wheat to the Soviet Union to meet the requirements caused by crop failures.

There is no obvious reason to think that Johnson would have handled these issues differently. But Kennedy's determined drive, begun actually in his inauguration speech, to find some way to ease the tensions and make an agreement with the Russians may not command the same energy and support from the new President.

As a veteran member of Congress and a much older politician than Kennedy, Johnson must be sensitively aware of the great suspicion of the Soviet behavior in congressional circles and the strong belief there that the United States should proceed with extreme caution toward any kind of an agreement with the Soviet Union.

Whether the sudden change of leadership in Washington will make any quick difference in cold war tensions probably depends more on Khrushchev than on the new U.S. President.

It is up to the Soviet leader to decide whether he wants to avoid a crisis atmosphere or whether, as an alternative, he wants to make a test of nerves or see whether he can score some quick gain at U.S.

expense while the government in Washington is partially hobbled by sorrow and uncertainty.

When Kennedy succeeded President Dwight D. Eisenhower in January 1961 Khrushchev's initial approach to the new American leader was friendly and struck a peaceful note. Such a reaction to the present U.S. political crisis would seem to be more in line with the recent aims Khrushchev has sought than would a hostile performance on his part.

However, the Soviet premier is in position to make his own choice on the advice of a small inner group and the normal uncertainty of a period immediately after the advent of a new president must be magnified in this case by concern about what Khrushchev's actual choice will be.

Thunder Of Guns To Render Honor To Mr. Kennedy

Washington (AP)—A gun will thunder each half hour from dawn to dark Saturday at each Army and Marine Corps base to render honor to the late President Kennedy, commander-in-chief.

A similar ritual will be followed by Navy ships in port.

The Air Force, with no specific regulations for such an occurrence, was preparing to dispatch orders along the same lines.

Army regulations provide that at each base and at West Point Military Academy troops be paraded at 10 a.m., and that the official order announcing the death of the President be read to the troops.

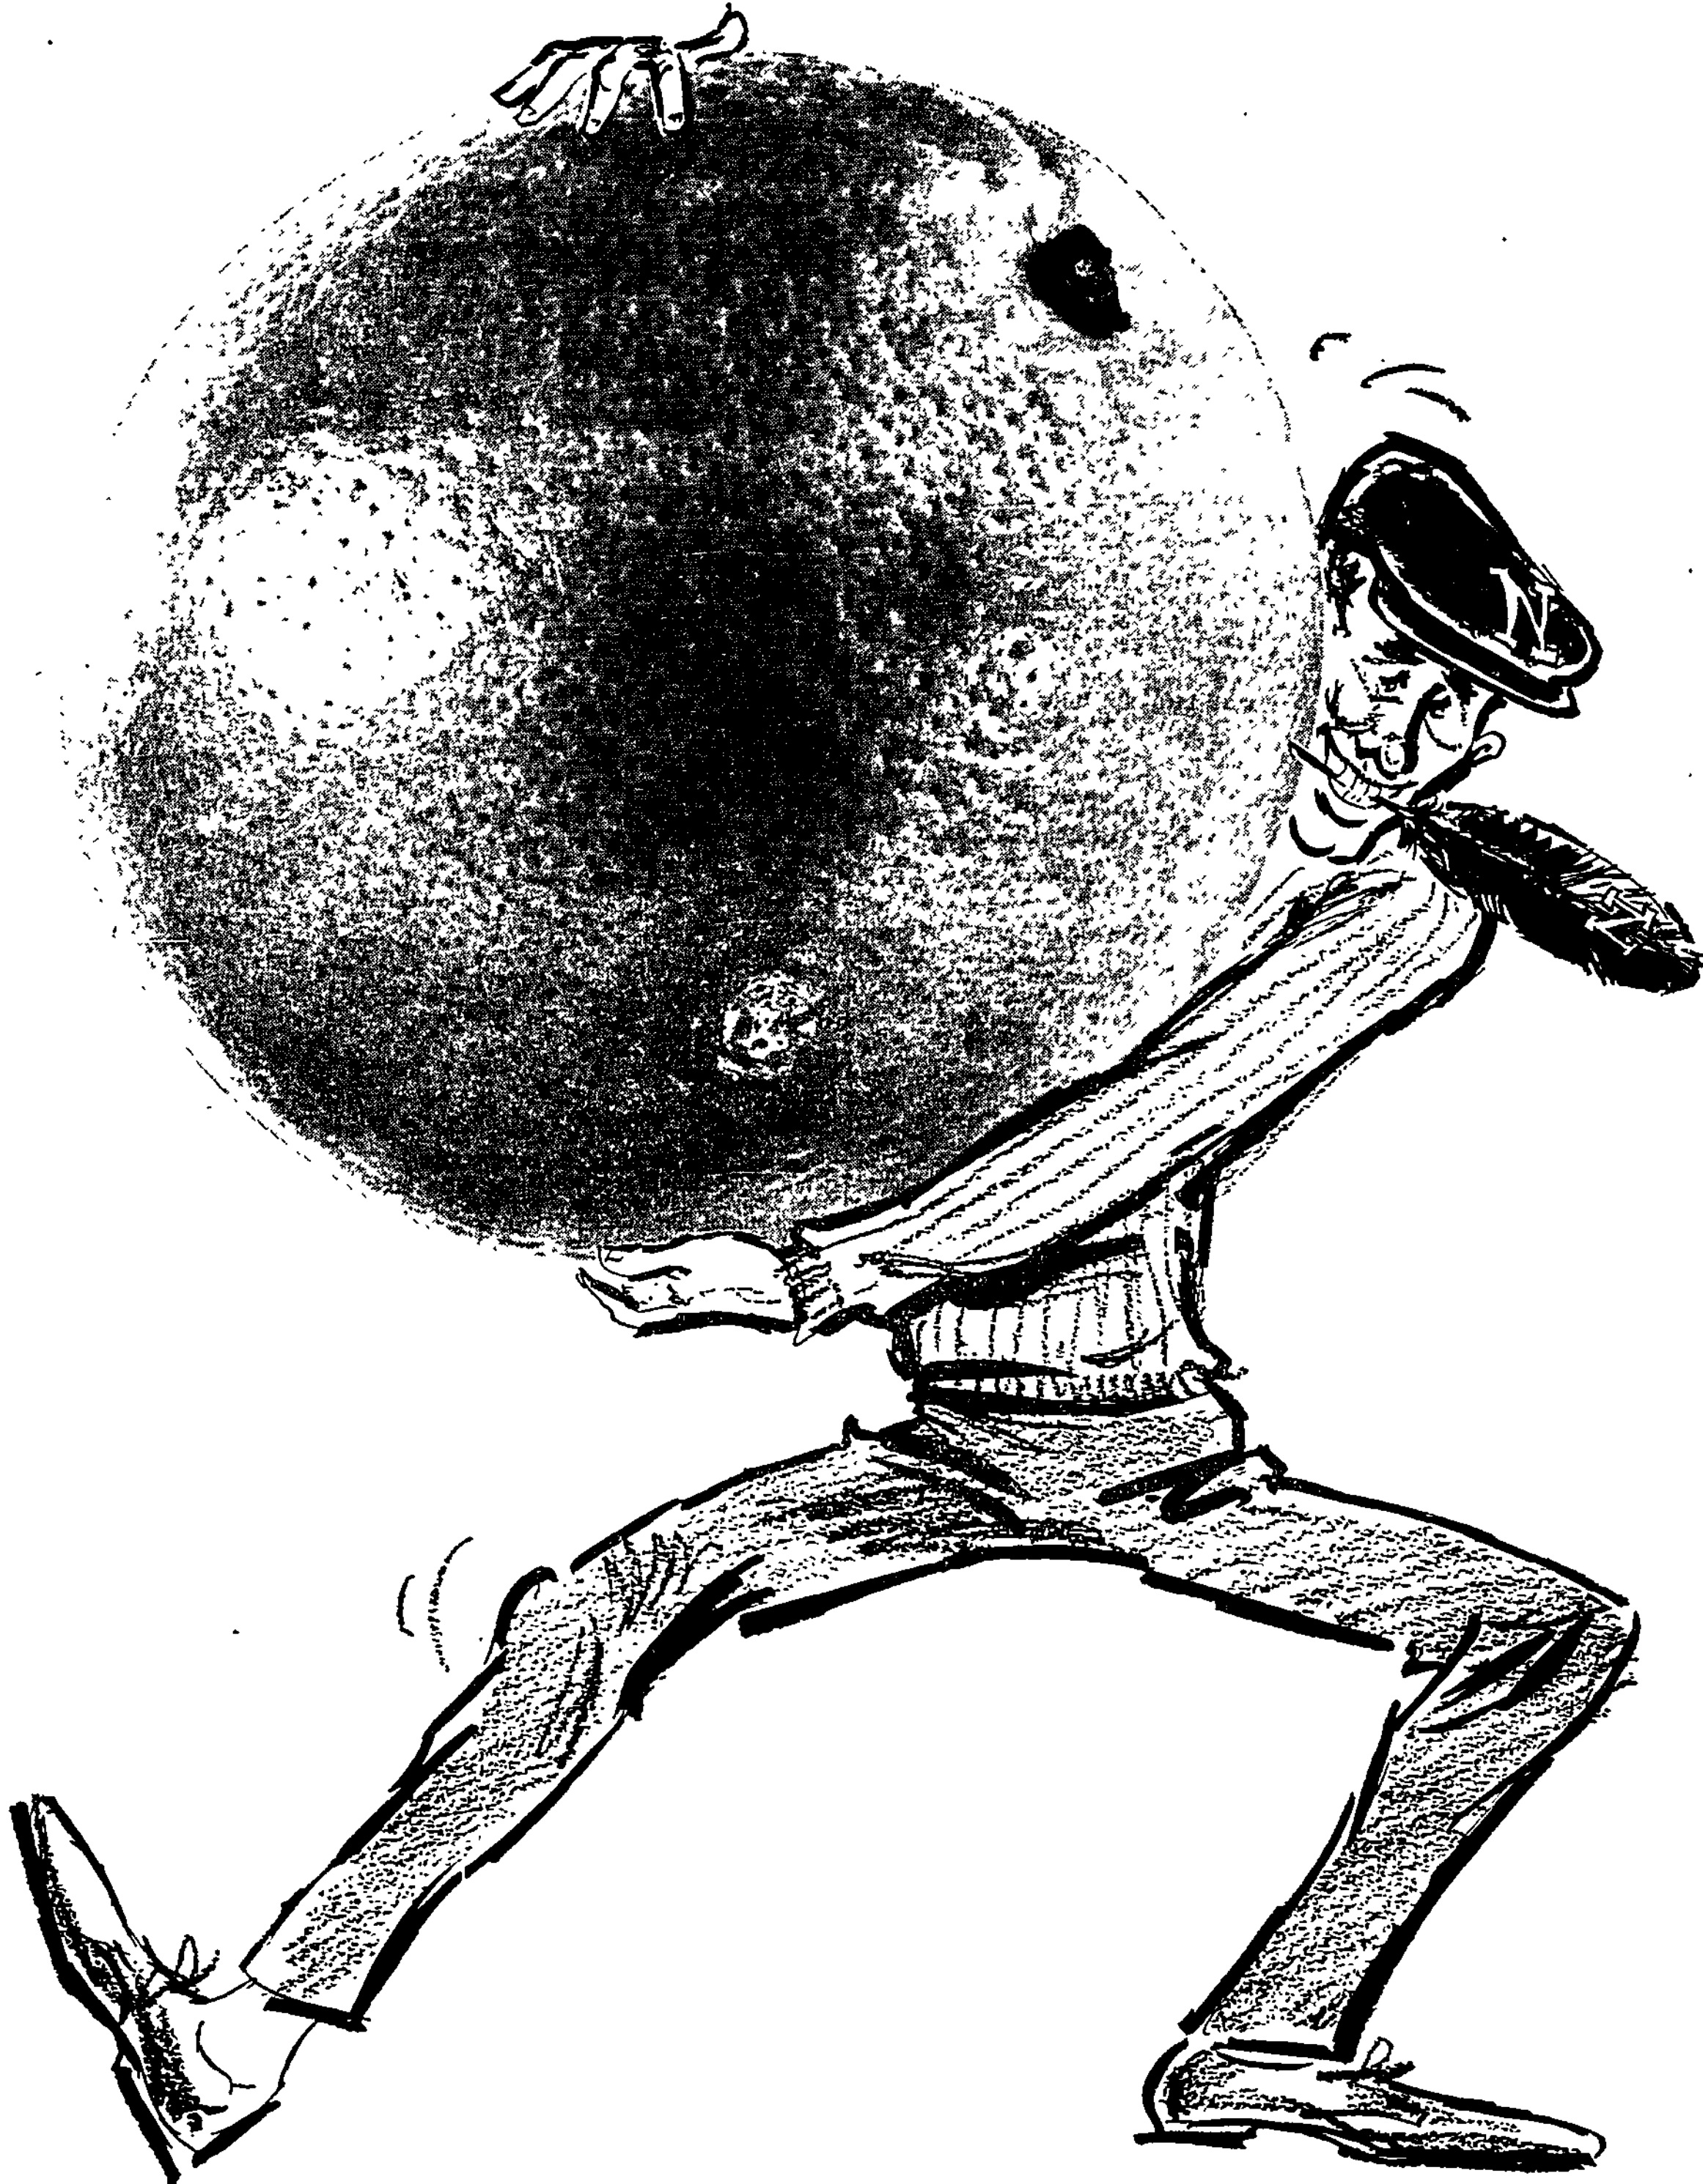

On the day of the funeral, a 21-gun salute is fired at noon at each base. Then at the close of the funeral day a "number of guns equal to the number of states in the Union" are fired at five-second intervals.

World Confidence Could Be Shaken By Assassination

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Washington (AP) — The Kennedy administration foreign policy seems certain to be continued without change by the new President in the weeks immediately ahead. But eventually some modification appears inevitable.

Kennedy's assassination seems certain also to shake foreign confidence temporarily in U.S. leadership of the free world alliance, since even a peaceful and legal change of presidents always has the effect of rendering the future uncertain for the allies. How quickly a firm lead is restored will depend on the speed and decision with which the new chief executive makes clear his major policy line.

Kennedy Supporter
As vice president, Lyndon B. Johnson has been a down-the-line supporter of President Kennedy's policies and the specific programs developed to carry them out. Johnson has been a member of administration policy-making groups on various occasions, particularly the National Security Council which has responsibility for handling all major questions involving the cold war and U.S. security. He has thus been in position to be thoroughly informed about the state of world affairs, U.S.-Soviet relations, and Kennedy's plans for dealing with those matters.

Authorities here consider it unlikely that Johnson will make any quick change in any of the top people dealing with such problems. The position of Secretary of State Dean Rusk, the President's chief foreign-policy advisor and the director of diplomatic operations, appears as secure with Johnson as it was with Kennedy.

If Johnson does effect any gradual change in policy only he will be able to define its direction, but speculatively it could be toward a more conservative diplomacy in dealing with Soviet Premier Khrushchev and the whole range of U.S.-Soviet relations.

Kennedy Flexible
On two controversial issues this year Kennedy has insisted on a flexible and outgoing approach to Russia.

Thus he made repeated attempts to get an agreement on a nuclear test-ban treaty and finally succeeded in mid-summer in arriving at an accord with Khrushchev. The Moscow negotiations were handled by Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman.

Subsequently Kennedy decided that the United States as well as other countries could sell wheat to the Soviet Union to meet the requirements caused by crop failures.

There is no obvious reason to think that Johnson would have handled those issues differently. But Kennedy's determined drive, begun actually in his inauguration speech, to find some way to ease the tensions and make an agreement with the Russians may not command the same energy and support from the new President.

As a veteran member of Congress and a much older politician than Kennedy, Johnson must be sensitively aware of the great suspicion of the Soviet behavior in congressional circles and the strong belief there that the United States should proceed with extreme caution toward any kind of an agreement with the Soviet Union.

Whether the sudden change of leadership in Washington will make any quick difference in cold war tensions probably depends more on Khrushchev than on the new U.S. President.

It is up to the Soviet leader to decide whether he wants to avoid a crisis atmosphere or whether, as an alternative, he wants to make a test of nerves or see whether he can score some quick gain at U.S.

expense while the government in Washington is partially hobbled by sorrow and uncertainty.

When Kennedy succeeded President Dwight D. Eisenhower in January 1961 Khrushchev's initial approach to the new American leader was friendly and struck a peaceful note. Such a reaction to the present U.S. political crisis would seem to be more in line with the recent aims Khrushchev has sought than would a hostile performance on his part.

However, the Soviet premier is in position to make his own choice on the advice of a small inner group and the normal uncertainty of a period immediately after the advent of a new president must be magnified in this case by concern about what Khrushchev's actual choice will be.

Opening lead — three of spades.

The play of the hand would be greatly simplified if you could see all 52 cards. There would be little excuse for failing to find the best line of play, whether viewed from the standpoint of the declarer or the defense.

However, since each player sees only dummy's 13 cards and his own, and therefore has to guess the location of the unseen 26 cards, many hands end with one side or the other having failed to exact the full measure from their cards. There is nothing extraordinary about this — even in the best company, it happens with some frequency — but in most hands the declarer or the defenders are not supposed to stray from par very often.

Take this hand, for example, where declarer's expectancy is to lose four tricks and go down one. He would normally lose a spade and three clubs and suffer a one-trick defeat.

However, if East-West were to ship in the play, he would wind up making the contract. West leads a spade which East takes with the ace. East might then cash the K-Q of clubs, West playing the six and then the four. If this happened, South would now make the rest of the tricks, regardless of what East played next.

Granted that this would be mediocre defense, yet it is something that might take place in the ordinary course of events. East's first three plays appear to be normal, yet they leave something to be desired.

What East should do after winning the ace of spades is lead the K-Q of clubs instead of the K-Q. This abnormal order of plays should alert West to the actual situation and induce him to overtake the king with the ace and give East a club ruff.

Any departure by a defender from standard play should be read as a signal intended to convey a special meaning to partner. The play of the K-Q in that order falls into this category.

On their return trip, they stopped at Yosemite, Disneyland and the Grand Canyon, and visited former LAFB residents, Col. and Mrs. V. D. Disana, at Forbes AFB, Topeka, Kan., on their way home.

Mrs. Louis Rase recently entertained her neighborhood bridge group at a dessert at her home. Her guests were Mrs. William Nichols, Mrs. Walt Nickerson, Mrs. Robert Spiller, Mrs. Harry Jones, Mrs. Bert Targove, Mrs. C. F. Smith and Mrs. Al Brow.

Recent houseguests at the home of Maj. and Mrs. Leiland Schmoker were Mrs. Schmoker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arle Boltz, of Dighton, Kan. And overnight guests recently were Capt. and Mrs. James Lewis, currently stationed at K.I. Sawyer AFB, Mich.

held their monthly coffee on Thursday at the Intercom Club. Hostesses for the morning were Mrs. Robert Mueller, Mrs. Millard Shirley and Mrs. Burton Apple.

Mrs. Leslie Johnson, mother-in-law of Mrs. Grove Johnson, gave a talk on antiques. Mrs. Johnson also brought quite a few of her own antiques from her home in Omaha to use in her display. Accompanying Mrs. Johnson was Mrs. James Wilson, of Offutt AFB. Of special interest is that for the third year, Mrs. Johnson has been mentioned in the "Who's Who of American Women."

Another guest was Mrs. James Gribble. Mrs. Franklin Scott was introduced and welcomed as a newcomer.

Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Bob Beaudro, Mrs. Ed Gennaro and Mrs. Conrad Schminke.

Following the coffee, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Grove Johnson, Mrs. Leslie Johnson, Mrs. Edward Denton, and Mrs. James Wilson enjoyed lunch and a short tour of Lincoln Air Force Base.

Weekend guests at the home of Capt. and Mrs. Hal Hampton were Capt. and Mrs. Jerry Custer, former Lincoln Air Force Base residents, now stationed at Offutt Air Force Base.

Opening lead — three of spades.

The play of the hand would be greatly simplified if you could see all 52 cards. There would be little excuse for failing to find the best line of play, whether viewed from the standpoint of the declarer or the defense.

However, since each player sees only dummy's 13 cards and his own, and therefore has to guess the location of the unseen 26 cards, many hands end with one side or the other having failed to exact the full measure from their cards. There is nothing extraordinary about this — even in the best company, it happens with some frequency — but in most hands the declarer or the defenders are not supposed to stray from par very often.

Take this hand, for example, where declarer's expectancy is to lose four tricks and go down one. He would normally lose a spade and three clubs and suffer a one-trick defeat.

However, if East-West were to slip in the play, he would wind up making the contract. West leads a spade which East takes with the ace. East might then cash the K-Q of clubs, West playing the six and then the four. If this happened, South would now make the rest of the tricks, regardless of what East played next.

Granted that this would be mediocre defense, yet it is something that might take place in the ordinary course of events. East's first three plays appear to be normal, yet they leave something to be desired.

What East should do after winning the ace of spades is lead the Q-K of clubs instead of the K-Q. This abnormal order of plays should alert West to the actual situation and induce him to overtake the king with the ace and give East a club ruff.

Any departure by a defender from standard play should be read as a signal intended to convey a special meaning to partner. The play of the Q-K in that order falls into this category.

So let's see all the Knights in Omaha on Dec. 7!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I had a neighbor who was a perfect gentleman I met him quite by accident when a package was delivered to my back door instead of to his, and I took it over there. When I saw him I was so overwhelmed with emotion I had to hold on to the door to keep from falling over. He was the living image of my "dream man" — an image I had locked in my heart and mind for over 40 years. He must have noticed my heart on my sleeve, and cared a little, too, because he asked me if I wanted a glass of water. I never encouraged him, but we met at the village shopping center several times after that. We always exchanged warm greetings. Suddenly he moved! He didn't even say goodbye. I wonder if perhaps he lost interest in me because I had a WIN WITH NIXON flag in my window. Would it be too forward of me to ask at the Post Office if he left a forwarding address? I'd like to send him a Christmas card.

CAROLINE

DEAR CAROLINE: You may ask, but they might not be permitted to give it out. If you send him a Christmas card in care of his former address, it will be forwarded to him, I'm sure.

DEAR ABBY: I was delighted that someone finally brought to light the fact that improper music is being played at so many weddings. In the Protestant Episcopal Church, secular music is not permitted in the marriage liturgy as it is a religious rite. I personally have dissuaded couples from using Lohengrin's "Processional" because it is from an opera involving a heathen magician, and that marriage was a failure. The other, "The Reconciliation," is unacceptable because it is from another fantasy, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," in which a lovely young girl is married to an ass-headed individual. No publicity please. I am a clergyman.

NAMELESS

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend whom I like very much, but she has two spoiled children and she takes them with her wherever she goes. They are so impossible with their constant whining and nagging that I simply cannot stand them! How can I get this point over to her without losing her friendship? We get along wonderfully well when she leaves them home.

NERVOUS WRECK

DEAR NERVOUS: Most mothers accept any kind of criticism EXCEPT that which concerns their children. There is NO way to tell a mother that you "simply cannot stand her children" without losing her friendship.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "ONE WHO HAS NO TRUST": If you continue to live with your husband after all the proof you have of his cheating, lying and chasing (not to mention the brutal beatings!), you are sicker than he is. Kennedy Homes Dark, Silent Hyannis Port, Mass. (UPI) — A hazy autumn moon hung low over a rambling darkened house in this Cape Cod resort community Friday night.

The silent, peaceful scene hid great sorrow. The house was owned by President Kennedy, slain by a sniper's bullet.

In another house nearby, the parents of the fallen president were consoled by two of their other children. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Eunice Shriver, wife of Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver, hurried here from Washington after learning of the President's assassination. Few witnesses.

There were few other witnesses to the grief of the President's parents, former ambassador and Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy.

Their house was not visible from a police barricade that shunted all traffic away from the Kennedy compound.

The rest of the compound, including the President's summer home near the barrier, appeared to be in darkness. The only movement in the shadowy scene was that of guards standing watch in the glare of floodlights in front of the President's house.

Earlier Friday, preparations had been underway for a festive Thanksgiving celebration which the President and most of his brothers and sisters had planned to attend.

The celebration was an annual affair, an autumn highlight for the close-knit Kennedy clan. But Friday night the shadows held no exciting expectation—only gloom.

The President's parents were advised of their famous son's death by officials at Parkland Hospital in Dallas after a workman at the compound heard news of the shooting on the radio, a source close to the family said.

Ambassador Napping

The elder Kennedy, 75-year-old former ambassador to Great Britain, was napping when he was told that his son had been shot down. The once robust diplomat has been an invalid since suffering a stroke in December 1960.

His wife Rose, 72, had played golf at the Hyannis Country Club earlier Friday but was home when word came of the tragedy.

Richard Cardinal Cushing of Boston, a lifelong friend of the family, announced plans to come here Saturday to console the President's parents. Sen. Kennedy and Mrs. Shriver were tight-lipped and unsmiling as they alighted from their plane and walked to a waiting car.

A newsman asked them if they wished to comment on the President's death. Kennedy shook his head and said, "No."

Only police and a handful of newsmen stood vigil Friday night at the barricade outside the Kennedy compound. There were no curiosity seekers.

Pittman Stresses Increasing Need Of Civil Defense

Omaha (AP) — Civil defense is becoming an increasingly important factor in the nation's military plans, Assistant Secretary of Defense Stuart L. Pittman said Friday.

Pittman said the joint chiefs of staff have concluded that improvements in our defense might be associated with fallout protection on the theory that cities might escape initial bomb blasts and still be overcome by deadly clouds.

He added that cities which escape direct hits or fall-out clouds will have to carry an extra load to guarantee economic recovery.

Tragedy Just Before Children's Birthdays

Washington (UPI) — Caroline Kennedy, who observes her sixth birthday anniversary next Wednesday, and her brother, John Jr., who observes his third on Monday, were in the White House Friday when their father was assassinated in Dallas.

It was believed that their mother, Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, was faced with the task of telling them what had happened.

Once before this year, there was a family tragedy that the children had to be told about. It was the death of their infant brother, Patrick Bouvier Kennedy, last Aug. 9, two days after he had been born.

The children had looked forward to the new baby in the family, and it was their father who took them aside one day and told them there would be none.

The children were in the care of their nurse, Maud Shaw, who has been with both since they were born.

Next week was to have been a big week for the first family. Lots of fun and party preparations had been underway to celebrate John Jr.'s birthday actually on Monday, but to have been celebrated on Tuesday with his playmates at the White House. Party plans also were ready for Caroline, on Wednesday.

Caroline was to be the star at a big family birthday gathering with all her cousins at Cape Cod. All of the Kennedys were to have been together for their traditional Thanksgiving gathering at Hyannis Port on Thursday.

Caroline and John Jr., if not too young, will have many memories of how much their father loved them.

The first lady once said the President used to look at Caroline as though he couldn't believe she was true.

His affection for John Jr. has been especially apparent as the youngster grew old enough to dash in and out of his office, always curious, always eager to race off with his father.

John Jr. went along to Arlington National Cemetery last Nov. 11 on Veterans' Day when the President placed a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknowns.

Mexico Reopens Border With U.S.

Mexico City (AP) — The Mexico-United States border was reopened Friday night after being closed for several hours in a joint move by both governments.

A Mexican government spokesman said the border was closed as a security measure following the slaying of President Kennedy.

He said the governments had decided to reopen the border in order not to further obstruct the heavy flow of travelers between the two countries. But a close check will be kept on arrivals at the border, he said.

Kennedy Homes Dark, Silent

Hyannis Port, Mass. (UPI) —A hazy autumn moon hung low over a rambling darkened house in this Cape Cod resort community Friday night.

The silent, peaceful scene hid great sorrow. The house was owned by President Kennedy, slain by a sniper's bullet.

In another house nearby, the parents of the fallen president were consoled by two of their other children. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Eunice Shriver, wife of Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver, hurried here from Washington after learning of the President's assassination.

Few Witnesses

There were few other witnesses to the grief of the President's parents, former ambassador and Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy.

Their house was not visible from a police barricade that shunted all traffic away from the Kennedy compound.

The rest of the compound, including the President's summer home near the barrier, appeared to be in darkness. The only movement in the shadowy scene was that of guards standing watch in the glare of floodlights in front of the President's house.

Earlier Friday, preparations had been underway for a festive Thanksgiving celebration which the President and most of his brothers and sisters had planned to attend.

The celebration was an annual affair, an autumn highlight for the close-knit Kennedy clan.

But Friday night the shadows hid no exciting expectation—only gloom.

The President's parents were advised of their famous son's death by officials at Parkland Hospital in Dallas after a workman at the compound heard news of the shooting on the radio, a source close to the family said.

Ambassador Napping

The elder Kennedy, 75-year-old former ambassador to Great Britain, was napping when he was told that his son had been shot down. The once robust diplomat has been an invalid since suffering a stroke in December 1960.

His wife Rose, 72, had played golf at the Hyannis Country Club earlier Friday but was home when word came of the tragedy.

Richard Cardinal Cushing of Boston, a lifelong friend of the family, announced plans to come here Saturday to console the President's parents.

Sen. Kennedy and Mrs. Shriver were tight-lipped and unsmiling as they alighted from their plane and walked to a waiting car.

A newsman asked them if they wished to comment on the President's death. Kennedy shook his head and said, "No."

Outside Bank Can't Be Sued Here—High Court

The Nebraska Supreme Court Friday, in a key ruling, held a national bank of another state cannot be sued in Nebraska courts.

The ruling was handed down in the court reversing and ordering dismissed a Lancaster County District Court ruling which held void an installment loan contract between Charlie F. and Linnie Bair, both of Lincoln, and the Michigan National Bank.

Ironically, Chief Justice Paul White of Lincoln had ruled the contract usurious and void when he was serving in Lancaster County District Court judge.

Friday's opinion reversing the district court ruling was written by Justice Leslie Boslaugh. White did not dissent.

The case involved the purchase of a trailer home. The district court, in addition to declaring the loan contract void, ordered the bank to return to the Bairs payments made on the loan.

The district court said the bank waived its immunity from suit in Nebraska courts when it included in the contract a stipulation that the contract "shall be governed by the laws of the state in which the buyer now resides (Nebraska)."

But the Supreme Court held to the contrary. It said:

"A provision in a contract that all matters relating to the execution, interpretation, validity and performance of it shall be governed by the laws of Nebraska is not a waiver of privilege from suit in Nebraska by an assignee of the contract."

The bank relied on a federal law which provides that an action against a national bank can be brought only in a federal district court within the district in which the bank is established. The Michigan National Bank was established in Lansing, Mich.

In other rulings Friday the court:

—Refused to grant a rehearing in another case involving the Michigan National Bank and a conditional sales contract of its earlier ruling holding the contract void.

But the court did alter its original opinion to the extent of ordering the Lancaster County District Court to dismiss the bank from the case.

The case involved the purchase of a trailer home by Elvin E. Hills of Lincoln from Burnett's Home Trailer Sales of Lincoln. The Michigan National Bank had underwritten the contract through Burnett's Trailer Sales.

Hills had brought the action against both the trailer sales firm and the bank. But again the high court said that because the bank was not established in Nebraska, it was immune from suit in state courts.

Friday's ruling, however, did not change that part of the original opinion holding the contract usurious and void. It held merely that Burnett's Trailer Sales alone was liable for the void contract.

—Overruled a motion for rehearing in still another case involving a time-sales contract, but did modify its original opinion slightly.

The case involved the purchase of laundry equipment by Maurice Berg of Lincoln from the Midwest Laundry Equipment Corp. of Lincoln. The Lancaster County District Court and the high court had both held the contract void.

But the Supreme Court modified its opinion Friday to the extent of ordering the district court to determine the amount of the payments made by Berg to the laundry equipment firm.

—Affirmed the Madison County District Court in a ruling made in a school redistricting case involving Richard Bierman and Anne Campbell.

An appeal to the Supreme Court was made from an order of the district court enjoining the dissolution of School District 14 and its attachment to District 1. Bierman and District 14 brought the action against Mrs. Campbell, the county superintendent of schools.

—Affirmed in part and in part reversed a Lincoln County District Court decision.

The suit concerned an action under the declaratory judgment act to determine the ownership of some personal property listed in the executor's inventory of the estate of Raymond A. Oger.

The trial court found in favor of the executor. The guardian ad litem of Ray Oger and his wife, Mrs. Oger, minor defendants, appealed.

The Supreme Court said the trial court was correct in ruling that the executor of Raymond A. Oger was the sole owner of the city of Cambridge bonds totaling $3,000. But the high court reversed the lower court finding that General Motors Acceptance Corporation notes of $275,000, Municipal Bonds of $25,000 and U.S. Government Bonds of $25,000 were the sole property of Mrs. Oger. The judgment was reversed with directions to enter a decree holding such notes and bonds to have been held by M. A. and Mrs. Oger as tenants in common at the time of Oger's death.

Provisions were also made in the Supreme Court ruling for fees for the guardian ad litem.

—Reversed a decision by the Lincoln County District Court in a motor vehicle accident suit.

Edd Steel brought suit, alleging he sustained injuries and damages because of the negligence of Emmanuel Nordin while Nordin was backing a truck at night to a farm building. Steel was standing next to the building.

A jury found in favor of Steel and awarded him $13,160. Steel suffered two broken legs in the accident.

After reviewing the case, the Supreme Court said Steel was "guilty of contributory negligence to a degree which was a matter of law more than slight" and that the verdict in his favor "may not be allowed to stand."

The court said Nordin was entitled to a directed verdict in his favor at the conclusion of the evidence and is now entitled to a judgment in his favor.

BIG EIGHT TITLE IS ON LINE

Huskers, Sooners Battle For Orange Bowl Berth

... PRESIDENT'S DEATH DAMPENS SPIRITS

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

The atmosphere may be changed slightly by the shock of President Kennedy's death Friday, but the Big Eight championship and a trip to the Orange Bowl will still be at stake when Nebraska and Oklahoma meet at 2 p.m. today at Memorial Stadium.

The death of the President has dampened spirits somewhat on the NU campus, forcing cancellation of a bonfire rally scheduled for Friday night.

But the game will go on and before an expected capacity crowd of 39,000 plus a local home television audience and thousands more are expected to view the key contest on closed circuit screens in Omaha and Oklahoma City.

Visit Planned

The Sooners and Huskers will be playing for the right to appear in a bowl game — the Orange Bowl — that likely would have been attended by President Kennedy on New Year's Day.

President Kennedy attended the Orange Bowl contest last year and had made preliminary plans to appear in Miami, Fla., for this year's game.

The game presents Nebraska with a chance to win its first conference championship since 1940 when the Huskers won the Big Six title, then lost to Stanford in the Rose Bowl.

"We were very encouraged by Clardige's performance in practice Thursday," Devaney said. Clardige has been hobbled by a charley horse since the Missouri game.

The Husker coach said his prize signal-caller would probably direct the No. 1 unit against the Sooners with sophomore Fred Duda handling the reins for the alternates.

Clardige, a 6-3, 222-pounder from Robbinsdale, Minn., was rated a near-cinch for all-Big Eight honors before the season and was being eyed for all-American in some circles.

However, injuries have slowed the NU senior much of the season and Duda has stepped in and directed the Scarlet and Cream to wins over Kansas State, Kansas and Oklahoma State.

Johnson Doubtful

Fullback Rudy Johnson, the Huskers' other injury problem, is still doubtful for today's game. Johnson is suffering from a foot injury.

Oklahoma left quarterback Norm Smith and Mike Ringer along with halfback Jackie Cowan in Norman because of injuries, but all-Big Eight fullback Jim Grisham made the trip and showed no signs of an ankle injury that reportedly has slowed him the past two weeks.

Sooner coach Bud Wilkinson said Friday he would not make a decision until game time today on whether he would start Grisham or sophomore Larry Brown at the fullback spot.

Brown played fullback the final quarter against Missouri last week and led the drive that gained the clinching Sooner touchdown in the 13-3 win over the Tigers. Brown was also Oklahoma's leading ground gainer in that contest.

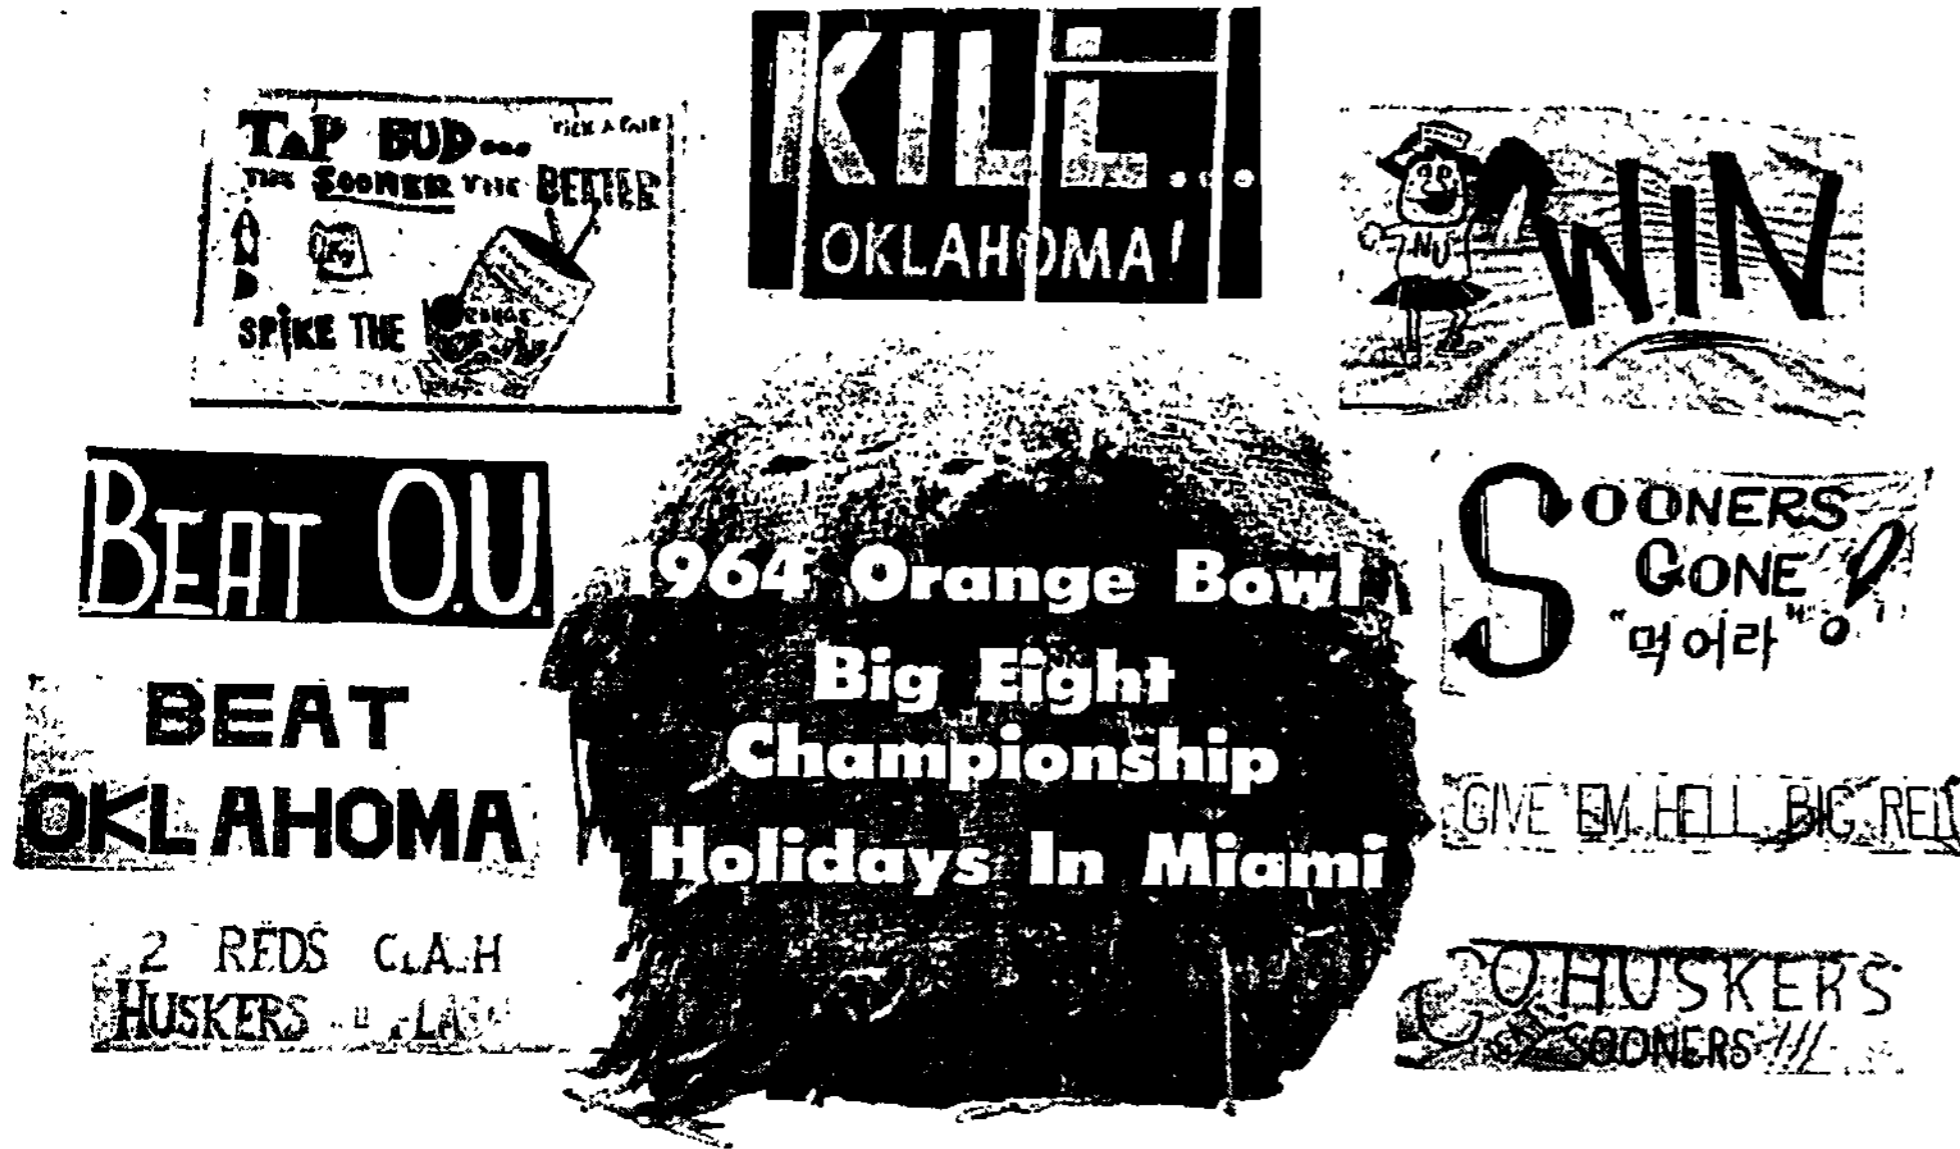

Unbeaten In Big 8

Both teams are entering today's contest with unbeaten conference records and with only one loss each for the season. Oklahoma suffered its sole defeat in a 20-7 lashing by Texas while the Huskers fell to the Air Force, 17-13. The Sooners still have a date with Oklahoma State next Saturday before winding up its regular season.

Representatives of both the Orange and Bluebonnet bowls will attend today's game along with Big Eight Executive Director Wayne Duke.

While the winner of the Oklahoma-Nebraska game will automatically be presented with the Orange Bowl bid after the game, the loser is a prime candidate for one of the Bluebonnet Bowl berths at Houston, Tex., Dec. 21.

Big Eight teams have played in the Bluebonnet Bowl each of the last three years.

Postponement Plea Turned Down

... REGENTS VOTE TO PLAY CONTEST

The Nebraska-Oklahoma football game will go on as scheduled today, but there were indications Friday that the key Big Eight game may have been postponed.

The Nebraska Board of Regents issued a statement after a two-hour meeting Friday evening, saying the game would be played.

This ended many hours of anxious waiting for Husker fans both in Lincoln and at distant points who had to make travel connections. Hundreds of Oklahoma fans, who had already arrived in Lincoln for the game also were among those awaiting the decision.

The question of playing the game became a reality after Nebraska Gov. Frank Morrison asked that it not be played. The governor's plea came only moments after NU Chancellor Clifford Hardin had met with his vice chancellors and decided to go on with the game.

But Morrison's public plea from Omaha brought the question to the front and into the public eye.

Big Eight Executive Director Wayne Duke, in Lincoln for the game, began polling the Big Eight faculty representatives by phone and at the same time Chancellor Hardin went into session with the NU Board of Regents.

After more than two hours of consultation, the Board of Regents issued the following statement:

"The Board of Regents of the University of Nebraska, deeply sorrowful about the death of President Kennedy, believes the people of Nebraska wish to have the Nebraska-Oklahoma game played as scheduled. This will be done.

"The decision has been made after consultation with the president of the University of Oklahoma, coaches Bob Devaney and Bud Wilkinson, Nebraska Athletic Director Tippy Dye, Big Eight Executive Director Wayne Duke and Gov. Frank Morrison.

"The Big Eight faculty representatives recommend that conference games be played."

Phones Busy

The uncertainty of the scheduled contest brought a constant supply of phone calls to The Star's sports staff, including calls from points such as Chicago and Denver.

A Husker fan from Chicago called an hour before his plane was to leave the Windy City, requesting advice as to whether he should board the aircraft. Another fan ad only 10 minutes to catch his train out of Denver for Lincoln.

Both requests were made before the Board of Regents came through with their decision.

Three other games involving Big Eight schools were postponed. These games are Missouri-Kansas, Oklahoma State-Kansas State, and Colorado-Air Force.

Duke said Friday night the Missouri-Kansas game would be played next Saturday and that the Colorado-Air Force game probably would also be played that day.

However, the status of the Oklahoma State-Kansas State game is not settled. A Big Eight rule prohibits conference teams to play after Dec. 5 except in bowl games.

Duke said the conference faculty representatives probably would be polled in an effort to relax this rule so that the game could be played — probably Dec. 7.

The game could effect the standings at the bottom end of the Big Eight ladder. A Kansas State win would give the Wildcats a sixth place tie with Colorado while a loss would leave Oklahoma State and Kansas State tied for seventh.

The Kansas State-Oklahoma State game could not be played next Saturday because the Cowboys have an engagement that day with Oklahoma.

Although CBS and ABC officials have cancelled all plans for televising games, KOLN-TV officials said they would go ahead with the telecast which will carry the game into homes in the Lincoln and Grand Island areas.

Resolution Urges NU Win

A resolution urging the University of Nebraska football team to go "full speed ahead all the way to Miami" was adopted unanimously by the Legislature Friday.

Nebraska plays Oklahoma here Saturday afternoon for the Big Eight Conference championship and the right to play in the Orange Bowl in Miami on New Year's Day.

The resolution was introduced by Sen. Marvin Stromer of Lincoln.

Kennedy Assassination Prompts Cancellations

By Associated Press

The traditional football game between Harvard, alma mater of President Kennedy, and Yale was called off Friday as news of his assassination swept a horrified nation.

Harvard and Yale were to have played the 80th game in the most historic and hallowed of all the nation's traditional football series in New Haven, Conn., Saturday.

A spokesman for Harvard, where Kennedy once competed as a member of the swimming team, said the game was cancelled and added, "It probably will not be rescheduled."

A joint announcement at Yale said only that it would "not take place this weekend."

A reliable source later said that the game probably will be rescheduled for Nov. 30.

The game was one of hundreds of athletic events scheduled this weekend either postponed or cancelled.

Major Eastern race tracks shut down immediately on the announcement of the President's death. The National Basketball Association postponed its entire four-game Friday slate, as did the American Hockey League. A Friday night fight between Alvin Thomas of Chicago, and Johnny Persol of New York, scheduled for national television coverage from Madison Square Garden was cancelled.

Dozens of major college football games scheduled Saturday were called off, including the entire Big Six scheduled.

The National Football League said its seven games could have determined the host team in the Rose Bowl. The three-game slate was rescheduled for Nov. 30.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association, through executive secretary Walter Byers, left it to the colleges involved as to whether to continue with their games, but asked that if the games are played they include "an appropriate, dignified opening ceremony and whatever other memorial tribute you might think appropriate at half-time."

The Illinois-Michigan State game, which will determine the Big Ten representative in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day, will go on as scheduled.

So will the Oklahoma-Nebraska game, scheduled in Lincoln, Neb. The winner clinches the Big Eight spot in the Orange Bowl.

The Southwest Conference games between Southern Methodist and Baylor and Texas Christian and Rice were postponed till later dates.

Generally, it appeared that most professional athletics scheduled Friday had been postponed or cancelled, but that the schedule would be resumed Saturday. The colleges were divided, though most of the Saturday activities in the East were called off.

The American Football League announced that its full slate of four Sunday games had been postponed.

The game presents Nebraska with a chance to win its first conference championship since 1940 when the Huskers won the Big Six title, then lost to Stanford in the Rose Bowl.

Fourth Bowl Berth

A win also would give Nebraska its fourth bowl berth in the history of the school. In addition to the 1941 Rose Bowl, Scarlet and Cream elevens have appeared in the 1955 Orange Bowl and in the 1962 Gotham Bowl.

Last year's Gotham Bowl was the Huskers only victorious bowl appearance.

Today's contest couldn't have been prepared better by a script writer except for the shocking death of the President on the eve of the game.

Rushing Leaders

Today's Big Eight title clash pits the top two rushing teams in the nation. Nebraska leads in rushing with a 270.2 yards per game average while the Sooners are second with a 253.9 average.

The Huskers are also fourth in total offense with a 358 yard average and eighth in scoring with a 25.7 points per game average. The Sooners are not in the top ten in either category.

However, Oklahoma is rated above the Huskers in both Associated Press and United Press International polls with both being in the top ten in each.

Claridge Will Play

Nebraska hopes rose somewhat Friday with the announcement that injured quarterback Dennis Claridge would be ready for some duty.

"We were very encouraged by Claridge's performance in practice Thursday," Devaney said. Claridge has been hobbled by a charley horse since the Missouri game.

The Husker coach said his prize signal-caller would probably direct the No. 1 unit against the Sooners with sophomore Fred Duda handling the reins for the alternates.

Claridge, a 6-3, 222-pounder from Robbinsdale, Minn., was rated a near-cinch for all-Big Eight honors before the season and was being eyed for all-American in some circles.

However, injuries have slowed the NU senior much of the season and Duda has stepped in and directed the Scarlet and Cream to wins over Kansas State, Kansas and Oklahoma State.

Johnson Doubtful

Fullback Rudy Johnson, the Huskers other injury problem, is still doubtful for today's game. Johnson is suffering from a foot injury.

Oklahoma left quarterback Norm Smith and Mike Ringer along with halfback Jackie Cowan in Norman because of injuries, but all-Big Eight fullback Jim Grisham made the trip and showed no signs of an ankle injury that reportedly has slowed him the past two weeks.

Sooner coach Bud Wilkinson said Friday he would not make a decision until game time today on whether he would start Grisham or sophomore Larry Brown at the fullback spot.

Brown played fullback the final quarter against Missouri last week and led the drive that gained the clinching Sooner touchdown in the 13-3 win over the Tigers. Brown was also Oklahoma's leading ground gainer in that contest.

Unbeaten In Big 8

Both teams are entering today's contest with unbeaten conference records and with only one loss each for the season. Oklahoma suffered its sole defeat in a 28-7 lashing by Texas while the Huskers fell to the Air Force, 17-13. The Sooners still have a date with Oklahoma State next Saturday before winding up its regular season.

Representatives of both the Orange and Bluebonnet bowls will attend today's game along with Big Eight Executive Director Wayne Duke.

While the winner of the Oklahoma-Nebraska game will automatically be presented with the Orange Bowl bid after the game, the loser is a prime candidate for one of the Bluebonnet Bowl berths at Houston, Tex., Dec. 21.

Big Eight teams have played in the Bluebonnet Bowl each of the last three years.

Postponement Plea Turned Down

... REGENTS VOTE TO PLAY CONTEST

The Nebraska-Oklahoma football game will go on as scheduled today, but there were indications Friday that the key Big Eight game may have been postponed. The Nebraska Board of Regents issued a statement after a two-hour meeting Friday evening, saying the game would be played. This ended many hours of anxious waiting for Husker fans both in Lincoln and at distant points who had to make travel connections. Hundreds of Oklahoma fans, who had already arrived in Lincoln for the game also were among those awaiting the decision.

The question of playing the game became a reality after Nebraska Gov. Frank Morrison asked that it not be played. The governor's plea came only moments after NU Chancellor Clifford Hardin had met with his vice chancellors and decided to go on with the game.

But Morrison's public plea from Omaha brought the question to the front and into the public eye.

Big Eight Executive Director Wayne Duke, in Lincoln for the game, began polling the Big Eight faculty representatives by phone and at the same time Chancellor Hardin went into session with the NU Board of Regents.

Regents' Statement

After more than two hours of consultation, the Board of Regents issued the following statement:

"The Board of Regents of the University of Nebraska, deeply sorrowful about the death of President Kennedy, believes the people of Nebraska wish to have the Nebraska-Oklahoma game played as scheduled. This will be done.

"The decision has been made after consultation with the president of the University of Oklahoma, coaches Bob Devaney and Bud Wilkinson, Nebraska Athletic Director Tippy Dye, Big Eight Executive Director Wayne Duke and Gov. Frank Morrison.

"The Big Eight faculty representatives recommend that conference games be played."

Phones Busy

The uncertainty of the scheduled contest brought a constant supply of phone calls to The Star's sports staff, including calls from points such as Chicago and Denver.

A Husker fan from Chicago called an hour before his plane was to leave the Windy City, requesting advice as to whether he should board the aircraft. Another fan ad only 10 minutes to catch his train out of Denver for Lincoln.

Both requests were made before the Board of Regents came through with their decision.

Three other games involving Big Eight schools were postponed. These games are Missouri-Kansas, Oklahoma State-Kansas State, and Colorado-Air Force.

Duke said Friday night the Missouri-Kansas game would be played next Saturday and that the Colorado-Air Force game probably would also be played that day.

However, the status of the Oklahoma State-Kansas State game is not settled. A Big Eight rule prohibits conference teams to play after Dec. 5 except in bowl games.

Duke said the conference faculty representatives probably would be polled in an effort to relax this rule so that the game could be played — probably Dec. 7.

The game could effect the standings at the bottom end of the Big Eight ladder. A Kansas State win would give the Wildcats a sixth place tie with Colorado while a loss would leave Oklahoma State and Kansas State tied for seventh.

The Kansas State-Oklahoma State game could not be played next Saturday because the Cowboys have an engagement that day with Oklahoma.

Although CBS and ABC officials have cancelled all plans for televising games, KOLN-TV officials said they would go ahead with the telecast which will carry the game into homes in the Lincoln and Grand Island areas.

Chief Executive Supported Athletics Through Attendance, Fitness Program

JFK ONCE WAS FROSH GRIDDER

Boston (AP)—Athletics as well as the political world suffered a severe loss in the death of President John F. Kennedy. The one-time scrub football player and ardent fan was considered one of the best friends American sports ever had.

The man who munched a hot dog in the Orange Bowl and opened three American League baseball seasons with the traditional first pitch emphasized participation to the spectator public.

President Kennedy did not merely stress physical well-being with touch football games on the White House lawn and sailing and swimming off-shore near his Hyannis Port, Mass. summer home.

He also created a Council on Youth Fitness under the supervision of Oklahoma's football coach and athletic director, Bud Wilkinson. The program was encouraged throughout all primary public schools in the country.

Negotiated in Feud

And when the bitter power struggle between the Amateur Athletic Union and National Collegiate Athletic Association over control of amateur athletics threatened the U.S. Olympic program earlier this year, the vigorous young President stepped in strongly.

He appointed Gen. Douglas MacArthur the final say arbitrator in the dispute and the five-star general hammered out a truce.

For outstanding service to football, President Kennedy received a gold medal award from the National Football Foundation. He had surrounded himself with football men, feeling they were rounded citizens best trained to meet today's problems.

Byron (Whizzer) White, the famed Colorado halfback of the late 1930s became a Supreme Court justice. There were football men among his advisors, including former Harvard captain Kenneth O'Donnell, and when racial strife broke out in Birmingham, Ala. one of Kennedy's choices as a Federal mediator was Earl (Red) Blaik, former Army and Dartmouth football coach.

Game Cancelled

Harvard announced its traditional football game with Yale scheduled at New Haven Saturday is off because of the national tragedy involving one of the university's illustrious sons. Although his younger brothers gained more football prominence at Harvard, President Kennedy was an end on the freshman and junior varsity squads and a swimmer. U.S. Attorney General Robert Kennedy and Sen. Ted Kennedy were Harvard varsity football players.

A freshman teammate of the then future President recalled he "was a tall, rangy end and he was pretty good though he never made a varsity letter."

President Kennedy called on his early swimming training during the war when the PT boat he skippered was sliced in two by a Japanese destroyer in the South Pacific. He managed to tow a crewman from the wreck to shore, a distance of three miles, in five hours. Later, he spent a week swimming from island to island seeking aid.

NAIA Director Praises JFK

Omaha, (UPI)—The executive director of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics Thursday night described President Kennedy's death as a great tragedy to American athletics.

"Never has a President shown such an active interest in athletics and physical fitness," Al Duer said.

Duer, Kansas City, said the President deserved the lasting gratitude of all American sports lovers for his role in helping soothe the sports feud between the Amateur Athletic Union and the National Collegiate Athletic Association. Duer was here for a workshop of the Central Intercollegiate Conference attended by Presidents, Deans, Athletic directors and other officials of the University of Omaha, Washburn, Emporia State, Fort Hays State and Pittsburg State.

$6 Million Offer For Lions OK'd

Detroit (AP)—As expected, Detroit Lions stockholders wasted little time Friday in accepting William Clay Ford's $6 million offer to purchase the National Football League club.

There were 55 of the 144 stock holders present at Friday morning's meeting in a Detroit hotel. Less than an hour after the doors were closed, it was announced that the offer had been approved and the Detroit Football Co. would be dissolved as a corporation by Jan. 10, 1964.

The 38-year-old Ford, vice-president of Ford Motor Co., has been president of the Lions for the past 2½ years.

It was reported that 94 percent of the stockholders approved the sale. Only 75 percent approval was needed to make the offer binding.

Raleigh, N.C. (AP)—North Carolina State clinched at least a tie for the Atlantic Coast Conference football title Friday night with a smashing 42-0 victory over Wake Forest.

The Wolfpack, winding up its season with a 6-1 conference mark and an 8-2 overall record, will share the ACC crown with the winner of next week's Duke-North Carolina game. A Duke-North Carolina tie would give State the championship outright.

The crowd of 15,000 stood with bowed heads for a minute in tribute to President Kennedy, who was assassinated earlier in the day.

MONTANA ST. RELEASES COACH

Missoula, Mont. (AP)—Montana State University announced Friday the firing of Ray Jenkins, head football coach whose teams hurt by athletic de-emphasis compiled a record of 14 victories and 41 losses in six years.

The announcement by Athletic Director Wally Schwank said MSU decided not to renew Jenkins' contract. Schwank said Dr. Robert Johns, MSU president, concurred in the decision to release Jenkins in the best interest of Jenkins and the university.

The firing followed a 1-9 won-loss season, the worst for Montana since 1958 when the Grizzlies went 0-8 in Jenkins' first year as head mentor.

Flip Of Coin Decides Title

Jakarta (AP)—The United Arab Republic won the final gold medal of the Games of The New Emerging Forces on the toss of a coin after a riotous soccer game with North Korea in which both teams were locked in a 1-1 draw even after a 30-minute overtime.

The game proceeded the formal GANEFO closing ceremonies.

The UAR scored its goal in the second minute of the overtime after inside right Badaway Abdul Fattah dribbled past two Koreans and slashed a flat eight-yarder into the Korean goal.

Some 100,000 soccer fanatics were packed into Jakarta's main stadium. They booed as the UAR went ahead after a game marred by fouls, rough play and interruptions.

When the Koreans tied it in the 21st minute of the extra period, the crowd went wild with joy only to revert to booing when it was announced that the UAR won the game on the toss.

NFL Title Picture Is Uncertain

... SUNDAY'S GAMES MAY GIVE ANSWERS

By JIM BECKER

New York (AP)—The title picture in the National Football League could be crystal clear after Sunday's games. On the other hand, it could be in the worst mess you ever saw.

The most important matchups are Chicago Bears—Pittsburgh Steelers and New York Giants—St. Louis Cardinals.

The Bears lead the West with a 9-1 record. The Steelers are still alive in the East at 6-3-1. A Chicago verdict should just about wrap up the Western title.

The Giants lead the East at 8-2, with the Cards and the Cleveland Browns tied at 7-3. A New York victory would give the Giants a near lock on the Eastern title, although the Browns might still have something to say.

But—if the favored Bears and Giants lose, there could be a two-way tie in the West and a three-way tie in the East with the Steelers right behind.

The theory in this winner pickin' corner is that the Bears and Giants, having sniffed the gold, will not let up.

Here's the rest of the NFL schedule:

Dallas at Cleveland, San Francisco at Green Bay, Baltimore at Los Angeles, Detroit at Minnesota and Washington at Philadelphia.

The American League has cancelled all of this week-end's games because of President Kennedy's death.

The picking department is 66-33-2 for a .667 percentage on the year, only slightly worse than the record compiled by a small neighbor boy who throws darts at the program while blindfolded to get his winners.

NFL

Chicago 21, Pittsburgh 17—The Bears did everything right last week against Green Bay and there is no reason to assume they have forgotten how. The Steelers have had a snakebite season, getting a tie when two extra points were missed against Eagles, and drawing the Bears and Green Bay for their two inter-division games.

New York 38, St. Louis 21—Y. A. Tittle picked the Cards apart in their last game, and he improves with age. Cards have Charley Johnson and fine pass receivers and they will score.

Cleveland 24, Dallas 14—Nobody stops Jimmy Brown this year, and the Cowboys most of all. He got 232 yards against them last time, and should break his own season record in this game.

Green Bay 41, San Francisco 10—Packers on the rebound from the Bears defeat. One of the mysteries of the NFL season is how the inept 49ers ever managed to beat the Bears.

Baltimore 35, Los Angeles

Holy Cross Mentor Added To Effigy List

Worcester, Mass. (AP)—Add the name of Dr. Eddie Anderson to the list of 1963 football coaches hanged in effigy.

The Holy Cross mentor, who is in the midst of his third losing season in 20 with the Crusaders, was hanged in effigy on a tree in the campus quadrangle Thursday night. Holy Cross' 1963 record so far is 1-6-1.

Boxers Get Help From Barber Assn.

Lincoln's Associated Master Barbers Friday took over the Capital City's Golden Gloves program thus ending the uncertainty that had clouded the scene since the American Legion dropped the program earlier this fall.

Lincoln has always made a sizeable contribution to the state and national Golden Gloves tournaments and will now be able to continue this project.

Current plans call for possibly three smokers prior to the Southeast Golden Gloves tournament here tentatively slated for Jan. 31 and Feb. 1.

Winners of this tourney make the trip to Omaha for the Midwest meet. Omaha's winners this year will then advance to the National Tournament of Champions at Louisville, Ky. in late February.

At least three of last year's Southeast champions are in training at this time and possibly three others will be on the scene before the first smoker.

Three boxing clubs are staging workouts at the training quarters provided by Roberts Dairy. They include Gene Acosta, Larry Emery and the Larchick Brothers.

Byrnes' Speech Called Magnificent By Proxmire, But 'Maudlin' By Morse

Washington (AP)—The Senate heard Rep. John W. Byrnes' explanation of his stock deal described alternately Friday as a magnificent reaction and as a "maudlin performance."

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said the Wisconsin

AAA Raps Provision In Tax Cut Measure

Washington (AP)—The American Automobile Association urged senators Friday to kill a provision in the tax cut bill which would disallow state gasoline taxes and automobile license fees as deductions in figuring federal income taxes.

Russell E. Singer, AAA executive vice president, called this a "soak-the-motorist" provision which would discriminate against everyone who must use his car to get to work or to conduct his business.

Charleses Reign Over G.I. Board

Grand Island (AP)—It was the reign of the Charleses when the Grand Island Board of Realtors elected officers.

Charles Douthett was elected president.

Charles Lundquist was named vice president.

Charles Winkler became secretary-treasurer.

Thais End Visit

Jerusalem (AP)—A Thailand trade delegation, concluding a three-day visit to Israel, said prospects are good for increased commercial relations between the two countries.

I am proud of what John Byrnes has done."

Byrnes told the House in an impassioned speech Thursday that he will sell the stock he bought in the Mortgage Guaranty Insurance Corp. and donate the profits to a scholarship fund.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., told the Senate that Byrnes' sometimes tearful speech was "a maudlin performance that only lacked Nixon's dog Checkers."

"In my judgment," Morse said, "it adds up to the fact that someone's hand got caught in the cookie jar and now wants it to appear that he only wanted to give the cookies to children."

Morse's reference was to former Vice President Richard M. Nixon's dramatic broadcast during the 1952 campaign, in which Nixon explained his connection with

"We object strenuously," Singer told the finance committee, "to having use of the automobile placed in the same category with the consumption of alcoholic beverages and the use of tobacco."

"We also object to legislation that would continue to allow deductions for state and municipal sales taxes on furs, jewelry, and other such luxury items, but takes away the right of deduction for state motorist taxes."

"Study after study... proves that 65% of all workers depend on automobiles to get to and from their jobs. In fact, a total of 80% of private automobile trips are for a necessary purpose."

The provision, one of the biggest revenue-raising items in the bill, is estimated to bring in about $300 million a year to help offset in small part the net $11 billion tax cut.

W. Evans Buchanan, Rockville, Md., president of the National Association of Home Builders, told the committee his group supported the overall tax cut.

"We believe that a stimulus to the nation's home buying economy will result from full enactment of this bill, and that as a result more people will be better housed in better homes," he said.

Big Alkali Lake Land Considered For State Park

The Nebraska Game Commission Friday discussed the possible purchase of 27 acres of land around Big Alkali Lake in Cherry County but deferred action on the matter until its December meeting.

The state owns the lake and the commission has a 10-year agreement for the surrounding property owner to maintain an access road to the lake.

The commission was told the owner is now thinking of selling the land and wants to know if the commission is interested in buying.

The lake is near the Valentine Wildlife Refuge.

Nik: Berlin Situation Is Underestimated By West

Moscow (AP)—Premier Khrushchev says the U.S.-Soviet dispute over policing military traffic on the road to West Berlin is more serious than the West realizes.

Khrushchev's feeling was reported Friday to a news conference by Foreign Minister Per Hækkerup of Denmark, who talked with the premier at Kiev Wednesday.

Khrushchev emphasized during his talks that the Kremlin would never agree to changes in clearance procedures on the Berlin autobahn, the Danish official said.

Severity Underestimated

"Mr. Khrushchev said he had the feeling that many people in the world had underestimated the severity of the situation on the highway to Berlin," Hækkerup added.

He described Khrushchev's position on the issue as very firm and reported the Soviet leader emphasized he "will not accept any change in the situation."

Crash Kills Top Military Men In India

New Delhi (UPI)—Five of India's top military men, including the army and air force commanding generals in Kashmir and Ladakh, were killed Friday in a helicopter crash near the Kashmir city of Poonch. The pilot also died.

The defense ministry identified the victims as:

Air Vice Marshal E. V. Pinto, who commanded the western operational command of the air force.

Lt. Gen. Daulet Singh, commander in chief of the western command.

Lt. Gen. Bikram Singh, commander of the corps which controls both Kashmir and Ladakh under Daulet Singh's overall command.

Maj. Gen. M. K. D. Nanavati.

Brig. S. R. Oberoi.

Flight Lt. S. S. Sodhi, pilot of the French built Alouette helicopter.

The deaths were announced to a stunned parliament by Defense Minister Yashwantrao Chavan who said, "our loss has been great" and recalled the "remarkable example of leadership" the two lieutenant generals showed in the Ladakh fighting in the border war with Communist China. Parliament recessed immediately.

There were few details of the crash but Chavan said it occurred near the Indian town of Poonch near the Kashmir-Pakistan border. There has been tension there since a shooting incident last month but the ministry did not mention Pakistan in a brief communique.

A spokesman said later Pakistan was in no way involved.

Ecumenical Council Approves Reforms

Vatican City (UPI)—The Ecumenical Council Friday gave final, overwhelming approval to the most sweeping reforms in Roman Catholic worship in more than 1,000 years.

The historic decree was ratified by a vote of 2,153 to 19.

It will be promulgated by Pope Paul VI at a public session of the council, probably next Friday or Saturday.

The liturgical reform decree is the first major work completed by the assembly of Catholic Bishops. It has been under consideration since the Ecumenical Council convened at the call of the late Pope John XXIII in the fall of 1962.

The change which will have the greatest impact on Catholic men and women in the pew is authorization for the use of modern languages instead of Latin in large sections of the mass and in the entire rites of baptism, marriage, confession and other sacraments.

It is up to national conferences of bishops to decide when and how the change-over will take place.

Bishops from the United States, England, Canada, Australia and other English-speaking countries have appointed a special committee of scholars to begin work on an official English-language mass.

The so-called "canon" of the mass—the holiest part of the service, in which the priest re-enacts the sacrifice of Christ—will continue to be spoken or sung in Latin. But the decree provides that National Conferences of Bishops may petition the Vatican for permission to introduce modern languages even into the heart of the mass.

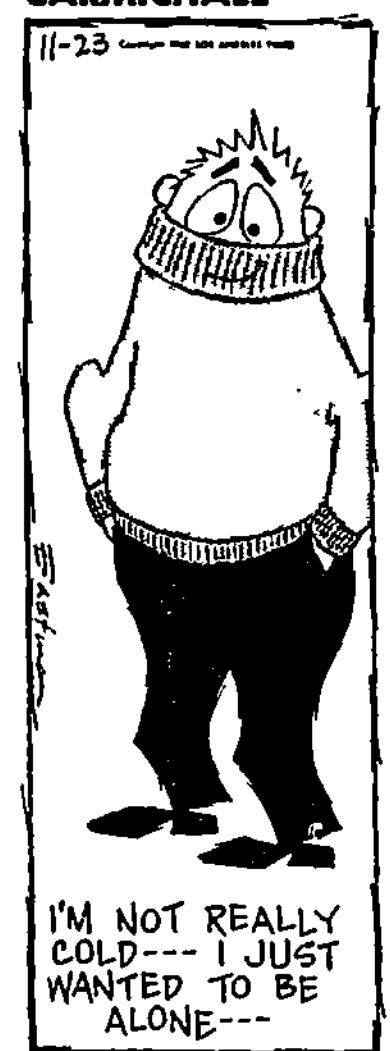

Other changes include:

—The sacrament which previously was known officially as "extreme unction" and popularly as "the last rites" henceforth will be named "the anointing of the sick."

—Reform of the church calendar to put more emphasis on Sundays and the major feast days (such as Christmas and Easter).

—A statement that the Catholic church will not oppose setting a fixed date for Easter.

Mayor Dean Petersen Friday appointed Stanley H. Sands to the Board of Zoning Appeals as the representative of the City-County Planning Commission.

Sands, who was recently appointed to the commission, will serve a term on the appeals board to Aug. 19, 1969, which is concurrent with his commission term.

Sands succeeds Joseph Ginsburg on the board. Ginsburg's term had expired on the commission, and he resigned from the appeal board.

In accepting the resignation, Mayor Petersen expressed appreciation for Ginsburg's services to the city as a member of the commission and the board.

TURNCOAT IS BOUND OVER

Akron, Ohio (AP)—Complaining that "no one's in my corner," Lowell D. Skinner, 32-year-old Korean War turncoat, was bound over to the Summit County Grand Jury Friday on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, a felony.

He is accused of firing a shot at two teenage boys last Monday night in the home of Mrs. Roberta Longgood, 26, a convict's wife.

Skinner is one of 21 American prisoners who refused to be repatriated after the 1953 Korean armistice. The former Army corporal stayed in Communist China for nine years, married a Chinese girl, and returned to his home town of Akron only three months ago. He has been unable to find steady employment.

Byrnes' Speech Called Magnificent By Proxmire, But 'Maudlin' By Morse

Washington (AP)—The Senate heard Rep. John W. Byrnes' explanation of his stock deal described alternately Friday as a magnificent reaction and as a "maudlin performance."

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said the Wisconsin

AAA Raps Provision In Tax Cut Measure

Washington (AP)—The American Automobile Association urged senators Friday to kill a provision in the tax cut bill which would disallow state gasoline taxes and automobile license fees as deductions in figuring federal income taxes.

Russell E. Singer, AAA executive vice president, called this a "soak-the-motorist" provision which would discriminate against everyone who must use his car to get to work or to conduct his business.

Charleses Reign Over G.I. Board

Grand Island (AP)—It was the reign of the Charleses when the Grand Island Board of Realtors elected officers.

Charles Douthitt was elected president.

Charles Lundquist was named vice president.

Thais End Visit

Jerusalem (AP)—A Thailand trade delegation, concluding a three-day visit to Israel, said prospects are good for increased commercial relations between the two countries.

house Republican has shown that he is "a man of integrity."

Speaking as one "who has clashed vigorously with Mr. Byrnes in past political campaigns," Proxmire said: "As a citizen of Wisconsin

"We object strenuously," Singer told the finance committee, "to having use of the automobile placed in the same category with the consumption of alcoholic beverages and the use of tobacco."

"We also object to legislation that would continue to allow deductions for state and municipal sales taxes on furs, jewelry, and other such luxury items, but takes away the right of deduction for state motorist taxes."

"Study after study proves that 65% of all workers depend on automobiles to get to and from their jobs. In fact, a total of 80% of private automobile trips are for a necessary purpose."

The provision, one of the biggest revenue-raising items in the bill, is estimated to bring in about $300 million a year to help offset in small part the net $11 billion tax cut.

W. Evans Buchanan, Rockville, Md., president of the National Association of Home Builders, told the committee his group supported the overall tax cut.

"We believe that a stimulus to the nation's home buying economy will result from full enactment of this bill, and that as a result more people will be better housed in better homes," he said.

I am proud of what John Byrnes has done."

Byrnes told the House in an impassioned speech Thursday that he will sell the stock he bought in the Mortgage Guaranty Insurance Corp. and donate the profits to a scholarship fund.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., told the Senate that Byrnes' sometimes tearful speech was "a maudlin performance that only lacked Nixon's dog Checkers."

"In my judgment," Morse said, "it adds up to the fact that someone's hand got caught in the cookie jar and now wants it to appear that he only wanted to give the cookies to children."

Morse's reference was to former Vice President Richard M. Nixon's dramatic broadcast during the 1952 campaign, in which Nixon explained his connection with

Big Alkali Lake Land Considered For State Park

The Nebraska Game Commission Friday discussed the possible purchase of 27 acres of land around Big Alkali Lake in Cherry County but deferred action on the matter until its December meeting.

The state owns the lake and the commission has a 10-year agreement for the surrounding property owner to maintain an access road to the lake.

The commission was told the owner is now thinking of selling the land and wants to know if the commission is interested in buying.

The lake is near the Valentine Wildlife Refuge.

an $18,000 private political expense fund.

Emotional Detail
In emotional detail, Nixon described his career, his family finances, the house they bought, and the little cocker spaniel, Checkers, they had received as a gift.

"Regardless of what they say about it, we are going to keep it," Nixon said.

After the broadcast, Nixon received a vote of confidence from Dwight D. Eisenhower, the GOP Presidential candidate.

Nik: Berlin Situation Is Underestimated By West

Moscow (AP)—Premier Khrushchev says the U.S.—Soviet dispute over policing military traffic on the road to West Berlin is more serious than the West realizes.

Khrushchev's feeling was reported Friday to a news conference by Foreign Minister Per Haekkerup of Denmark, who talked with the premier at Kiev Wednesday.

Khrushchev emphasized during his talks that the Kremlin would never agree to changes in clearance procedures on the Berlin autobahn, the Danish official said.

Severity Underestimated
"Mr. Khrushchev said he had the feeling that many people in the world had underestimated the severity of the situation on the highway to Berlin," Haekkerup added.

He described Khrushchev's position on the issue as very firm and reported the Soviet leader emphasized he "will not accept any change in the situation."

Crash Kills Top Military Men In India

New Delhi (UPI)—Five of India's top military men, including the army and air force commanding generals in Kashmir and Ladakh, were killed Friday in a helicopter crash near the Kashmir city of Poonch. The pilot also died.

The defense ministry identified the victims as:

Air Vice Marshal E. W. Pinto, who commanded the western operational command of the air force.

Lt. Gen. Daulet Singh, commander in chief of the western command.

Lt. Gen. Bikram Singh, commander of the corps which controls both Kashmir and Ladakh under Daulet Singh's overall command.

Maj. Gen. M. K. D. Nana-vati.

Brig. S. R. Oberoi.

Flight Lt. S. S. Sodhi, pilot of the French built Alouette helicopter.

The deaths were announced to a stunned parliament by Defense Minister Yashwantrao Chavan who said, "our loss has been great" and recalled the "remarkable example of leadership" the two lieutenant generals showed in the Ladakh fighting in the border war with Communist China. Parliament recessed immediately.

There were few details of the crash but Chavan said it occurred near the Indian town of Poonch near the Kashmir-Pakistan border. There has been tension there since a shooting incident last month but the ministry did not mention Pakistan in a brief communique.

A spokesman said later Pakistan was in no way involved.

Ecumenical Council Approves Reforms

Vatican City (UPI)—The Ecumenical Council Friday gave final, overwhelming approval to the most sweeping reforms in Roman Catholic worship in more than 1,000 years.

The historic decree was ratified by a vote of 2,158 to 19. It will be promulgated by Pope Paul VI at a public session of the council, probably next Friday or Saturday.

The liturgical reform decree is the first major work completed by the assembly of Catholic Bishops. It has been under consideration since the Ecumenical Council convened at the call of the late Pope John XXIII in the fall of 1962.

The change which will have the greatest impact on Catholic men and women in the pew is authorization for the use of modern languages instead of Latin in large sections of the mass and in the entire rites of baptism, marriage, confession and other sacraments.

It is up to national conferences of bishops to decide when and how the change-over will take place.

Bishops from the United States, England, Canada, Australia and other English-speaking countries have appointed a special committee of scholars to begin work on an official English-language mass.

The so-called "canon" of the mass—the holiest part of the service, in which the priest re-enacts the sacrifice of Christ—will continue to be spoken or sung in Latin. But the decree provides that National Conferences of Bishops may petition the Vatican for permission to introduce modern languages even into the heart of the mass.

Other changes include:—The sacrament which previously was known officially as "extreme unction" and popularly as "the last rites" henceforth will be named "the anointing of the sick."

—Reform of the church calendar to put more emphasis on Sundays and the major feast days (such as Christmas and Easter).

—A statement that the Catholic church will not oppose setting a fixed date for Easter.

119 Shriners Initiated During Ritual In Seacrest's Honor

The Sesostris Temple initiated 119 new Shriners Friday during its 75th Jubilee Fall Ceremony in honor of Past Potentate Joseph W. Seacrest.

Seacrest was potentate during the 50th anniversary year of the Sesostris Temple.

The ritualistic section of the ceremonial was held during the afternoon at the temple.

The evening program, including the Shrine initiation, was held at Pershing Municipal Auditorium with Potentate Herbert A. Ronin in charge. The "fun" session was postponed, and a memorial service for President Kennedy was held instead.

Dignitaries from other Shrine temples and Masonic bodies attended.

Mayor Appoints Stanley H. Sands To Zoning Board

Mayor Dean Petersen Friday appointed Stanley H. Sands to the Board of Zoning Appeals as the representative of the City-County Planning Commission.

Sands, who was recently appointed to the commission, will serve a term on the appeals board to Aug. 19, 1969, which is concurrent with his commission term.

Sands succeeds Joseph Ginsburg on the board. Ginsburg's term had expired on the commission, and he resigned from the appeal board.

In accepting the resignation, Mayor Petersen expressed appreciation for Ginsburg's services to the city as a member of the commission and the board.

TURNCOAT IS BOUND OVER

Akron, Ohio (AP)—Complaining that "no one's in my corner," Lowell D. Skinner, 32-year-old Korean War turncoat, was bound over to the Summit County Grand Jury Friday on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, a felony.

He is accused of firing a shot at two teenage boys last Monday night in the home of Mrs. Roberta Longgood, 26, a convict's wife.

Skinner is one of 21 American prisoners who refused to be repatriated after the 1953 Korean armistice. The former Army corporal stayed in Communist China for nine years, married a Chinese girl, and returned to his home town of Akron only three months ago. He has been unable to find steady employment.

Roads In 2 Areas Remain Slippery

The State Highway Patrol said highways in the Ainsworth and North Platte areas were still covered with thin ice and remained slippery in spots Friday night.

The condition, caused by snow and freezing rain Thursday night, is to be clear up as skies become clear and temperatures warm up over the area Saturday, the patrol said.

Woman, 70, Hurt In Traffic Accident

Mrs. Olive Hoke, 70, 2733 Randolph was struck by an automobile in front of her home Friday night while she was crossing Randolph in the middle of the block.

She was reported in satisfactory condition at Bryan Memorial Hospital.

The car was driven by Albert F. Kirby, 61, of 4235 F. Police said Kirby was headed west on Randolph.

Colorado Auto Crash Hurts John V. Whitten

John V. Whitten, son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Whitten of Lincoln, was seriously injured in the collision of two cars near Greeley, Colo., Thursday.

Officers said a car driven by Whitten, vice president of the First National Bank of Greeley was in collision with another vehicle on U.S. 34. Weld County Hospital of Greeley reported Whitten in fair condition.

3 Stores Obtain Closing Injunction

Lancaster District Judge Bartlett Boyles Friday issued temporary injunctions prohibiting the enforcement of the Sunday closing law against Four-Star Drug, Skagway and the QP Store.

The three stores were the first of the present total of 11 stores which have obtained restraining orders against enforcement of LB710, which prohibits the sale of certain commodities on Sunday.

Judge Boyles did not issue any ruling on the constitutionality of the law which has been questioned in the suits.

Unjustified Classifications
He noted in his ruling that the new law "creates classifications in connection with the prohibition of sale of certain commodities which cannot be justified."

"The question of the law 'are grave and it appears that injury to the plaintiffs will be certain, substantial and irreparable' if a temporary injunction is not granted, the judge said.

Judge Boyles said that issuance of the injunctions will have the effect of retaining the matter in status quo and give plaintiffs their property rights.

Bob's Market
Judge Boyles Friday also issued a restraining order for Bob's Market Inc. and set hearing on a declaratory judgment suit filed Friday for Dec. 5.

The market asks that the court declare the law "void and unconstitutional."

Named defendants in the suit are Gov. Frank Morrison, Atty. Gen. Clarence Meyer, County Atty. Paul Douglas, Sheriff Merle Karnopp and Police Chief Joe Carroll.

Hearings will also be held Dec. 5 on suits filed by Knight's Family Store, Donmar Pharmacy, Wagey Drug Co. and Imperial Central States Oil Co.

Judge Boyles is expected to rule early next week on temporary injunctions for Bradford Drug, Family Drug and Allen's Alley.
